Second Cathedral Desecrated in U.K.

YORK (Reuters) — Vandals desecrated York Cathedral with paint today in the second incident of its kind in an English cathedral in two days.

Paint was sprayed Friday over Bible and church treasures in Canterbury Cathedral, "parish church" of Dr. Michael Ramsey, the Archbishop of Canterbury and head of the Anglican Church.

Red paint was sprayed on the lectern and archbishop's chair at York Minster, the seat of Dr. Donald Coggan, who ranks immediately after Dr. Ramsey in the Anglican Church hierarchy.

The incident at Canterbury Cathedral came after Dr. Ramsey was involved in controversy for a statement he made on Rhodesia.

Dr. Ramsey advocated support by Christians for the use of force by Britain if necessary to protect Negro African rights in Rhodesia.

New Appeal For Majority

By JOHN MIKA
Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — About two dozen hecklers were counter-heckled to a standoff while a full house of 2,800 supporters gave Prime Minister Pearson rousing cheers throughout a 33-minute speech Friday night in the Queen Elizabeth Theatre.

The noise volume hit its peaks in support of the Liberal leader's several appeals for return of his government with a parliamentary majority.

Police swung into action only twice—once to stop a pro-Pearsonite from pumelling a heckler beside him and the other time to chase back a man who rushed towards the platform with a sign calling for a Canadian merchant marine.

Mr. Pearson kept talking through both incidents and also ignored the hecklers to deliver his appeals, recount successes of his administration, outline current prosperity and slam the NDP and Tories.

The heckling was more like persistent but light sniper fire than the thunderous volleys of screaming and fist swinging that almost broke up Mr. Pearson's Vancouver rally in the 1963 campaign.

Isolated shouts of "Viet Nam," "conscription" and "Rivard" sometimes could be heard and other times were muffled by distances separating the widely scattered hecklers and the platform.

Counter-Hecklers Amuse Crowd

With everyone braced for a repetition of the 1963 near-riot, Friday's rally was almost anticlimactic and some even drew ironic amusement from the counter-hecklers who snapped back with "nitwits" or "why don't you go to Viet Nam?"

And the man with the merchant marine sign was booed and pelted with crumpled papers as he retreated before the police.

The heckling was loudest immediately after Mr. and Mrs. Pearson entered the theatre to the din of frenzied applause, the skirl of four bagpipers in the lead and the chanting of about 40 boys and girls bearing Liberal placards that brought up the rear.

The charged atmosphere gradually dissipated as it became evident Mr. Pearson was not fazed and the cries of the hecklers grew hoarse.

"Vancouver is always a stimulating place in an election campaign," said Mr. Pearson with a broad smile bathed by the spotlights.

"I am not likely to forget the wonderful reception I got here in 1963," he quipped to touch off a burst of general laughter.

He recalled he had felt rather low after the 1963 rally but an aide came bubbling up to his room gleefully announcing "we won three seats tonight—if only they had drawn blood from (you) we would have won two more."

Must Be Able to Plan Ahead

Mr. Pearson said the major issue of the campaign was majority government and if one was not achieved this time it likely would make another early election inevitable.

"Perhaps our motto or our slogan should be 'no more until 1970'," he said prompting a wave of cheers.

He said in the last parliament it was the opposition and not the government that held a majority "and I suggest we return to the traditional way with the government in the majority."

He said it would be impossible for the opposition parties to support a minority Liberal government after the attacks made during this campaign and in the first vote of confidence, within eight days of parliament's opening, "we would be defeated and there would be another election."

Mr. Pearson said Canada needs a majority government because an administration "should be able to plan ahead for five years and not just five weeks — surely that makes sense."

He said only the Liberals could form a majority in the country's present mood.

He said Conservative Leader Diefenbaker himself indicated the Tories could only hope to form a minority government and recalling the Diefenbaker minority government of 1962, he asked "do we want to return to that?"

Can Afford Extravagant Promises

"No," the crowd roared back.

Mr. Pearson said the New Democratic Party has no hope of forming even a minority government because the latest poll showed the undecided voters had dropped from 36 per cent to 11 per cent and NDP had only 16 per cent of the committed, while the Liberals had 47 per cent.

"A party with no hope of forming the government, no matter how good its intentions may be, can afford to make the most extravagant promises, secure in the knowledge it will not be

Dief Charges Pearson 'Threatens' Canadians

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau Staffer

TRURO, N.S.—Conservative Leader Diefenbaker charged Friday night the prime minister had adopted the dictum "I am the state" to "threaten" Canadians into voting for a Liberal majority.

At a swinging, shouting Nova Scotian rally the Tory leader lashed out at Prime Minister Pearson for suggesting as had been reported an election would follow a Liberal minority win by 18 months.

"He has enunciated a principle which almost indicates 'I am the state'," Diefenbaker said.

"What you did in fact, Mr. Prime Minister, was threaten the Canadian people, that's what you did."

"You said either you fall in line or I am going to force another election—but I am going to wait until after I celebrate July 1, 1967," Diefenbaker continued.

"Well when the votes are counted every indication is this nation, wherever it may be, is that 18 months from now you won't be in a position to advise the Governor-General of anything."

Diefenbaker said that the prime minister had denied making the statement as it was quoted in the press.

He said that Pearson's "aide Mr. (Richard) O'Hagan said he said it."

RECORDED ON TAPE

The prime minister's words had been recorded on tape, the Tory leader said.

"I can't understand why tapes record so wrongly," he said. "This is not the first time the prime minister has had this difficulty. He should be more tape careful."

Diefenbaker's remarks before the meeting were more restrained than those he had made earlier in the day to newsmen.

At Moncton airport he said the prime minister had shown a "contemptuous disregard for democracy."

In a taped interview on his private railway car he said the prime minister had a "power complex."

"He is beginning to think he controls the people, that whatever he wants he is going to have," said Diefenbaker.

"This is the first time in Canadian history that a prime minister has spoken to the people as if they were children who were to have their future determined by him, and to be

Liberals to Survive Small Gains by NDP

By PETER REGENSTREIF

TORONTO — If British Columbia is booming, Toronto is positively throbbing with affluence.

Where two and a half years ago stood a two-door Chevrolet, a Pontiac Parisienne hardtop now stands; hotels are booked solid; unemployment is at a record low.

This prosperity operates rather powerfully to mobilize potential indecision in a Liberal direction.

A taxi-driver who claimed he was undecided finally made up his mind on the spot: "Things are very good now. I mean compared to 1957 and 1958. Oh, no. I'll vote Liberal again. Things are better when the Liberals are in. I looked at the want ads. I saw four or five jobs I could hold today."

●

It brings converts into the fold. A 1963 Conservative, a carpenter in Broadview who now intends to vote Liberal, explained: "I like the present government. We're doing pretty well. Personally, the way I look at it, I have a good job."

This is obviously bad news for the opposition as it sets about taking the government on in the 18 Toronto and York constituencies. The Liberals now hold 16; the NDP 2.

The Conservatives drew a fat goose-egg here in 1963. They are slated to repeat in 1965.

To be sure, there is considerable public concern about scandal and the charges of corruption. But, at the same time, Diefenbaker is a repellent against voting Conservative

Rhodesia Crisis Averted

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Britain and Rhodesia reached agreement today on a compromise ending the threat of an immediate declaration of independence by the African colony.

The compromise called for establishment of a royal commission to work out details for advancing political power to the nation's black majority.

It also brought a statement from British Prime Minister Harold Wilson supporting the Rhodesian government's position that the colony's four million Negroes are not yet ready for majority rule over the white minority and a promise that Britain would not use its military to force an African majority government.

A number of African nationalists had demanded use of force by Britain to prevent a unilateral declaration of independence by Rhodesia.

The proposed royal commission would be headed by Rhodesian Chief Justice Sir Hugh Beadel and composed of a British and Rhodesian representative still to be named. It would analyze the existing constitution and suggest amendments guaranteeing African rights.

There were immediate rumblings from both African nationalists and some extremist white settlers impatient for urgent action on independence now on their terms.

The Rev. N. Sithole, African nationalist leader under restriction by the Rhodesian government, expressed "deep disappointment" that Wilson had been unable to provide immediate majority rule.

Douglas C. (Boss) Lilford, former chairman of premier Ian Smith's ruling Rhodesian front, said he had "some doubts" about the plan but that the party was united behind Smith.

Net effect of the compromise was to delay the unilateral Independence threat—the first by a British colony since America's in 1776—at least until the end of the year.

BY END OF YEAR

In announcing the compromise, Wilson said he expected the commission to complete its work by the end of the year.

Both Smith's cabinet and the 50-man British task force which accompanied Wilson here from London for last-minute talks appeared pleased by the compromise.

Wilson disclosed agreement shortly before flying off to other African states en route home to London for discussion of the royal commission by the British cabinet.

"I am now absolutey clear that the door is open," Wilson said. "We have found a means to settle this problem quite quickly.

"I believe that given time—a short time in my view—the proposed royal commission can hammer out a solution which can lead to an honorable and acceptable basis for independence."

Wilson said his government is irrevocably committed to eventual rule by the colony's Africans over the 220,000 whites.

50 Communist Youths Slain In Java Battle

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Indonesian government troops killed 50 Communist youths in a battle following the discovery of the bodies of murdered Moslems, the army announced here today.

It said Moslems who found the bodies Wednesday in a grave at Prambanan in central Java attempted to move them to a burial place. They found the area occupied by Pemuda Rakjat (Communist youth front) forces and called for military help.

Observers said the battle was the most serious reported between government forces and Communists.

Third Deputy Premier Chaerul Saleh today described the Indonesian situation as "civil war."

Another army announcement said troops and police raided a village in East Java and arrested 11 persons suspected of the "massacre by poisoning" of 62 anti-Communists at Karangasem.

Meanwhile, reliable army sources said today Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio has been replaced as chief of the intelligence service by a high-ranking soldier.

U.S. Fights Hand-to-Hand As Cong Hit Tents in Dark

SAIGON (CP)—U.S. marines, using pistols and fighting hand-to-hand from their tents, beat off a "human wave" assault by the Viet Cong in the early-morning darkness today 10 miles southwest of Da Nang.

A U.S. military spokesman said 56 Viet Cong, many of them teen-agers, were killed. He described casualties among the 300 marines as moderate.

One marine squad, however, was badly mauled. Two of its 14 men were killed and the rest wounded, the spokesman said.

The Viet Cong also mortared the U.S. special forces camp at Plei Me in the central highlands and launched a flurry of new assaults in the Mekong delta.

The Associated Press reported a 13-year-old boy was among the Viet Cong dead at Da Nang. It quoted marines as saying he had been selling soft drinks to Americans in the area and they found drawings of key U.S. installations on his body.

"We dropped a lot of Viet Cong with pistols," said Sgt. Harry Dowdy. "They came right up to our holes. We fired at a range of 10 yards."

A U.S. spokesman said the first wave of attackers consisted of Viet Cong carrying meat hooks.

They charged the defences, throwing grenades and dropping to the ground just before reaching them. As they fell, riflemen charged over them and began mounting the defences.

Sgt. Dowdy said "as soon as one of the riflemen fell the ones lying on the ground dragged him away with a meat hook and another one took his place."

FIGHTNIKS PARADE OVER VIET ISSUE

NEW YORK (AP)—Thousands demonstrating support for U.S. policy in Viet Nam marched down Fifth Avenue today.

The parade, led by five medal-of-honor winners, took the same route as a demonstration two weeks ago protesting American involvement in the Viet Nam war.

The parade chairman, city councilman Matthew J. Troy Jr., estimated the number of marchers today would exceed 100,000.

MINORITY GOVERNMENT . . .

. . . COULD NOT SURVIVE

Pearson Explains Controversial Statement

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said Friday night "another election would be inevitable" if "the government does not get a majority" in the Nov. 8 federal election.

Mr. Pearson said in a statement: "I did not say that I would call that election. I did state, and I repeat, my view that another election would be inevitable."

The statement was issued following Mr. Pearson's denial at a hurried airport interview here Thursday night that he had told Liberal campaign workers in Toronto there would be another election in a year or 18 months if "we don't get" a majority government.

The statement issued Friday night said:

"I have been accused of being arrogant because I believe that, if the government does not get a majority on November 8, there will be another election within a year or so.

REPEATS STATEMENT

"I did not say that I would call that election. I did state, and I repeat, my view that another election would be inevitable.

"No one who has listened to the Opposition parties in this campaign could possibly make any other prediction.

"In the excitement at Vancouver airport last night, I understood a question to be whether I had said I would call another election if we didn't have a majority. That was the question I thought I answered. It was not of course my intention to deny I had said that in my view another election would be inevitable in the event of a minority situation.

"A minority government is a government that cannot survive in the House of Commons unless some members of the Opposition support it. Unless the Opposition leaders are completely insincere in what they have been trying to tell the Canadian people for the past eight weeks, they would not support my government. Therefore, my government would be defeated in parliament and there would be another election.

"The facts are very simple. Even the leader of the official Opposition has admitted that he cannot get a majority. Mr. Douglas has admitted nothing, because he is no longer in a position to discuss the issue. The gallup poll has exploded his mathematical myth. The poll proves the NDP has no chance whatever of being the official Opposition let alone the government.

"Therefore it is perfectly clear to everyone that if there were not a Liberal majority after November 8, there would soon be another election. This is not something I decree. It is not something I would like to see. It is a simple fact of political life, clear to everyone except those whose case would be destroyed if they admitted it."

PM Scores Peaceniks

Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER—Prime Minister Pearson withstood heckling and hissing and took courage from cheering by about 3,200 university students here Friday in a speech that praised them for interest in worldly affairs but made two unpopular warnings in his first speech to a varsity gathering in the campaign.

Mr. Pearson, a former university lecturer, took the scattered jeers cheerfully and appeared to enjoy himself. He never faltered and never stopped smiling.

In a short speech to the University of B.C. students who almost filled the gymnasium during the lunch break, Mr. Pearson warned:

One-sided protests against U.S. involvement in Viet Nam along with demands for unilateral disarmament and disbanding of NATO are self-defeating because they do not advance the cause of peace.

And no matter what promises may be made from the hustings, it is unrealistic to expect free tuition for university students and a solution of all their problems overnight.

When he quoted from the Bladen Report on the future needs of higher education, one youth shouted "what's new pussycat?" the prime minister won almost as large a laugh with his retort that one of the disadvantages of a large crowd is "you get all the words of wisdom from the audience."

At another point, the prime minister said "it is the essence of futility to spend $100 million . . ."

"On missiles," a lad shouted through the pause.

"On education or social security if there is no peace and the world undergoes the catastrophe of nuclear war," Mr. Pearson finished his sentence over the hubbub.

DISARMAMENT

Mr. Pearson won cheers with his avowal that Canada works hard for world peace, and, despite an ensuing contest between cheers and catcalls, he shouted over the roar a warning obviously aimed at "peaceniks" that bait only the United States.

"It does not make for peace in the world to advocate unilateral disarmament," he cried. "It does make for peace to work for general disarmament.

"It does not make for peace and security of the world to criticize our friends and impute motives to them they don't have . . . or to break up the North Atlantic alliance which is a bullwork of security."

Mr. Pearson also refused to be drowned out by the conflicting roars that greeted his statement:

"There is no doubt it (free university tuition) will come but it will not come overnight—no matter what kind of promises you get in an election campaign."

But only cheers greeted his promise that although the federal government this year is spending a record sum close to $300 million for universities and research, more will be done if a Liberal government is returned to power.

son concentrated most of his called upon to fulfill them," he said.

During the speech, Mr. Pearpartisan fire at the NDP, splitting the rest of it between Mr. Diefenbaker and B.C. Social Credit Premier Bennett.

"The NDP over the years have had great humanitarian objectives and I pay tribute to them for it but they are not going to be carrying them as a government," he said.

"But we can carry out our humanitarian objectives," he said.

"One of the things a Liberal majority can do is keep going the prosperity we have had for the past 2½ years in unprecedented degree."

"We have created a half-million new jobs and the unemployment rate is down to only 2.5 per cent in this country, and it was 7 to 8 per cent."

He said per capita income has risen by $96 during his 2½-year administration compared with a total of $95 over the whole five years of Mr. Diefenbaker's administration "and at the same time income tax has gone down 10 per cent."

He said the huge trade deficit inherited from the Conservatives has been wiped out and the plummeting unemployment insurance fund put on the mend.

"This is a good record for a minority government. There will be an even better record with a majority government," Mr. Pearson said.

British Columbia is "participating perhaps more than any other province in this prosperity" particularly taking the lion's share of a 30 per cent increase in foreign trade over the past two years.

"I know that if things had gone down we would have had to take all the blame so surely we can take some of the credit," Mr. Pearson said.

"The premier of this province wants a minority government at the federal level but he doesn't seem to want it in provincial affairs," he laughed. "Neither did the NDP leader want a minority when he was premier of Saskatchewan."

HARBOR WOULD GROW

The prime minister promised Vancouver harbor would grow rapidly to benefit from Pacific trade but "we will not be able to realize better trade with the United States if we don't keep on friendly terms with the U.S.

"Whining anti-Americans are not necessarily vigorous Canadians" he said launching another series of cheers.

PM Pays Tribute To Chinese Role

By Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER—Prime Minister Pearson was given three cheers and a lion, Chinese style, Friday afternoon.

A wiggly lion dance, deafening detonations of firecrackers, the blare of a bugle and drum band and a pipe band, and a choir of young Chinese girls greeted the prime minister in an open-air rally in Chinatown.

Later, he shook hands with almost 200 who joined him in a Chinese dinner, autographed their menus and received a centuries-old carved stone bowl of the Ching dynasty.

The reception was tendered by the Chinese community.

At the rally, spectators filled the sidewalks, spilled over the roadway and lined the balconies of nearby buildings to hear Mr. Pearson promise a Liberal government would continue to work to "remove the last remaining distinctions among Canadians so there are no more first, second or third class but every citizens is a first-class citizen no matter where he or his parents came from."

Mr. Pearson paid tribute to the Chinese who had overcome difficult obstacles to play an important role in building Canada.

Later, in the more intimate surroundings of the restaurant, he quietly and earnestly told his audience of the "rich and thrilling rewards there are to see in the great variety of Canada" on cross-country campaign trips.

"The greatness and the glory of this country comes from the fact we are being molded from 30, 40 or 50 racial fabrics."

Pedestrians Recovering In Hospital

Two pedestrians injured in separate traffic accidents Friday are recovering in hospital.

Mrs. Charlotte Squire, 75, of 1155 Rockland, is in fairly good condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital with back injuries. She was hurt in an accident at Cook and Fort at 5:30 in the afternoon.

Police said driver of the car involved was Edmund Raeder, 2071 Paul Terrace.

Mrs. Christine Riseley, 66, of 1091 Moss, is in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital. She received a hip injury in a collision at Cook and Yates in the early afternoon.

Driver involved was William McIntyre, HMCS Naden.

Edwin Eade, 1144 Verdier Avenue, Brentwood, sustained facial cuts and internal injuries when his car crashed into a telephone pole on West Saanich Road near McTavish Friday night.

He is in satisfactory condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital where he was moved from Rest Haven Hospital in Sidney.

Impaired Charge Dismissed

Magistrate William Ostler Friday dismissed a charge of impaired driving against Thomas Drysdale, 150 Croft.

He said the case against Drysdale was "very suspicious" but he was not convinced the man was guilty. The magistrate referred to conflicting medical evidence in the case.

He also said that Drysdale, who conducted his own defence, showed a better recall of events on the night he was arrested than most persons who appear in court on this charge.

punished if they do not carry out his will and admonition."

The prime minister was showing the "same cynical attitude" he had shown when he called the election "because regardless of other considerations he wanted a majority.

Pearson didn't need a majority, he had the support of six Creditistes, Diefenbaker said.

"I don't know what the terms of sale were, but a group met together with a man by the name of Moisey Darabaner, who at the moment is charged with bankruptcy."

"He wasn't bankrupt of political ideas," Diefenbaker said. "He was one of the leading Liberals."

The prime minister did not care about whether the people were properly represented according to population, he said.

"Redistribution meant nothing."

The past 2½ years had been noted for "selective amnesia and forgetfulness," Diefenbaker said

Diefenbaker rushed into the Legion hall here after his train arrived in the station two hours late.

Nova Scotia Premier Stanfield and more than 1,000 others —they were so packed in it could have been much more—gave him one of his most enthusiastic receptions in the past two weeks.

Diefenbaker Friday completed a blanket tour of Prince Edward Island, which was the only province he had not visited.

At his elbow throughout was one of his staunchest supporters, 76-year-old Premier Shaw, who went so far as to proclaim that he "loved" Diefenbaker, "the greatest friend the island ever had."

And Diefenbaker, who had two members from the island in the last Parliament, was trying to swing a return to 1957 when all four of the P.E.I. seats went to the Conservatives.

Today he completes a visit to Nova Scotia and flies to Toronto Sunday for his final lap of a cross-country swing before the election.

Children Get Fallout Check-Up

ST. GEORGE, Utah (UPI) — This small desert oasis northeast of the U.S. nuclear test site Thursday awaited a team of medical researchers seeking the cause of thyroid gland abnormalities in school children.

The abnormalities, nodules or lumps in the thyroid, were disclosed by the public health service in Washington. However, health officials said there was no conclusive proof that radioactive fallout was directly responsible.

St. George, the county seat of Washington county and summer home of Morman pioneer Brigham Young, is about 100 miles from the atomic test site in neighboring Utah. The county has the highest level of nuclear fallout in the nation.

About 2,000 children between the ages of 10 and 18 in Washington county were examined by a panel of doctors. Nodules were found in the thyroid glands of 70 children.

In a comparable study in Graham county, Arizona, which is outside the fallout pattern, 25 of 1,400 children had nodules.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

There was a ridge of high pressure over the B.C. coast today and skies were sunny in most areas of the province. The Pacific disturbance that threatened the coast was expected to bring rain and gales to the north coast this afternoon. However, it was to be quite weak in southern sections and will bring cloud but little or no rain to the lower mainland after midnight. An onshore flow of moist air will give cloudy skies to most areas on Sunday.

What About "Stable, Majority" Government?
The two old line parties have been telling you how important it is to have "stable, majority" government. What they really mean is IMMOVABLE government.
A few years ago we had a government with a HUGE majority. What did it achieve? Very little worth mentioning. A majority government is not the answer to everything. You must have people who can look ahead—who are not afraid to act. For a vigorous government—vote NEW DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

FAIR SHARE FOR B.C. THEME OF SOCREDS

By ROGER STONEBANKS

PIPES

. . . can do something

Fair treatment for British Columbia is the main election issue, says the Social Credit candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich.

"We in B.C. expect our federal government should be as much concerned with us as the rest of the provinces," says Mrs. Vera Pipes.

"We don't expect anymore than anyone else but we do expect our fair share."

Mrs. Pipes said the fair-share deal applied to mineral resources, ferries and railways.

"The Pacific Great Eastern (owned by B.C.) is just as important as the rail to Pine Point in the Northwest Territories," she said.

"But that railway was built by the Canadian National to a Canadian Pacific-owned mine."

Mrs. Pipes said Social Credit has no quarrel with such measures — she also mentioned the causeway to Prince Edward Island — but simply wanted a fair share for B.C.

The 64-year-old real estate sales lady said she is a candidate in the Nov. 8 election "because it is time for someone to speak up for the good of the country, and as a woman I feel I could do a great deal for both men and women."

"We have spent far too much in time in backbiting, so let's face it—it's time we did something and I feel I can."

Mrs. Pipes was born in Pipestone, Man., and has lived in Victoria for the last 22 years. She has six children and 20 grandchildren.

An active Social Credit supporter for years, she lives with her husband John at 5161 Agate Lane.

Asked why an Esquimalt-Saanich voter should vote for Social Credit, she replied:

"I think Esquimalt-Saanich constituency should vote for a Social Credit candidate so we have our wonderful and progressive B.C. represented by a candidate who fully believes that a candidate should be elected who intends to remain in the area," she replied.

The federal government, she said, is $19 billion in debt.

"Perhaps, if there was a closer link between the federal government and all progressive provincial governments, particularly B.C., there might be a solution to this."

Mrs. Pipes said her experience as a businesswoman leads her to view problems from a practical not an emotional standpoint.

. . . REGENSTREIF

and, while the Liberal party as such is not seen in a favorable light, the prime minister seems to emerge relatively unscathed.

For the first time during his tenure as leader of the Liberals, Pearson is running ahead of his party in some areas.

York East, a middle-class riding which has wrestling star Whipper Billy Watson bearing the Conservative label against Liberal 1963 winner Steve Otto, is an interesting case in point. If the Tories are to make a come-back, this is one constituency where they should have a great deal in their favor.

All the signs are that they are cleanly beaten as the Liberals are cutting deeply into their traditional strength.

A 77-year-old former clerk with the CNR is voting Liberal for the first time in his life: "I really prefer Pearson because Diefenbaker lets things slide. I think he's trying hard. He got the job at a bad time but he's done his best. I don't like Diefenbaker. He makes promises he doesn't keep." He laughingly added: "My wife still votes Diefenbaker. She likes the old-age pension."

●

This synoptic analysis by a school caretaker is even more devastating. He too is in revolt against his customary Conservative allegiance: "As far as I'm concerned, I think the Conservatives when they were in office did nothing and promised everything. The present prime minister did something. I was against the flag as a service man but I admire the man for what he did. I'd like to see them back in. I'd like to see him get a majority to put across what he's trying to put across.

"I know they couldn't keep all their promises but no government can. You know. Everyone wants a $1,000 a month and sit down and do nothing."

This does not mean that the Liberals have everything their own way. The upper-middle and upper-status unhappiness with their performance in office (so evident elsewhere in the country) is hurting them just as badly here and contributed to jeopardizing Eglinton and to losing York South.

In Eglinton, Trade and Commerce Minister Mitchell Sharp, who is the most popular member of the government, faces tough competition from Tory notable Dalton Camp. Had the population of this usually-Conservative riding remained stable, Camp would be in command in spite of Sharp's margin of over 8,000 gained in 1963.

However, over 4,000 new voters have moved into the constituency since the 1963 election. They are Liberal-oriented to a marked degree and provide Sharp with the cushion he requires.

●

On the other hand, York South is a probable Liberal loss to the NDP represented once again by David Lewis. In the last election, the Jewish population in upper-income Forest Hill Village was so obsessed with the need for majority government that it turned out heavily and voted overwhelmingly for Liberal Marvin Gelber.

This time, other concerns predominate; Lewis is getting back some of his 1963 defectors; turn-out will be lower—this is true not only of this constituency but of all metro; in the essentially working-class west-end of the riding, the NDP still benefits from traditional Protestantism which diverts defecting Tories to its ranks rather than to the Liberals who are still seen as the representatives of Catholicism.

And last, but by no means least, the NDP boasts the finest constituency organization in the country here. It is directed by Lewis' son, Stephen, himself a member of the provincial House and a master of the art of delivering the vote.

The fact that Stephen was not involved with his father's campaign in 1963 contributed to the loss of the seat. His participation this time is one important reason for giving the NDP the edge now.

Broadview, a traditional Conservative lower-middle and lower-income seat won last time by Liberal David Tahn, threatens to fall to the NDP too. Both religious and organizational factors are important, the latter especially so.

The New Democrats with candidate John Gilbert in the field once more, are still reaping the rewards of the Riverdale byelection for the provincial legislature. That was the contest in which they seriously damaged Liberal Charles Templeton's provincial leadership ambitions just over a year ago.

The victory of the NDP in that byelection was one primarily based on organization and working-class identification. The Liberals will be fortunate to pull this one out. At the moment, it is in the doubtful category.

Finally, massive York-Scarborough is worth a few lines. Here, one-time incumbent and cabinet minister Conservative, Frank McGee, is attempting to wrest control away from the Liberals who have nominated newcomer Robert Stanbury. The NDP is going with Edward Philips once again.

The Liberals are not as solid as they were in 1963 in upper-middle income areas because of the "scandals" and are experiencing the usual NDP damage in middle and lower-income areas. But this and McGee's personal popularity are just not enough to put them down.

It's the same story in most of York seats.

In the inner city, aside from the east-end where the NDP retains a tiny edge, it's the Liberals off by themselves.

In general, what is essentially happening in Toronto is that the middle class now sees itself as the beneficiary of a couple of years of prosperity and is giving the government full marks.

At the same time, upper-middle and upper-income voters, among whom the Liberals did so well in 1962 and 1963 because of their revulsion to Diefenbaker, are not as markedly affected by these good times. Instead, they are seriously bothered by the apparently indecisive performance of the prime minister and the morality issue.

This may mean that a basic reorientation in long-term support is under way with the Liberals the darlings of the lower-middle and lower-income voter as they were in the days of King and St. Laurent and with the upper-status sector of the electorate beginning its drift back to its traditional Conservative loyalties.

This will probably turn out to be the most welcome development of the campaign for the Liberals.

But all this is in the future. In the meantime, there's an election to be decided.

The forecast in metro: Liberals 14, NDP 3, doubtful 1. Still a Tory-less Toronto.

ELECTION TRAILS

Indians Urged To Vote

All Indians were urged today to vote in the Nov. 8 federal election.

Citizenship Minister Jack Nicholson said some Indians still wrongly believe they will lose special Indian rights if they vote or take part in federal elections.

"Under no circumstances can the exercise of the federal franchise result in the loss of Indian status," he said.

The minister, whose department includes the Indian affairs branch, asked Indians to disregard meaningless rumors they might hear about loss of special status by voting.

All Indians were allowed to vote for the first time in 1862. Before that, with certain exceptions, they were denied this right.

Fraud Charge Dismissed

TORONTO (CP) — A month-long trial of two men charged with fraud and conspiracy in the international financing of a Calgary apartment block ended Friday with the acquittal of Toronto architect Peter Caspari, 52, and a London, England, banker, Walter Strauss, 64.

Mr. Caspari had arranged the purchase of real estate in Calgary and Mr. Strauss had raised finances from European investors. They were accused of setting up a dummy company to take off a "secret profit" of about $54,000 from the group's investments.

50% Pay Hike Approved

ROME (AP)—All parties in the Italian parliament buried their difference Thursday to give final approval to a 50 per cent pay increase. This will increase the average take-home-pay for a deputy or senator from 500,000 lire ($850) a month to 750,000 lire ($1,290).

SHARP

'too many crises'

Sharp Scores Tory Policies Past, Present

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trade Minister Sharp warned Friday that a Conservative government elected Nov. 8 would be as "clumsy and inept" as the former Conservative administration.

Mr. Sharp scored the previous Conservative government during a luncheon of the North Winnipeg Businessman's Association.

"Neither the past record or performance of the John Diefenbaker government or present policies hold out any hope that his party could govern this country effectively.

"Any government makes mistakes, and the Liberals have, but what strikes one about the Diefenbaker administration is the number of unnecessary crises which arose."

Mr. Sharp said Conservative trade policies "infuriated" the United States, its Commonwealth policies "alienated" the British and its national policies resulted in the "infamous" Coyne affair when the governor of the Bank of Canada resigned.

He added, however, that return of a minority Liberal government was almost as frightening a prospect because it would make the world wonder if Canada had entered a period of prolonged political instability.

'Greatest Security Charter'

STONEWALL, Man. (CP) — Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said Friday introduction of a national medical care program would be the last piece of major social legislation of the century in Canada.

She told a rally in this small Manitoba community that the Liberal government had introduced, in the past two years, "the greatest security charter for retirement" that any country has ever seen. These measures are the Canada Pension Plan and the proposed medical care program.

Re-election of a Liberal government Nov. 8 would see the medical care plan become a reality, she said.

The Canada Pension Plan, said Miss LaMarsh, was satisfactory to all provinces and added the present old age pension is the "most generous" in the world that is offered without a means test.

Costly Dock Fire

DUBLIN (AP) — Hundreds of firemen Friday brought under control a fire that swept through Dublin's dockland, causing damage estimated at about £500,000 ($1,500,000).

LIBERAL MEANS TEST HIT

NDP Pushes $100 Pension

PORT MOODY (CP) — T. C. Douglas said Friday night only the New Democratic Party has proposed a feasible $100-a-month old age pension and a full medical health care plan during this election campaign.

At a coffee-and-cookies reception in his home riding of Burnaby - Coquitlam, Mr. Douglas rapped Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and Prime Minister Pearson for their pensions-and-medicare policies.

He said Mr. Diefenbaker's proposal to pay an additional $25 to pensioners from the Canada Pension Plan fund would result in lower benefits being paid from the new contributory scheme.

And he said he did not know where the Conservative party stands on medicare.

Mr. Douglas was opposed to Mr. Pearson's proposal to pay $100-a-month or more to the needy because it would put many persons through the "humiliation" of a means test.

He accused the prime minister of "waffling" on the Liberal government's medical care proposal since laying down universality and public control as two of the four requirements needed before Ottawa would contribute.

Now Mr. Pearson is saying it will be a long time before any scheme is completely universal and that there is a role for private insurance companies to play in the plan, he said.

About 120 persons turned out for the meeting.

RAISES CONTROVERSY

The NDP leader again raised the controversy over the prime minister's Thursday statements in Toronto and Vancouver about the possibility of another election if there is no majority after Nov. 8.

Mr. Douglas said that in Toronto Mr. Pearson said there would be another election next year if there is no majority, and in Vancouver told reporters he had never said any such thing.

The prime minister's memory must be "in very serious shape indeed" for it to slip within a 24-hour period.

"Mr. Pearson has had convenient lapses of memory before, the NDP leader said, particularly when the Opposition last year was trying to find out when the prime minister first heard of bribery allegations levelled at a cbainet minister's executive assistant.

(In a clarifying statement, Mr. Pearson said Friday he did not say he would call another election. "I did state, and I repeat, my view that another election would be inevitable," he said.)

Coffee parties today and Sunday afternoon are scheduled for Mr. Douglas before he participates in the riding's traditional all - candidate debate Sunday evening.

RCMP School For Dogs Set In Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) — A new training school for Royal Canadian Mounted Police dogs will open near Red Deer within four weeks, it was reported Friday.

German shepherds will be bred and trained and then turned over to police — not only RCMP — from all parts of the country to assist them in fighting crime and saving lives.

The RCMP police service dog section is located about 22 miles south of Red Deer near Innisfail. The 17-acre site and its accommodations cost more than $100,000 to prepare.

The Critic

AS THE LEADER OF A POLITICAL party which has never held federal office, Mr. Tommy Douglas is in the comfortable position of being able to blame everything that is wrong with the country on the current and previous governments. No error of judgment, no weakness of policy, no mistake of administration can attach to his New Democratic Party because it has never enjoyed the responsibility of national government nor the risk of being wrong.

Mr. Douglas was his usual cheery and entertaining self as he took full advantage of this position Thursday night before a Victoria audience. All the evils that beset us were the direct result of faulty action by the Liberals or the Conservatives when in power. In fact it appeared that the only acceptable representatives of these two parties—and probably destined to be the last — were Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir John A. Macdonald.

Mr. Douglas, for instance, made much of the situation in which Canada finds itself, with 62 per cent of our industry under foreign control. Neither of the old-line parties object to the trend that has produced this result, he said. The NDP would reverse the trend, said Mr. Douglas, and buy back our industry from the foreigners.

That would be a monumental task, of course, and would depend not only on the willingness of Canadians to put their money into such a purchase—never yet a very popular idea with Canadian savers—but also on the willingness of the foreigners to sell.

Mr. Douglas suggests that he could easily form a better government than the Liberal administration. That is an easy boast. He might have the cabinet material, as he says, but he has yet to get the members of parliament that would make his aspirations possible. The reality is that Canada does not want or need a socialist government — and the fact that the word "socialist" is being heavily damped in the NDP propaganda for the current election campaign is an indication that Mr. Douglas knows this.

His hope of influencing Canadian affairs to a greater extent must rest on the possibility of a minority government, with the NDP as the third weight which could swing the balance either way. In such a situation Mr. Douglas could exact a price for his support and force many of his policies into legislation.

Rule by a splinter group which represents but a small part of the electorate would be an abandonment of the central principle of parliamentary government; it would be a negation of the people's will, a seizure of governing power through a freak of public indecision. That is not good enough for Canada. We must have a majority government, with a strong, responsible opposition, for the effective direction of our affairs.

That is not to say the NDP can have no place in the scheme of parliament. It can continue—as it has done in the past—to provide a stimulant, a leavening, a saddle burr in our national life, in an era which turns increasingly to the humanitarian objectives of the welfare state. Mr. Douglas' party is one fated to be an often welcome bridesmaid, but never quite a bride.

Japan and Bristol Bay Records

A SPOKESMAN FOR JAPANESE fishing interests has pointed to this season's record salmon run in Alaska's Bristol Bay to support his country's claim for greater access to the fisheries of the North Pacific.

On the face of it, his case looks strong. He says that the catch by American boats this year set a new record. In addition, the fish escaped to the spawning grounds in record numbers.

This, said the spokesman, seemed to destroy the argument that Japanese high seas fishing was seriously cutting into the supply of salmon and threatening the existence of the run.

The point is important because under the original treaty between Canada, the United States and Japan, Japan agreed to abstain from fishing east of the 175th meridian if any party could prove that the fishery concerned was being exploited to the fullest extent possible without endangering the stock, and that conditions were being investigated.

Japan now feels the abstention principle to be an imposition forced upon her at the time the pact was signed — the early postwar years when the nation was still under the stigma of defeat.

By citing this year's record hauls in Bristol Bay and the record escapement to the spawning grounds, the Japanese might argue that the resource is being under-exploited in this region. That case was made by Japan with some success in respect to halibut fisheries off Alaska.

There is, however, a modifying factor which weakens the Japanese case. For reasons which have not yet been determined the supply of salmon in Bristol Bay returning to spawning rivers fluctuates wildly from season to season. No stable pattern similar to the cycles in the Fraser River fisheries has been established.

If, over a period of years, the Japanese can prove that Bristol Bay salmon are building up to the point where they are under-exploited, then the country would have a substantial argument. That situation may occur. In the meantime, the results of one year's count will scarcely be accepted by Canadians or Americans as significant evidence of a continued trend.

Divisions In Unity

A YEAR OR TWO AGO INformed Western observers pointed to the embarrassment suffered by some newly emerging countries when they found that translation of the magic word "independence" into political fact failed to solve their national problems.

The economic difficulties continued even when the vilified "colonial" power had withdrawn.

Now another issue confronts the new states of Africa. In the Organization of African Unity, they find their consciences troubled by the fact that attention has to be given to half a million refugees who have fled persecution or war in white or black countries.

The existence of these dispossessed people seems to contradict the "unity" in the African organization's name.

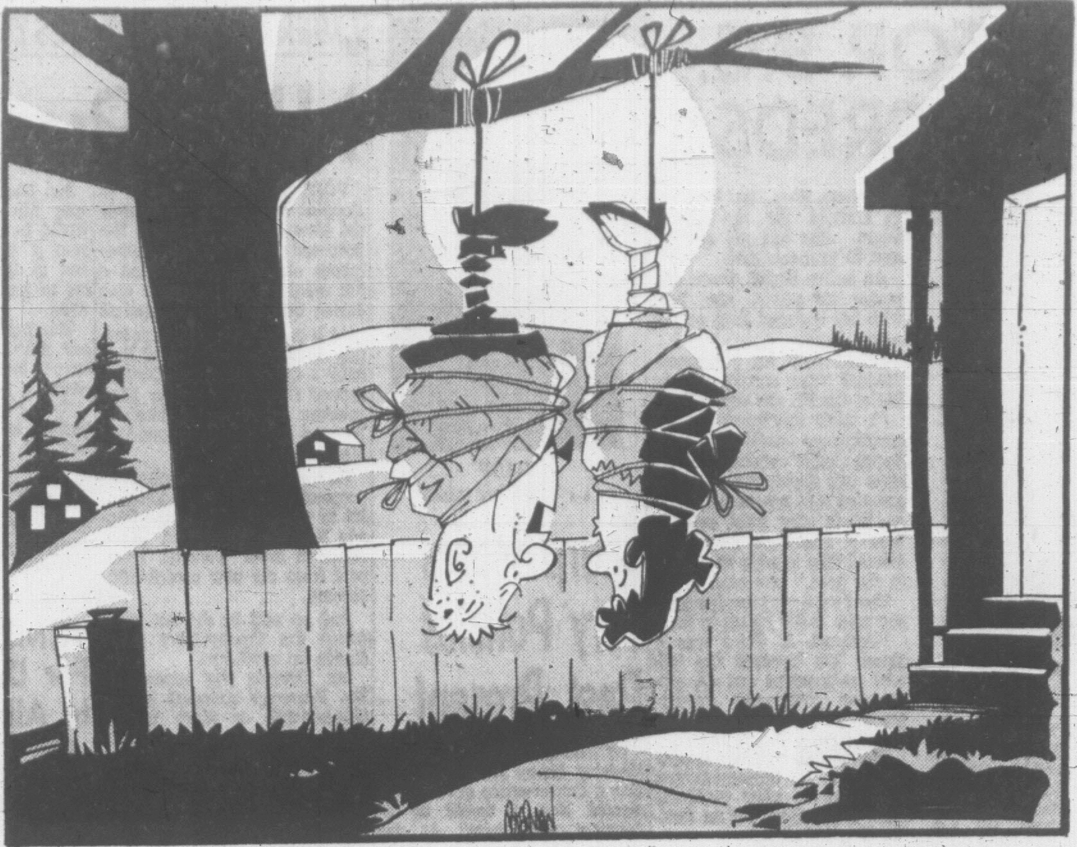
The plight of the refugee in any of a number of older countries wrings sympathy from a settled and established citizenry. So does it from the people of the new African states—but not enough, apparently, to effect a satisfactory repatriation in lands where the native population has won the right to run its own affairs.

Few Jobs for Dropouts

RECENTLY COMPILED AMERICAN statistics—and they should be noted in Canada—indicate the necessity for today's young people to acquire more education than their elder brothers.

They show that 38.2 per cent of the country's unemployed white males between the ages of 18 and 24 have had less than nine years of schooling, while only 13.8 per cent of all unemployed white males between the ages of 35 and 44 have similar school periods behind them.

In other words, the jobs open to American men who have not finished high school are largely held by the older group—there are few left for young ones. And employment for the less-educated is continually shrinking.



"Anyway . . . for next year we know now that 85 cents worth of candy won't carry us through the night . . . !"

Probing the Plei Me Mystery

Alsop

THE fighting at Plei Me, in which the Viet Cong suffered the gravest sort of setback, is a knotty little enigma, wrapped in a cloud of mystery, which is in turn shot through with glints and hints of hope and danger. The enigma is inherent in the facts. Briefly, Plei Me is an isolated outpost close to the Cambodian border, rather heavily fortified and originally held by an American special forces team of 10 or 12 men, a Vietnamese special forces team of comparable size and four companies of mountain tribesmen recruited and trained by the special forces.

Shortly before dawn on the morning of October 19, the outpost was sharply attacked by at least one enemy battalion. The first onslaught was repulsed, with heavy losses to the enemy. Two Vietnamese ranger companies were airlifted in, to reinforce the Plei Me garrison, yet the attack on the post was not broken off. Thus, the attackers became fixed targets, as it were, for our tactical air support, and thereby they incurred further very heavy losses.

Three battalions of South Vietnamese troops had meanwhile moved out by road to relieve the beleaguered garrison. Because of the danger of ambush, their movement was necessarily very slow. An ambush was duly attempted by at least two enemy battalions, but the relieving column fought its way through, inflicting still further heavy losses on the enemy forces.

Even so, the attack on the outpost was maintained until the arrival at Plei Me of the Vietnamese relief column and the intervention of a brigade of the U.S. First Cavalry Regiment. Two helicopters were the main American losses. Vietnamese casualties were also relatively light. And when the fighting began to die down on October 27, the bill paid by the enemy had reached close to 500 dead, plus many more wounded, plus a heavy loss of weapons.

The obstinate continuation of the attack on Plei Me is the heart of the enigma; for the Mao Tze-tung-Vo Nguyen Giap rule book requires any attack to be broken off that meets with resistance by a superior force. Yet even at the outset the attackers were confronted by a superior force because of the combination of the stout courage of the Plei Me garrison and the harsh power of American and Vietnamese tactical air support.

One possible reason for this obstinacy is Plei Me's location, just to the south of the main east-west highway leading to Stung Treng, in Cambodia, where there is a junction with a main road coming north from Phnom Penh. The only other case of an equally obstinate and wasteful attack was the attempt, earlier last summer, to overrun the special forces outpost at Duc Co, which lies even nearer to the border and just to the north of the same highway.

Supply Via Cambodia

The attempts to eliminate these outposts at almost any cost suggest an extra-special dislike for surveillance of this particular area — which is all the outposts achieve. That points, in turn, to the extremely disagreeable, but increasingly strong possibility that Cambodia is now being used as a main supply base for the Viet Cong. Movement would be by ship to Sihanoukville, then north to Stung Treng and west by road to the border.

In addition, the main troops employed in the attack on Plei Me were certainly North Vietnamese regulars. They do not appear to have belonged to the North Vietnamese 125th Division, already identiifed as having invaded South Viet Nam. That points to a further invasion of South Viet Nam by at least a regiment and perhaps another whole division from the North.

These are the hints of danger—and pretty serious they are. The glint of hope, which is also most important, is obviously inherent in the entire pattern of the fighting around Plei Me. The surprise attack on an isolated outpost, accompanied by a carefully contrived ambush of the relieving column, has been the main offensive stunt of the guerrillas in Viet Nam for about 20 years. It almost always worked to perfection in the old days.

Quick Retaliation

It has not worked in the last six months, however, for two sternly practical reasons. Our airpower in Viet Nam has been, and is still being, vastly increased. Thus, the attackers of an outpost can expect, nowadays, to come under the heaviest sort of air attack within an hour or so. (Later, the "reaction time," as it is called, will be reduced to five minutes.) In addition, power on the ground has been so much increased that ambushes are seldom paying propositions.

All this is so meaningful because of its obvious implication. When a general knows that his favorite stunt will not work in a new situation, yet goes on using the same old stunt at dreadful cost, it implies that the general in question does not know which way to turn.

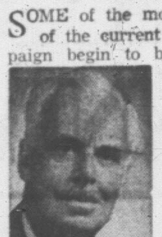
By JAMES H. GRAY

Old-Time Fervor Lost



Gray

SOME of the most interesting aspects of the current federal election campaign begin to become apparent only when you veer out of the cities into the countryside. Perhaps most striking is the disappearance of the election poster. If there is one thing all parties are agreed upon, it is the wisdom of economizing on billboards, bumper stickers and display cards. There was once a time when every rural telephone pole became festooned with campaign cards. Not any more. In a 2,000-mile tour the only places where this technique was still being used with the old enthusiatsm was in Selkirk and Springfield constituencies east of Winnipeg.

In these constituencies there was one obvious change from the old days—nobody was playing dirty pool. The cards were not being defaced by saboteurs from the other parties. One party's cards were not being nailed over another's. Dates of meetings being advertised were not being mischieviously re-arranged.

Puzzling

Perhaps there will be a blizzard of material in the closing stages of the campaign. Yet the lack of fluorescent colored bumper stickers is downright puzzling. Once one of the most universally popular American election gimmicks, we counted less than half a dozen on our tour.

On most of the billboards and posters, this is a campaign without issues, without slogans and almost without parties. It is a folksy campaign, in which the electors are urged to "need" Bill or Tom or Ernie. There is no confrontation of the electors with a challenging choice between "King or Chaos". There is only the plaintive appeal that Regina does need Bill Clark, though you could never prove that by the B.C. Lions. (Mr. Clark is a retired Regina Roughrider footballer).

With the smaller posters, as distinct from billboards, it is often necessary to stop the car and paw around in the small print to identify the party the candidate is representing. This, however, is not true of the Social Credit candidates in Alberta. They all use standard cards, obviously bought in quantity with provision for interchanging the pictures of the candidates.

As always, the Social Credit campaign in Alberta is largely under the surface. Premier Manning has been holding rallies, but the main campaign is being waged by the doorbell ringers. The Social Crediters, who invented radio politicking, and have always made good use of it, seem this year not to be on the air so often.

Indeed one of the strongest impressions one gets is the paucity of radio messaging. Travelling around Regina, for example, there seems to be five plugs for fluoridation to every one for a politician. In Saskatchewan the civic elections come in the first week in November and these are the elections which seem to be attracting the attention.

Silent Papers

Perhaps the strangest silence of all is that which engulfs the Saskatchewan newspapers. Both the Regina and Saskatoon papers are owned by the Sifton families of Toronto. Once mighty voices of Saskatchewan Liberalism, they are dragging their feet in this election clear up to their thighs.

For example, on the day after Mr. Pearson's visit, the Regina Leader-Post ran an anti-Pearson cartoon and devoted its main editorial to the box-car shortage. The Saskatoon Star-Phoenix also hammered away at the railways, and ran a long editorial lauding Ontario's medicare plan. In Alberta, on the same day, the Edmonton Journal was lambasting the provincial Social Crediters for advocating a $100 a year home owners' dividend, applauding the authentic Eskimos and approving Prince Charles' educational junket to Australia.

If the old-time religious fervor has disappeared from the newspapers, the general public may perhaps have come by its apathy naturally. But the general reaction of the people encountered en route seemed to hint that there was more than mere apathy involved.

Among the people a tourist encounters there was a curious unanimity of opinion that not much was going to be changed by the election.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

AN interesting hour or two can be spent on the banks of Goldstream along the middle reaches. Here the water swirls and eddies amongst the fallen logs that are scattered in the stream.

The many leaves in the water take on the shapes of boats, ranging from a squat tug to the more stately liner standing out to sea.

As they hit the riffles and miniature rapids they lift and dip; each type of leaf has a different way of running the rapids.

Looking down through the crystal-clear water you can see on the bottom many of the leaves that have become waterlogged. Here too they seem to have taken on a different shape.

As the leaves drift along you can often spot some insect that has become a passenger. In some instances you will see a tiny fingerling dart up and strike at the leaf. Perhaps it is after the insect that has alighted there.

As you wander along you will see a number of the little dippers or water ousels. They dart into the water and disappear only to bob up some distance away.

Watch them hop onto a log, then you will understand why they are called the dipper. They are never still but always bobbing up and down.

Overhead on some branch you will see the kingfisher watching. If he spots a small fish in the stream he will dart like an arrow into the water for his catch.

Perhaps if you are very quiet you may see one of the great Blue Herons standing in the shallows waiting for a meal. At the slightest danger he will take off as silently as a shadow.

To the Editor

"Trash"?

Would people who called the Peace Action League supporters "trash" also call Christ, Pope Paul, Linus Pauling, Brock Chisholm and Albert Schwietzer trash? The two older ladies at Mr. Hunter's Oak Bay meeting, one who so angrily dismissed these sincere people with this one word and the other who spat at one of the demonstrators, should seriously think of Christ's words from the Sermon on the Mount, "Blessed are the peacemakers; for they shall be called the Children of God." These two, and all others who think themselves to be Christians, may also support disarmament after re-reading St. Matthew, chapter 5, verses 43 to 48.

It is a great mistake to assume that young people who protest against war are trash. Surely it is now clear that anyone who speaks out for peace is serious and should have his opinion considered very carefully. I believe that the young people who are protesting have learned from the horrible mistakes of previous generations.—Mrs. V. Willis, 1B, 811 St. Charles.

Reward for The Artist

By TONY EMERY

Emery

THE strange spasm that from time to time contorts my mobile features is meant to be what the cliche experts call "a wry smile". It is occasioned by the memory of my innocence in supposing that the academic life was going to provide me with a great deal of time for reading. I imagined — and the fatuity of it now makes me gasp and writhe—that there would be hours, nay days, spent in the cosy womb of the university library, browsing through the great monuments of scholarship, and snacking away at the periodical literature, with occasional refreshment from a novel of genius.

I assumed, of course, that the life of a university teacher would be much like the life that I led as an undergraduate, only with more time to pursue my own interests in the field of learning.

Price of Academic Freedom

I discovered—much too late—that the price of academic freedom is endless committee meetings and other activities of an important but time-consuming nature. Far from spending hours in the library, I am hard put to it to find time to read the newspaper: the journals and periodicals I subscribe to sit in their plain brown wrappers for weeks waiting to be read: the list of books that I want to read, and the longer list of works that I ought to read, grow inexorably from day to day. I truly believe that only the timely investment in a boat that put me out of reach of the telephone enabled me to get my reading done this past summer.

But if I go on about my troubles you will want to start telling me about yours, and I couldn't stand that. Suffice it for now that these maunderings are prompted by the fact that it has taken me until now to find the time to read the memoir, published in 1962, of his disinguisehd father by Jean Renoir. It is a long book of 400 pages, and it unfolds in a leisurely manner that surprises one, in view of the crisp cinematic technique that has gained for Jean Renoir an eminence in the field of motion pictures that comes near to being comparable to the fame earned by his father with brush and palette.

Portrait of the Man

However, for all its length and occasional prolixity, it does offer a valuable and comprehensive portrait of Renoir as a man to offset the critical biographies by art historians, which too often depict a painter as a painting machine churning out works to be pigeon-holed and classified.

Vollard the dealer, it is true, wrote a book called "Renoir: An Intimate Record," but the painter, his son tells us, used to say of this pious work: "Not bad, Vollard's book on Vollard." Renoir was not an easy subject for the biographer, since he did not commonly reveal his innermost thoughts in conversation. (Who does?) Even his son did not come to know his father well until he was 21 and convalescing from a wound in 1915. By then old Renoir was 74, a widower and crippled with the arthritis he had battled since 1899. When the light was gone at the end of the day he would sit in his wheelchair and smoke, content to pass the evening in conversation with his son. (He couldn't stand electric light. "Bottled light," he called it, "only fit for corpses.")

'Intransigents'

The book abounds in what reviewers call "insights" into Renoir's development as a painter and as a man, from his early apprenticeship as a porcelain-painter in his teens, through his early worship of the Barbizon painters Diaz and Daubigny, to his meeting with Bazille and Monet and Sisley at the studio run by the Swiss painter Gleyre, and the formation of the small band of "Intransigents" that was to lead to the school of so-called "Impressionists."

It is interesting to discover that the Rabelaisian Renoir is an invention of biographers who did not know him well. When taxed beyond endurance he would occasionally express himself with a certain pungency, but normally, Jean says, he was prudish in conversation, by French standards. That he was no puritan, however, his painting makes amply —and I use the word advisedly—clear. "Don't trust anybody who doesn't get excited at the sight of a pretty breast," is a favorite remark of his.

Manet Judgment

We know from other sources that Manet did his best to dissuade Renoir, as tactfully as he could, from devoting his life to painting, because he could see no evidence of talent. It is interesting to learn that Renoir had the same low opinion of Gauguin's artistic possibilities. Like Degas, Renoir reserved his strongest antipathies for the profession of architecture.

"The modern architect is, generally speaking, art's greatest enemy," he said. And to someone who opposed war-like toys for children he suggested that it was far more dangerous to give them building blocks, because "they might grow up to be architects." Perhaps his wisest words, as true today as ever befor, were: "The only reward one should offer an artist is to buy his work."

ALTER EGO

Once a book gets under way and begins to take shape, a curious kinship is born between the creator and the created that seems to me to have no real parallel in any other occupation, not even that of the dramatist whose work is brought to life by other professionals. If the book is any good, the people in it become more real than the people who actually inhabit the author's narrow world. When they suffer, he suffers. When they're successful in love and commerce he rejoices and counts the profits. When they die, something of him dies.

Campaign Heavily Slanted To Folks Down on Farm

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA—This is the last election before the farmers lose their traditional greater say than city folks in deciding the outcome on polling day, and John Diefenbaker is in hot pursuit of the farm vote.

Waring

The erstwhile Saskatchewan farm boy is promising eastern farmers just about everything but passports to Heaven if they vote Tory on Nov. 8. Such as:

- A national dairy board that will guarantee farmers $4 per cwt for milk used by industry;
- Acreage payments—$2 an acre up to a maximum of $400 per farmer;
- Expansion of Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act projects;
- Establishment of a national council for eastern agriculture;
- Crop insurance legislation;
- A feed grain policy which will give eastern farmers feed grain "at prices which are fair and reasonable";
- Increased federal subsidization of hay and feed grain for drought-stricken farmers.

* * *

An' that ain't all, Hiram. You vote Tory and you can borrow money for a car, a TV, a washer or new furniture at low interest rates that John says "will be a tremendous relief to the people."

You own the old homestead that Grampaw built, and you paid $128 on it last year in municipal taxes. John says that if he's elected prime minister, he'll fix it so home-owners won't have to pay income tax on the money they pay the municipality.

He's also going to knock off the 11 per cent Ottawa sales tax on building materials like the cement and nails and roofing paper you need to fix the creamery and hay barn. And when you get to be 70 he's going to pay you $100 a month just to set and listen to the grass grow.

Attempting not to be outshone, Prime Minister Pearson announced a farm vote program that closely matches Mr. Diefenbaker on milk prices, crop insurance, feed grains and ARDA, and lays out Grit goodies like:

- Government purchase and redevelopment of uneconomic farms and their sale back to farmers;
- A service to give advice on farm management;
- A new farm housing program;
- Coverage of full-time farm workers by unemployment insurance;
- Marketing legislation to cover beet sugar and other unspecified products.

* * *

Stacked side by side, Mr. Diefenbaker's program looks like more cash in the farmer's pocket than does Mr. Pearson's program, however superior the latter may be for improving the health of the agricultural economy. Then, too, the Liberal program was not announced until Oct. 6, allowing Mr. Diefenbaker to get there fustest with what to many farmers will look like the mostest—especially when they add up the Tory leader's other promises of general application, such as his $25 increase in old age pensions. Down on the farm the old folks live with their grown children, and pensions are supplemental family income.

So I expect the Conservatives will pick up a handful of seats from the Grits in rural Ontario, while in rural Quebec, where there is a great deal of farm dissatisfaction, Tory chances don't look as hopeless as they did at the start of the campaign.

Veto Evasion Not Accepted By Russians

By WILLIAM R. FRYE
Times UN Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS—The Kremlin still is engaged in hard in-fighting over the right to control not merely the Kashmir peace operation but all UN peace operations in the future.

The so-called Article 19 fight did not settle this question. All it settled, UN people point out, was whether financing of peace-keeping actions was to be voluntary or compulsory. Russia succeeded in establishing that it would henceforth be voluntary.

However, the Kremlin has made clear it hopes for much more. Russia long has wanted full control, including control over the purse strings, to rest in the hands of the Security Council, where she has veto power.

The UN being highly precedent-minded, any action taken in Kashmir directly affects expectations of what will happen elsewhere in the future.

One device for circumventing the Soviet veto has been transfer of an issue from the 11-nation Security Council, to the 117-nation General Assembly, which operates by two-thirds majority.

Spell Out Rights

Ireland, a prime advocate of "residual" assembly jurisdiction, made a speech Oct. 25 urging that assembly rights be spelled out and regularized.

Soviet delegate Fedorenko's blast in the Security Council followed a few hours later.

A second means of evading Russia's veto is the practice of passing generalized authorizations and leaving it to the executive—the secretary-general—to "interpret" them in practice. "Leaving it to Dag" became standard practice in the Hammarskjold era.

This practice has sharply reduced Russia's freedom to block actions, since generalized statements of high-minded objectives are often hard to oppose.

Having less freedom to block UN action, the Soviet Union has had less influence on the preliminary process of policy formulation. Fedorenko was attempting to restore Russia's political power by insisting—rather belatedly, U.S. Ambassador Goldberg pointed out—on a tighter rein on Thant.

Minimize Rift

United States sources sought this week to minimize the rift between Moscow and Washington, pointing out that the disagreement over peacekeeping was of long standing and was not directly related to the merits of the Kashmir problem.

Goldberg authorized the statement that he was "confident" the Security Council would "proceed to a unanimous resolution" once again, as it had done four times previously in the Kashmir crisis.

However, observers noted that this unanimity would be likely to be purchased, if at all, at the price of omitting or severely playing down all reference to political negotiations on Kashmir's future and concentrating instead on urging troop withdrawals.

This is what Fedorenko made clear he wanted, and he thus would be winning one fairly important thing he sought. In a small way, his drive for increased influence would be paying off.

Victory for India

It also would be a minor victory for India, which is resisting political negotiations, and an infuriating defeat for Pakistan which could prompt her once again to attempt military pressure on India.

Secretary-General U Thant tried to avoid the whole Soviet outburst by offering four Soviet-bloc countries—Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Romania—a role in UNIPOM, the new observer team.

Their only response, however, was a series of questions, and when the questions were answered, silence. Meanwhile, in private consultations with Thant and others, Russia began resisting expansion of the observer force.

Thant had hoped Moscow could be lured into full participation in UN peacekeeping, instead of heel-dragging, but apparently the hope was stillborn.

News Highlights of the Week

Kashmir Dispute Still Troubling UN; Soviets Threaten Rhodesian Intervention

By PETER MURRAY, Times-Wire News Editor

The United Nations this week marked the 20th anniversary of the adoption of its charter for world peace and co-operation, two goals that seemed as far off as ever.

The India-Pakistan dispute over Kashmir, simmering in relative quiet for a month, was on the verge of exploding again. Both nations have locked themselves into fixed positions from which neither can retreat.

Accusing each other of "outrageous violations," they recalled their respective high commissioners and threatened to break off diplomatic relations entirely, a step they never took during their 32-day undeclared war last month.

At the UN, India stalked out of the Security Council when Pakistan likened Indian atrocities in Kashmir to the Nazi horrors of the Second World War.

The Soviet Union stepped into the dispute by accusing UN Secretary-General U Thant of exceeding his powers in sending extra observers to patrol the 1,000-mile ceasefire line.

A Canadian heads up the UN truce team and Russia is concerned because most of the members come from NATO countries.

The Soviet proposed that a three-month deadline be set on the peace mission and all decisions affecting it be made by the Security Council, not the Secretary-General.

●

Russia also intervened for the first time in another trouble spot: Rhodesia.

It pledged full support for the Negroes against the "racist regime" of Premier Ian Smith and threatened direct action if Britain allows a unilateral declaration of independence by the colony.

This prompted a beleaguered Prime Minister Harold Wilson to describe the crisis as "My Cuba."

Wilson continued his talks in Salisbury with Smith and achieved an agreement to form a royal commission on means of providing constitutional guarantees for the Negro majority.

●

Another Latin America upheaval took place in Brazil where President Humberto Castelo Branco, balked by Congress, seized dictatorial powers.

Costeo decreed an "Institutional Act" which gives him greater authority than any Brazilian leader has had since the wartime rule of Getulio Vargas.

He went into action after deputies sympathetic to former presidents Joao Goulart and Juscelino Kutitschek thwarted his attempt to bolster power through constitutional amendments.

CASTELLO BRANCA
. . . takes full control

Under the new decree political parties are abolished and military courts are empowered to deal with political offences.

Castello can now proclaim a six-month "state of siege" and take over the governments of Brazil's 22 states to "prevent or suppress subversion."

The decree also provides that the next president will be elected by Congress rather than by popular vote.

Deadline for the election is October 3, 1966, if the regime lasts that long.

Following the power grab Justice Minister Juracy Magalhaes attempted to assure Brazilians that Costello would rule with moderation.

"The President is not capable of an act which would compromise his government's faith in democracy," he said.

●

Two widely-separated news stories during the week gave further indication that Canada's reputation as a stolid, somewhat colorless nation is undergoing a change in the world.

In Syracuse, N.Y., some obviously experienced burglars cracked open the vault of a Brink's Armored Car office and made off with an estimated $400,000.

Almost immediately the FBI let it be known that the job was probably the work of a "Canadian gang."

And in Britain two London newspapers published simultaneous surveys showing that Canada is the world's most affluent country.

When it comes to household possessions, we're the "champions in high living," said the Daily Express.

●

When nominations closed for Canada's Nov. 8 election, there were a total of 1,013 candidates for the 265 seats at stake, 10 less than the record number of 1963.

Both Liberals and Conservatives are contesting every riding, while the New Democrats have 255 candidates in the running. Social Credit is far behind with 87 and the Creditistes have 76, all but one in Quebec.

With the campaign about to enter the final week, the Gallup Poll and most other surveys showed the Liberals still holding an edge.

●

Elsewhere, in brief:

The U.S. suffered a setback in its bid to be the first nation to put a man on the moon when the Gemini 6 experimental rendezvous flight failed . . .

Civil rights groups planned new demonstrations in the South following the acquittal of a Ku Klux Klansman in the night-rider slaying of a white woman . . .

Canada signed a new wheat sale agreement with China that may be expanded over the next five years to be worth a total of $900 million . . .

The European Common Market attempted to end a four-month stalemate by inviting France to resume its seat at the negotiating table . . .

A veterans' convention of Hitler's storm troopers in West Germany complained they are being maligned unfairly because they were in fact "fighting for a better world, just like the American, English, Russian, and all other soldiers."

One Political Feather Makes No Dove of Truth

By ART STOTT

AS I remember the story through the haze of years, Olive Schreiner's "Hunter" started out as a young man to capture the dove of truth. In his old age, after a life-long quest, he had caught one feather from the dove.

Stott

The truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, is a hard dove to catch in spite of the fact that our courts demand its production from every witness giving evidence in a trial.

The Schreiner allegory comes to mind as I compare and contrast statements on the hustings in the current campaign. I suppose, though I have not read any, that more than one learned treatise has been published on the relativity of truth—one of the "absolutes" of the old Oxford Group philosophy.

It seems to me that some candidates pluck a feather from the dove of truth—in the narrow sense that they extract a minor fraction from the pronouncement of an opponent. From the feather they recreate the bird in the manner of a paleontologist building the model of a dinosaur from the toe bone he may have found. I've never seen a dinosaur, so I accept the reconstruction by the paleontologist of something like a professional wrestler 10 times life size.

* * *

On the other hand, I have read some of the statements made by some politicians, plus their reconstruction by rivals, and somehow it seems to me that the feather didn't give the political paleonlologists enough to go on. The product is no dove of truth. On occasions, it's a turkey. On others it is a very unusual bird indeed, so undovelike that it suggests little of truth and less of the quality with which Mr. Picasso's work on the subject has been endowed.

It is compassionate not to impute improper motives to the gentlemen who do the rebuilding job, not to suggest that someone's words have been "twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools." The compassionate explanation is to assume that the transformation is the result of a psychological wish motive. A politician can, if he rationalizes enough, make an anagram of another's phrase—and do it almost unconsciously when it suits his purpose.

Next to politicians, children demonstrate the practice most obviously.

The small redhead in our house provided an example the other day. Pat and I had planned a weekend alone at Shawnigan—selfish of us, but we thought we could benefit from the rest and the escape from constant concern that the little man might fall in if we didn't keep an eye on him every minute. We intended to leave for the lake after the office day was finished.

The redhead arrived at the breakfast table that day and asked, "Art, are you going to Shawnigan this morning?"

I told him that Pat and I were going in the late afternoon and he turned to leave the room. At the door he remembered his manners, twisted his head around and said, "Thank you." Then we heard him shouting to his mother. "It's all right. Pat and Art are going to take me to Shawnigan."

* * *

Moments later, his mother came in with an explanation. "I think Gordon got his question a little twisted. I asked him to ask you if you'd drive him to nursery school this morning, not if you'd take him to the lake."

The mental mechanics were understandable. He didn't particularly want me to drive him to school. He did want me to take him to Shawnigan. So, with a small modification of the request his mother had conveyed to him, he was able to advance the idea he wanted to advance, even if it deviated a bit from the original.

A few days earlier I had picked him up at the school and noticed a small mouse under his right eye. Across the playground a boy about the same size was holding a handkerchief to a split lip.

The lady in charge caught the direction of my glances and said musingly: "You don't have to worry about Gordon. Nobody's going to push him around. You've got a future prime minister there."

Perhaps so. He shows an early political aptitude to make somebody else's statement conform to his own wishes.

When it comes to the dove of truth—well, maybe that's not my pigeon.

THE GALLUP POLL

Majority Feel Liberals Assist Many Groups

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Generally speaking, Canadians do not feel any undue apprehension that the Liberal government in Ottawa is favoring one group in this century over another. But nearly a decade ago public opinion was pretty evenly divided on this subject.

Today almost half the population (47%) do not think the Liberals are favoring any one group. Twenty-eight per cent say they are and 25% have no opinion. In 1956, 37% of the voters thought the Liberal government of that day was favoring one group over others and 36% said it was not.

Professional and white collar people are least critical of the Liberal government on this score.

But when Gallup Poll interviewers further questioned the almost three in ten adults who accuse the Liberals of supporting one group over another, 50% said Quebec. And, turning the penny over, from French Canada came one complaint, "English-speaking Canadians." An army officer in British Columbia was unique in his answer—"Time and Readers' Digest magazines," he said.

The question: "Do you think the Liberal government in Ottawa is favoring any one group in this country more than another?"

	1956	Today
Yes	37%	28%
No	36	47
No opinion	27	25
	100%	100%

Those who feel that the Liberal government does favor one group over another were then asked to name what group:

1—Quebec, French-Canadians	50%
2—English-speaking Canada	21
3—Big business	10
4—Favor themselves	7
5—Other groups	7
6—Can't say	7

Western Screw-Top Civilization Eroding Eating Habits of Orient

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH

SINGAPORE—In Singapore, it is time for getting fat. Hardly has the local Food Carnival of Chinese, Malay and Indian cooking ended, and the memory of a whole chicken, wrapped in paper and baked in a bed of hot salt, reluctantly faded, than Food Industry Month is upon us.

There are to be lectures on eating, cooking competitions, and demonstrations of modern precision machinery shredding shark's fin, packaging noodles, mincing and casing the interesting ingredients of Chinese sausages.

But switch on the TV and Dr. Kildare with Tamil subtitles is interrupted by clattering Cantonese voices urging hitherto happy Singaporeans to buy American fruit juices and British baby foods, bottled essence of chicken and extracts of beef, deep-frozen fish-fingers and canned Scotch broth, Irish lager or instant coffee.

Under the assault of the screw-top civilization from the West, the eating habits of Asia begin — if very slowly — to change.

But the East is fighting a stubborn rearguard action. During the recent anniversary celebrations of the Chinese People's Republic, foreign journalists visiting Peking were offered a delectable dog dinner.

The Chinese, often repelled by the smell of a kipper or a cut of Stilton, are partial to the exotic, although the dish known as "Tiger, Phoenix and Dragon Fighting" is in fact only a subtle melange of cat, cock and snake. They are catholic in their tastes, and among their delicacies are bird's nest, fish lips, duck's heads, fruitbat, monitor lizards, fresh turtle, and three-month-old "hundred-year-old" eggs.

The Japanese are famous for their fish dishes, including fugu, the much-prized killer that can only be served by a cook with a special licence, for if he punctures its poison sac he will have one customer less in a matter of minutes. And they will do much for a good fish. More than 200 "kamikaze" fishermen were drowned earlier this month when they flirted too intimately with typhoon "Carmen" in their eagerness to catch bonit.

Laos Specialty

The Laotians like chicken stuffed with peanuts and cooked in coconut milk, ants' eggs and the placenta of the mother-cow, and they specialize in moulding clay around a chicken or fish and baking it in red-hot embers without using any pots.

A good Burmese tid-bit is a wedge of deep-fried buffalo skin, cracklier than any cocktail crisp.

In Borneo they go for snake gourds and green pineapple cooked as a vegetable.

Koreans use heavy silver chopsticks (which supposedly turn black if the food is poisoned) to eat the national dish of "Kimchi," three-month-buried pickled vegetables that give them a breath which takes everyone else's away.

The Vietnamese peasant survives on Nuoc Mam, a similarly vivid sauce made by packing salted fish in a jar to rot.

But they all have one thing in common: they eat these dishes with rice, the rice the Burmese call "wun sa"—"food for the womb"—the life-giver. And with fruit. For this is a great fruit-growing area, and in some parts of the Philippines, even the avocado is so common that peasants feed it to the pigs.

The vegetarian Buddhists have such resources that they can produce a banquet of succulent fish and meat dishes made entirely from soya beans and fruits.

This fruit-to-flesh miracle was worked last week in a far more curious way, however. A papaya placed as an offering on the altar of a Buddhist temple in Singapore was found, when cut open, to have no seeds, but instead a growth that startlingly resembled the hand of Buddha in the act of blessing.

It is a good omen, say the priests. Watching the TV commercials, I begin to think we need one.

FILM STORAGE SHELVES

Stash Those Movies In Neat Little Rows

By PAULINE GRAVES

Hobbies are wonderful.

Most of them, however, require storage for equipment, and if the hobby involves collecting, a place for the collection is needed.

If you are a devotee of home movies, you are not exactly a collector, but the more pictures you take, the more reels you accumulate, and to stash them away in the linen closet isn't the answer.

Here is a closet, it could be a cupboard, that solves the problem of storing home movie equipment and the film reels.

Most noteworthy feature is the shelf arrangement with tracks both top and bottom to hold each reel upright, separate from his fellows.

Shelves are made of 1"x8"s, spaced to accommodate the diameter of 8 mm. film reels, with just a little clearance.

One-half inch wooden strips, one-inch apart, glued to tops and bottoms of the shelves, create grooves in which the reels can stand.

The advantage of this arrangement over individual slots made by full length dividers is that the reels can be more easily seen when labelled, and they are more easily handled.

As the library grows, shelves can be added.

BUT RESIST PLANING

Remedy Sticky Problem

By MR. FIX

Sticking and binding doors are a common problem in most households, a nuisance but one that you can remedy with little effort.

Resist the temptation of reaching for a plane and taking a little off the edges.

More conservative remedies generally will cure the condition. Remember that a door may swell in hot, humid weather but contracts during cold.

Reducing the size of the door in the summer leaves you with a door with gaps around it in the winter, a door that leaks in cold air while warm air escapes.

Doors often stick because hinges are loose. Open the door and check the screws in the hinges. Tighten them.

A small amount of play in a hinge, a slight sag in the door and the result is binding.

With time it may be difficult to tighten the screws sufficiently. If the wood is badly chewed up, remove the screws and fill the holes.

Use wood pegs dipped in glue and then driven in or fill with plastic wood. The screws can then be put back and they will hold. Get new screws if the old ones are rusted or worn.

If tightening loose hinges doesn't cure the trouble, then check the door carefully to see where it is binding. Close the door and run a thin piece of cardboard around it.

If the door sticks at the bottom, insert a piece of cardboard under the hinge leaf—the part on the door frame. The process is known as shimming. It takes patience and the willingness to experiment. One thickness of cardboard may not be enough. Keep trying. Binding at the top can be cured by shimming the top hinge.

REMOVE HINGE PIN

When you do this job, remove the door by knocking out the hinge pin. Do this by placing a screwdriver at the base of the pin and hitting it upward with a hammer.

Set the door aside and you can work on the hinge leaf remaining on the frame.

Sometimes hinges are set too deep in the mortise, causing the door to bind.

This sort of trouble exists when a door is difficult to close, springs open unless you slam it. Only half a shim is needed here.

Without removing the door, loosen the hinge and slip a narrow strip of cardboard under the back part of the leaf—the part near the pin.

Slip a wedge under the door to hold it open while you work.

Shimming this way swings the door around into the opening, permits it to close easier.

If nothing else works, then you will have to cut away some of the door. Use sandpaper and a file before resorting to a plane. Do not remove more wood than necessary.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Proceed with rearrangement of layout and the planting of trees and shrubs of all kinds.

Gather leaves and stack in layers with other types of vegetation, dusting each layer with a complete fertilizer and watering well.

Grub out decayed or useless old orchard trees, and replant with something more useful and ornamental.

Lift acidanthera corms and treat as gladiolus corms. Lift tigridia tubers, and store in nearly dry soil in frost-free place.

Schedule outdoor work for fine days, and the potting, cleaning of corms, and putting in of cuttings, for indoors during wet weather.

Finish cleaning the greenhouse glass, both inside and out. You'll be pleased with the increased light.

The south end, right to floor level, is most important during winter for most sunlight comes in quite low on that side.

Continue the cultivation and general care of those valuable winter vegetables still growing.

BEASTALL ADVISES:

Greenhouse Without Shed Like Car Without Engine

By JACK BEASTALL

A greenhouse without a work shed or potting shed attached always reminds me of an automobile without an engine: being incomplete it cannot be operated conveniently or efficiently.

Jack

A potting shed serves many purposes, not the least of which is a cosy retreat where indoor gardening can be indulged when outside conditions are far from pleasant.

The shed is usually attached to the north end of the greenhouse and in this position it automatically protects the portion of the glass structure which is coldest in winter.

STORAGE PLACE

It provides a storage place for the hundred-and-one things that are needed in connection with the smooth and efficient operation of the greenhouse itself, things such as soil, compost, sand, pots, sieves, sprays, fertilizers, rooting hormones, sprayers, watering cans and the small hand tools that are so often misplaced.

It also provides an incentive to keep the greenhouse in operation throughout the year, especially when comfort is catered to by adding lighting and an electric or an old coal-burning heater.

The simplest lean-to wooden structure lined with tarpaper or old cardboard cartons can be paradise to the avid gardener.

Through the winter cuttings can be potted, house plants repotted, bulbs potted for indoor flowering, seeds sown in shallow boxes for later use in coldframes or open garden.

Quite often beginners seek a definite plan on which to base the layout of their shed, a commendable desire but difficult to fulfil.

LAYOUTS DIFFER

In common with any workshop, the interior layout depends on the type of work to be done, the amounts and kinds of materials to be stored, and the most convenient positioning of fixtures according to the operations that will be carried out.

With me it has always been a rule, when planning a permanent work area, to first provide a "temporary" layout that can be easily rearranged for greater convenience and more pleasant working.

My first potting shed was a large structure, 10 by 15 feet, full of possibilities but devoid of any fixtures.

Several plans were drawn but there was always some unknown quantity that prevented them being finalized.

A start was made with a bench 10x4 ft. mounted on temporary legs.

Three packing cases were placed under the bench, one for sand, one for compost, and one for sterilized soil.

Four packing cases were stacked on top of one another for pots, and two more with shelves added for tools and sundries.

An old enamel sink on a wooden stand had a bucket for a drain, and a hose from a wall tap for its water supply.

WORKABLE PLAN

A winter was spent with this "temporary" equipment. During that time the arrangement was frequently changed and by spring a definite [illegible] workable plan had evolved.

It was found that a certain angle of light on the bench was important; that the sand bin need be only one-quarter as large as the soil bin; that the sizes of pots most frequently used were best located at bench level rather than in order of size from top to bottom of the rack.

When the bench position and height was determined the packing cases were replaced with built-in bins for sand and soil, each of a suitable size for a good supply, and these made a solid base for the bench top.

The sink finally became an extension to one end of the bench and the tool cabinets on the other end.

TOOL POCKETS

A series of "tool pockets" extended along the back of the bench, into which knives, dibbers, various sizes of pricking-out sticks, a small hammer and screwdriver, and other odds and ends were dropped.

A wooden cover to fit the sink gave increased bench space when needed.

Rubber mats to stand on were made from perished rubber hoses cut into 36-inch lengths, sufficient lengths being wired together to make a 12-inch by 36-inch mat.

No change has been found necessary in this layout for the last 15 years which, I think, proves that it is wise to use a make-shift, temporary arrangement until it is possible to determine from experience what constitute the most efficient and most pleasant working conditions.

LOOKING AROUND AT ART

By ROBIN SKELTON

Jorgensen Paintings Reveal Long Step Forward

Skelton

It is always exciting to observe a painter beginning to break new ground and to develop his abilities in unexpected ways. Flemming Jorgensen's one-man exhibition at Victoria's Art Gallery is exciting in this way.

We have, over the last few years, become used to identifying a Jorgensen by the way in which broad dark brushstrokes were used to dramatize and counterpoint a generalized landscape that was most frequently presented in a neatly contrived patchwork of hot yellows and sombre greens.

We have learned to think of his palette as containing browns, greens and yellows, together with a fair quantity of thickly-mixed white.

Though there are one or two pictures with this coloring in the present show, their compositions have a new vitality and freedom. Bush Country, Saanich Farm, and Spring Deluge are recognizable as Jorgensens of the usual kind, but they are much more subtle than usual.

Bush Country does not merely place a static dark form against the sombre landscape; it creates a whole network of moving forms which writhe like briars and are much more closely related to their pictorial context than previously.

Spring Deluge is also an advance upon earlier landscapes; the earth and sky are both made subject to a driving rain expressed in harsh rhythmic slashes of paint, and, because of the way in which the different areas of color have been allowed to melt into one another, the whole painting has that unfocussed mist-dimmed quality which the title suggests.

These three paintings; along with Midsummer are among the finest Jorgensen landscapes that I have seen.

One might, of course, have predicted these paintings. They differ more in quality than in style from earlier works. One could not, however, have predicted the series of large vivid paintings which dominate the show.

In these Jorgensen has made use of a much brighter palette. Instead of contrasting yellows and greens, he is now contrasting vivid reds with equally vivid blues.

Instead of dealing in roughly outlined asymmetrical areas, he is presenting us with clearly defined areas that are sometimes almost geometrical.

And against these areas, which clearly derive from currently fashionable "hard-edge" painting, he has placed, not broad dark brushstrokes but much more complex shapes created in various tones.

I do not myself think these paintings succeed. Blue Interior and Vase with Flowers please me the most, but even here I feel that an enjoyment of the decorative possibilities of the new style have led the painter's attention away from more serious matters.

The forms that explode, or burgeon, in counterpoint to the hard-edged vivid backgrounds are not fully exploited.

The way the paint has been applied does not appear to relate to its function within the whole composition. Thus areas which the composition tells us we should regard as of primary significance become secondary to the vitality and power of the surrounding clashes of color.

Nevertheless, these paintings are clearly a most courageous and rewarding step forward for Jorgensen himself.

He has broken free of old constrictions, has begun fresh explorations, and if he can only continue to explore with this boldness and vitality we are going to see some really magnificent pictures in the not-too-distant future.

My excitement at these two batches of paintings has left me little space to comment upon the remaining work in the show. I must, however, find room to direct your attention towards the series of bird paintings.

These owe something to Herbert Siebner's similar manipulation of simplified symbolic forms against plain backgrounds, but the debt is not excessive.

Indeed, several of these have a quite individual force and vision; I was myself particularly attracted to Sentinel where the splayed figure of the bird is placed high up in the picture area, and where the background is cunningly organized into two pseudo-rectangular areas, one being placed inside the other.

There is real movement here and real tension.

This, like so many of the works in this show—and I have not mentioned the drawings, one or two of which are excellent, and one or two disastrous—indicates that Flemming Jorgensen is becoming a painter to be reckoned with.

There is both achievement and promise here. What more could one ask?

CANADIAN-BORN sculptress, Maryon Kantaroff, is one of three Canadian artists selected to represent this country at the Commonwealth Biennale of Abstract Art which opens at the Commonwealth Institute in London next week. A graduate in art and archaeology from the University of Toronto, Miss Kantaroff was awarded a Canada Council art scholarship seven years ago which took her to the Chelsea College of Art in London. Seen here with one of her sculptures, she is now established in the European art scene and has recorded [illegible] group and one-man shows.

GOOD HANDWRITING, by John C. Tarr. J. M. Dent and Sons Ltd., 1965. 107 pp. $1.85.

Reviewed by Margaret Garrison

Mr. Tarr, an accomplished authority on all letter forms, has written a comprehensive manual which shows how good handwriting may be acquired. He advocates the chancery script as being simple to execute, yet distinct and legible.

He gives complete instructions for developing this script with many pictorial examples to guide the reader and to demonstrate its success as a practical style.

Besides practical instruction Mr. Tarr has shown the historical development of written letters from prehistoric pictures and symbols to modern printing methods and forms.

Thus he combines comprehensive instruction with interesting historical background.

Profound Sympathy Key To Honest Understanding

WHEN WE BECOME MEN; by Naomi Mitchison. Collins. $4.

Reviewed by Howard Gerwing

Mrs. Mitchison, "now a Mokgatla, accepted by her tribe, and by others of the people of Bechuanaland," succeeds in creating a very real and exciting picture of Africa.

Obviously, as has been the case with so many English novelists before her, Mrs. Mitchison has not found the blackness of skin a barrier to communication. She achieves an understanding of Man in Africa that appears to be both honest and accurate.

The key to this understanding is not Europeanization of the tribes, but rather a profound sympathy for those people who belong to small countries, to minor powers, where posture and false pride are kept to a minimum, and honest self-appraisal and good cheer are raised to a maximum.

Mrs. Mitchison's search for a just society has led her into much studying and writing, as well as many years service in public office. She served 20 years as a member of the Highland and Island Advisory Panel in Scotland.

She has produced numerous books on the early Greeks and Romans and prehistorical cultures. She was made an officer of the French Academy in 1924. And now she is surrounded by a changing Africa.

Urbanization and the larger political organization must come to Africa, but, for Mrs. Mitchison, there are still great benefits to be gathered from the old traditions of tribal life. She works this theme very skillfully into the plot of her novel.

Isaac, the hero of the novel, distrusts tribalism, but it is a tribe of Bechuanaland that gives him refuge when he flees for his life from South Africa. It is also the warmth and intimacy of personal relationships within the tribe that renew his faith in himself and give him the strength to return to a near-hopeless struggle for freedom.

Letlotse, the young European-educated chief, also discovers a new worth in his tribe, but only after he is nearly disinherited and destroyed by his evil cousin. Adventure and love abound in the novel.

There are weak scenes in the book: such as the episode when Letlotse and his sister, surrounded by a crowd of indifferent white faces in a London cafe, arouse the sympathy of a middle-aged couple from Scotland; or, when the evil force of black magic and tribal superstition is extinguished by an old woman and a pillow.

But, in spite of an idealism that sometimes appears naive and minor errors of judgment, the book is a success.

There is a clearness and crispness of style, probably developed through the practice of writing for children, and there is a worthiness of purpose. Add these together and Mrs. Mitchison should attract a larger audience than she has heretofore enjoyed in Canada.

BUT TRADE DEVELOPED

Potential Not Realized

RUSSIAN AMERICA by Hector Chevigny. The MacMillan Company of Canada Ltd. 274 pages. (Maps show Russian colonies in Asia and North America. Index of important persons, and treaties.) $7.50.

Reviewed by M. Schierbeck

After perusing this book, many readers will be surprised, as I was myself, at the extent of the work performed by the Russians in the comparatively short period they possessed Alaska, from 1741 to 1867.

While the western part of the United States was still a rude frontier the Russians had explored the coasts from the Aleutions to California.

From their base in what is now Alaska they developed a trade extending from the Orient to New England. Their main export was furs, blue fox, fur seal and the valuable sea otter from the seemingly inexhaustible supply in the North Pacific.

The capital, New Archangel, had 10 times as many inhabitants as San Francisco at this time.

A cathedral, a seminary, a college and two institutes for scientific research were established, but no medical service of any kind existed for many years.

The potential wealth of the economy was never realized by anybody who had not lived and worked there, and when Russia in 1867 sold it to the United States for $7,200,000, the general opinion in the States of the transaction was indicated in the name popularly used for it: Seward's Folly. Seward being Lincoln's Secretary of State who negotiated the purchase.

During the 126 years the colony belonged to Russia a number of outstanding men contributed to it's development in various ways. Some—Bering, Baranov, Shelikhov, Resanov — were explorers, colonizers and traders: others were more interested in intellectual and spiritual development. One of the most prominent in the latter group was a priest, Veniaminov.

He made so deep and lasting an impression on the natives, as a missionary, that many natives of Alaska still adhere to the Russian Orthodox faith.

The story of the colony and the men who founded and developed it is rich material, expertly handled by the author.

Mission Post Life After 300 Years

SAINTE-MARIE AMONG THE HURONS, by Wilfrid and Elsie Jury. Oxford University Press, 1965. 128 pp., index, photographs. $1.50.

Reviewed by Dr. R. H. Roy

First published in 1954, this book recently appeared in the new "Oxford in Canada Paperback" series—and if this is an indication of the quality of OUP paperbacks one can expect to see on the bookshelves, then this reviewer for one will be more than pleased.

Sainte-Marie Among the Hurons was the name of a missionary post close to Georgian Bay which flourished from 1639 to 1649.

Three hundred years later, an expedition sponsored by the University of Western Ontario and The Society of Jesuits set out to locate the post and restore it.

Well illustrated with photographs, Mr. Jury, who lead the expedition, gives a fascinating account of finding the fort, uncovering the foundations, and piecing together the history and life of those who lived beyond the fringe of civilization in New France.

In many ways it reads better than a detective novel, and despite its small size, it adds a delectable bit to the ever-increasing amount of Canadiana material.

Canadian Books Make Fine Showing

LONDON (CP)—"So much in common—so many contrasts."

With this slogan, the third and largest Commonwealth in Books exhibition went on show in London's Marlborough House, elegant red-brick home of the Commonwealth prime ministers' conferences.

Canada is well represented among the 1,000 books on show, covering almost every aspect of life in the diverse family of nations, but concentrating heavily on history, natural history and imaginative literature.

Among Canadian writers prominently displayed are novelists Mordecai Richler, Margaret Laurence and Hugh MacLennan; poets E. J. Pratt and Raymond Souster; humorist Stephen Leacock and the perennial Mazo de la Roche.

Opening the exhibition, Arnold Smith, the Canadian-born Commonwealth secretary-general, said the tragic hostilities and tensions which had come to the surface in recent weeks made what the Commonwealth stood for all the more important, even though they made Commonwealth relations all the more difficult.

Without the Commonwealth link, the Toronto-born diplomat said, the problems would be "even worse."

After three weeks in the capital, the exhibition, organized by Britain's National Book League, will be split up into sections to tour schools and libraries around the country.

Fine Cast Warms Chill Butterfly

By JOAN MASON HURLEY

It's wonderful how opera in Vancouver has developed. It's a far cry now from the days when as a student I used to save my allowance and take the midnight boat to see lacklustre performances in any available theatre.

The opening of Madama Butterfly on Thursday was brilliant with every seat in the Queen Elizabeth sold out and 80 per cent of the audience in full evening dress.

The hair-dos, gowns and exotic colored dinner jackets almost rivalled in glamor the production on stage.

But when the curtain rose on Puccini's own favorite of his operas, the audience faded into insignificance before Gail McCance's magical set.

There was Butterfly's house with its sliding panels against the blue sky and hills of Nagasaki, with steps, Oriental bridge, terrace and flowering cherry trees.

Madama Butterfly, performed much less frequently than La Boheme, has a modern psychological plot in which the heroine, Cho-Cho-San, is the victim of her own personality as well as of the perfidy of Lieut. Pinkerton.

Puccini first saw Butterfly as a stage play when he was in London for the opening of Tosca. Even though he knew no English he understood the story. This holds true of the opera.

Each of the characters is a personality and when developed consistently, and sung and acted with sympathy the words (in Italian) are immaterial.

In this respect all the satellite characters are particularly good in Vancouver's Butterfly.

There is Sharpless, the compassionate U.S. consul who warns Pinkerton that Cho-Cho-San does not take lightly the marriage he proposes.

This role, sung by Richard Torigi of New York, was done with real humanity and understanding.

The supporters included the faithful maid, Susuki, sung by Montrealer Fernande Chiocchio.

Excellent in their various ways were the marriage broker, Andre Lortie; the wicked uncle, Napoleon Bisson, and in the cameo part of Kate, Pinkerton's wife, Sophie Turko was perfectly charming.

Mietta Sighele, from La Scala and Rome, has sung the role of Butterfly many times and was brought especially to Vancouver for the part, as was William McAlpine from Covent Garden to play Pinkerton.

Miss Sighele has a fine voice, with a pure clear tone in the upper register. Unfortunately I found her an unsympathetic Butterfly.

She did not create for me the shy 15-year-old Geisha girl, in the way that Margo Fonteyn, a mature woman too, succeeded in achieving a 14-year-old Juliet.

William McAlpine, has a splendid tenor voice, but his tendency to strike an attitude before an aria is opera singing of the past and detracted from the believability of the part.

Some of the best moments were the love duet at the end of Act 1 and of course One Fine Day which Miss Sighele sang with great passion and feeling.

One of the most effective scenes was the end of the second act with the famous humming chorus.

The interior of Madame Butterfy's house with its oriental roof is silhouetted against a twilight sky. While she awaits Pinkerton with Susuki and the baby the darkness gradually descends and first Venus and then one after another the other stars appear in the sky. This scene alone was worth the trip to Vancouver.

Gail McCanee told me that he worked it all out on paper and had only two lighting rehearsals in the theatre.

The end of the opera was a disappointment. I had come prepared to emote with an extra handkerchief, but brought it home unused.

As Butterfly lies dying, her baby in her arms, having killed herself with her father's sword; Pinkerton and Sharpless, according to the score, come rushing in calling her name.

This is similar to the ending of La Boheme. However, it was not done this way in Vancouver. The two men never did appear. Butterfly died alone and the curtain fell abruptly.

I understand from one of the cast that Miss Sighele, who has sung the part many times, wanted things done her own way. That this was not Puccini's way, or that of the directors, made no difference.

A fine orchestra of 50 players accompanied the opera. Mario Bernardi of Sadlers' Wells was the conductor.

I am told he knows every note and can sing every word of Butterfly and conducted virtually without a score.

Madama Butterfly will be repeated Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday next week. It is well worth a trip to Vancouver.

Sidney Group To Perform Comedy

John Patrick's three-act comedy, "The Curious Savage," has been chosen as the fall production of Peninsula Players of Sidney and North Saanich.

The play will be presented at 8:15 on Friday and Saturday nights, Nov. 12 and 13, at Kinsmen Hall, Victoria International Airport.

The work, first presented at the Martin Beck Theater in New York in 1950, takes an affectionate look at the inmates of a swanky resort for the mildly mad and also looks askance at the so-called "normal" relatives who put them there.

Margaret Dixon, known to Victoria audiences for her award-winning portrayal in the drama festival entry, "A Ladder for Lucy," directs. Mrs. Dixon made her directorial debut last fall in the Peninsula Players' "Pink String and Sealing Wax."

BASTION GOING TO SCHOOLS

Shakespeare Tour To Include Songs

Bastion Theatre takes Shakespeare to the schools, starting November 1st. In this, Bastion's third annual school tour, a completely new program is being presented, with an interesting addition—the inclusion of Elizabethan songs, and modern songs inspired by Shakespeare's plays, featuring the voice of internationally-known actor-singer Don McManus.

Mr. McManus, who starred in Bastion's first production of the season at the McPherson Playhouse, "Come Blow Your Horn," returns to Victoria to join the tour, with tour veterans Jennifer Chaster and Lawrence Eastick.

Fourth member of the company is Banff drama graduate Barbara Dunn.

Shakespeare as a playwright whose commentary on people is as true and compelling as 400 years ago, is represented by scenes from "As You Like It," "Macbeth," "Henry V," "Julius Caesar" and "Romeo and Juliet," with the two latter played in modern dress, underlining the topicality of their themes.

Bastion's touring company will be at Greater Victoria schools during the first two weeks of November, and at up-Island schools from November 15. Director for the tour is Stuart Baker.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Anyone who has tolerated or ignored the whine of a couple of mosquitoes in his room for a time, then becomes sufficiently conscious of it to take a swat in their direction, will know how I feel at this moment of setting hand to typewriter.

Generally speaking, one is aware that they will go away eventually in the natural course of things, but taking a swat—even though you know the insects will persist for awhile—provides a certain relief for a minor irritation.

In swatting the current small plague of mosquitoes my natural inertia in such matters has been overcome by pressure from supporters of the Festival Theatre Society.

They feel, in the interests of fair play, and in view of a few recent public utterances, that some facts, obviously unknown or ignored by the utterers, should be stated unequivocally and finally before Chapter I of the society's operation is concluded.

In this connection, but as an aside, I must say that many of us take a dim view of the growing factionalism in the city's theatre world. Ultimately, no one will profit and everyone will suffer in "the house divided."

Factionalism, bitter rivalry, glory-seeking — none of these had any part, consciously or unconsciously in the various planning stages of Festival Theatre Society's first Show Parade.

★ ★ ★

The idea was born in the winter of 1962—note the date—out of the conviction that British Columbia's capital city should have a summer festival and that lacking $100,000 for imported attractions, the best way to start was to create one out of our own material.

What we planned was frankly a festival of amateur productions; a sort of cavalcade of the city's talent. The phrase used in press releases and in the society's first brochure, issued at a press party at Imperial Inn in Sept., 1963, was "a festival by Victorians for Victorians and their visitors."

The plan was as simple and straightforward as that. This was a type of festival, it was felt, that, given a chance, would grow, take root, develop some recognizable native characteristics.

No one of the organizers knew what role he would be called upon to play or whether he would be required to take any active part. Most were prepared to do whatever was necessary to achieve a worthwhile goal.

Show Parade was first envisioned as a Stratford-style tent operation and this possibility was fully explored, coming to a dead end when it became apparent no suitable area was available.

Refusing to be discouraged, the organizers turned to the investigation of buildings of all kinds that offered a possibility of simple, temporary conversion to theatre use. (It was during this investigation that they came upon the old church on the corner of Princess and Chambers to which they subsequently introduced Peter Mannering when he first came to Victoria.)

From all this it is obvious that Festival Theatre Society's incorporation and development came about some time before there was a McPherson Playhouse, a potential stock company or a university summer festival in the city.

Point one: The Society was no Johnny-come-lately leaping into the limelight in a brash attempt to compete with any existing organization as has been inferred, but a civic-minded, dedicated group with a serious purpose.

Which immediately brings me to Point two: Of the chief protagonists behind Show Parade, two have worked professionally in the theatre over a period of years, one in New York and Vancouver, one in London.

The latter carried a triple burden in the Festival's last months and from the outset, in the complex role of administrator, did a completely fantastic job, pouring out energy and solving problems day after day for more than a year without remission or reward.

★ ★ ★

The only two who have not worked in professional theatre share a long record of success in the amateur field, including direction of the only Victoria College play ever to be invited to be performed at the University of British Columbia; a Dominion Drama Festival regional winner that beat four Vancouver companies including one that was semi-pro; a hit high profit-making musical at the Royal Theatre and a unique production that within a few weeks will be given Canada-wide coverage in a weekly magazine.

All persons connected with Festival Theatre enjoy full and busy lives both in profession and avocation. They have asked—and need—nothing from the society or the theatre and have given a great deal; in some cases far more than most people would or could give, not only in time and nervous strain, but in money.

The one or two people who carried the principal burden could not tell you whether the sun shone or the rain fell all summer.

They subsisted on the barest minimum of sleep, skipped dinner day after day, strained family relations to breaking-point, came close to endangering their livelihoods, worked on after they were so bone-weary they were staggering, faced up to a continual string of problems and anxieties.

Yet these are the people who, it has been suggested, are mere dilletantes, frustrated self-seekers pitifully grasping at a handful of glory!

Now to go back a little in order to make Point Three: From the very beginning, back in January, 1962, Festival Theatre founders took their plans to civic authorities and discussed them in the Mayor's office and in committee rooms.

★ ★ ★

It was an unofficial civic project from the first and the plan for the festival was officially recognized by a unanimous council vote recorded in a letter in the Society's files, dated in April, 1963.

The vote and the letter endorsed the Society's proposal for a festival to open the McPherson Playhouse.

Immediately it was known that opening date of the theatre would be inappropriate for the purpose, the festival was re-schedued for the ensuing summer.

This should make it clear that the Society's plans were not dependent upon, motivated, modified or influenced by any comings or goings or march of events taking place in the city during this period.

On several occasions the organizers were asked if they intended to apply for a civic grant. To which they took the stand that Festival Theatre would attempt to go it alone and would only turn to the city if absolutely necessary.

So, point three: Civic involvement with the festival is no sudden or unpremeditated turn of events for this has been a civic project from the beginning, altruistically conconceived and carried out with the sole object of providing something of value.

★ ★ ★

That the goal was not fully achieved on this occasion is a matter for grave consideration by the Society executive, but not for discouragement.

One cannot fail to note, incidentally, that two of the major items among the Festival's disbursements are the Playhouse rental and remuneration to Bastion Theatre for its participation.

It is clear that civic authorities have confidence in the organization and believe in its purpose, just as, in complete refutation of the recent futile snarling of soreheads, Peter Mannering comments in a letter to me that "it is essential that both Festival Theatre Society and Bastion prosper if a year-round continuity of high standard productions is to be maintained."

At any rate, when all's said and done, you can be very sure that Festival Theatre's Show Parade will be back next summer with a bigger personnel, stronger format and better productions.

Opera Audition

SEATTLE (AP)—Four district auditions sponsored by the Metropolitan Opera National Council will be held in Washington, Oregon and British Columbia in January.

Winners will compete in a regional audition Feb. 6 in Seattle for a trip to New York to sing before the Met's general manager, Rudolf Bing, and members of his staff.

District auditions will be held in Portland Jan. 16, Spokane Jan. 22, Seattle Jan. 29, and Vancouver Jan. 30.

LOVE, HATE, TREACHERY INGREDIENTS OF PLAY

Modern tragedy of an immigrant Brooklyn laborer caught in a swampland of illicit love, jealousy and betrayal is "A View From the Bridge," Arthur Miller's moving play, soon to be seen at the University of Victoria's Phoenix Theatre.

First presented unsuccessfully on Broadway as a one-act play, it was rewritten by the author and premiered in London to a chorus of high praise.

Since then it has come to be regarded as a modern classic.

Robert Hedley is directing the Uvic Players Club production, placing his emphasis on absolute realism and providing a stark, multi-level set for it on the Phoenix stage.

Accents for the Italian speaking parts have been authentically reproduced with the assistance of Elda and Onorio Rocca, who have recently moved to Canada from Italy.

"A View From the Bridge" will be performed November 16 to 20 and 23 to 27.

Tickets will be available at the new Phoenix Theatre box office from Nov. 4. Box office hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and for telephone enquiries the Phoenix number is 477-4821. Information regarding tickets can also be obtained at Student Union Building, 477-1834.

Special student rates have been put into effect of two tickets for the price of one. These pertain to all but Friday and Saturday performances.

DELAYED DATE WITH MUELLER

Zeitlin Appearance Here Big Symphony Event

Beethoven's D major Violin Concerto, whose many beautiful melodies have been the admiration of critics and musicians from the time of its first performance, will introduce to Victoria concert goers, the exceptional Hebrew violinist, Zvi Zeitlin.

Zeitlin is guest artist for the next pair of Victoria Symphony concerts, Nov. 7 and 8.

For the orchestra's musical director, Otto-Werner Mueller, the violinist's appearance will have a particular significance.

"He ran out on me five or six years ago," Mueller says with a twinkle. "He was due to appear with me but suddenly went off to South America to replace Heifetz on a tour.

Zeitlin's appearance with the orchestra next weekend makes the occasion one of international importance in this Victoria Symphony season.

Beethoven's sketches for the D major Concerto were developed at the same time that he was conceiving ideas for the Fifth Symphony.

It opens with a tympani solo followed by passages in woodwinds, reserving the string color for the section immediately preceding entry of the solo instrument.

The slow movement of this lyrical work is especially lovely and is followed by a gay rondo, somewhat Mozartean in character.

It was first played in London in 1806, by the fabled Joachim in a performance conducted by Mendelssohn. The virtuoso prodigy was at the time, 13 years old.

To complete the program, Mr. Mueller has chosen Mozart's Overture to his opera, La Clemenza di Tito and Dvorak's Fourth Symphony, a work with a delightfully "folk" character and for which the composer was awarded an honorary doctorate from Cambridge University.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Mona Washbourne, who had a feature role in "My Fair Lady," has signed for a role in "The Third Day" with Warners.

Citations Awarded In Appeal

United Appeal awards for outstanding contribution to this year's fund are coming thick and fast for city firms.

The Appeal's award of excellence has been won by radio station CFAX for a contribution of $390 from 18 employees; The Victorian Order of Nurses, $354 from 12 employees; Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Douglas and Cormorant branch, $381.50 from 22 employees; B.C. Land and Insurance Agency Ltd., $210 from 16 employees.

All firms except CFAX had won the award last year.

Plaque awards for firms with 10 or more employees were won by W. H. Malkin Ltd.; Ismay Boiston Dunn and Co.; District Treasury Office, National Health and Welfare Dept.; B.C. Telephone Co.; and Goodwill Enterprises.

Citations, for firms with less than 10 employees, went to the John Howard Society; CNIB; St. John Ambulance; Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded, and the Silver Threads Service, all Community Chest members.

WINS CITATIONS

Other citation winners are the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branches at 3831 Cadboro Bay Rd., 5130 Cordova Bay, Fort and Cook, Fort and Foul Bay, Hillside Shopping Centre, and Superior and Menzies; Bank of Nova Scotia, Oak Bay branch; Nels Foster Refrigeration and Air Conditioning; inspection branch, Department of National Defence; Home Oil Distributors; Shell Canada; the Leader Publishing Co. and the Gonzales Weather Office, Department of Transport.

Achievement awards go to employee groups with 80 per cent participation in the fund drive and contributions at least 15 per cent higher than last year.

Recent winners are the Department of Finance Treasury Office at HMC Dockyard; Glenwarren Private Hospital; Standard Steam Laundry and Canadian Linen Supply Co.

Employee contributions from the Hudson's Bay Co. totalled $6,163 with a $5,000 contribution from the firm itself.

Car Firms Set Marks In Profit

NEW YORK (AP)—The automobile industry has reported record-breaking sales, earnings and production.

General Motors Corp. reported the greatest profit ever attained by an American company, $1,539,000,000, for the first nine months of 1965.

Sales through September ran $15,000,000,000.

Ford Motor Co. also reflected the over-all prosperity of the auto industry, with earnings of $540,200,000 for the first nine months, a company record.

Chrysler Corp. doubled its dividends, on record nine-month earnings of $136,500,000 and sales of $3,680,000,000.

Customers thronged the showrooms and bought 302,920 cars in 10 days this month, industry sources said.

The 9,000,000th vehicle built this year rolled off the assembly lines this week, amid predictions the total would reach 11,000,000 by the end of the year.

In the steel industry, current production has plunged to the lowest level in nearly two years.

SEES IMPROVEMENT

But Roger Blough, chairman of United States Steel Corp., the largest steelmaker in the U.S., said the public acceptance accorded 1966 model automobiles boded well for steel.

He predicted steel consumption in the United States would reach a record 90,000,000 to 91,000,000 tons this year, compared with 84,000,000 tons in 1964.

Production has been off since the September labor settlement, when industry began using the backlog built up under the threat of a strike.

Blough said the bulk of the backlog should be liquidated in the next three to six months, and that orders the first three months of 1966 should be up again.

U.S. Steel reported its third-quarter earnings were up 3 per cent from 1964, making the total for the first nine months $226,538,559, compared with $167,331,569 last year.

That was in marked contrast to reports from other major steel companies.

Bethlehem Steel, the second largest producer, reported its earnings this summer were down 11.2 per cent from last year.

For business as a whole, however, it looks like the most profitable year in American history, with sales soaring. Earnings may run $45,000,000,000, 20 per cent ahead of 1964.

Trust Firm Plans Interest Increase

By JIM HUME
Times Business Editor

Commonwealth Trust has announced that it will raise the interest it pays on guaranteed investments from 6 to 6½ per cent effective Monday.

Hume

In making the announcement, Dr. C. G. Polvliet, vice-president of Commonwealth, said the move was dictated by the general scarcity of short-term money.

The new rate is believed to be the highest offered in Canada by a trust company on term deposits.

For those who were worried, the mine mentioned in Thursday's column as being "located 15 miles northwest of Courtenay," was Mt. Washington.

The omission of the name was my fault.

Having confessed that small sin it gives me greater pleasure to correct a couple of errors made by National Trust.

Earlier this week National officials mailed the information on their new office opening next Tuesday at 2190 Oak Bay Ave.

FREE COFFEE

They invited us all for free coffee Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

A hasty telephone call Friday informed us that there isn't enough coffee to go around for three days. Open house — with coffee — will be Tuesday and Wednesday. On Thursday you will be welcome, but dry.

Officials were also anxious that we spread the word that National didn't just expand west as stated in its official release. It, like Topsy, grew both ways, east and west.

Both corrections made most happily because, for once, I did not make the goofs.

Alan Pearse of the Tally-Ho in Victoria has been elected to the executive of the B.C. Hotels Association.

The move came at the last general meeting of the group in Vancouver.

TRAIN STAFF

While the CPR tries to slide out from its passenger service, CNR is sprucing up not only its service but its trainmen and other assorted train staff.

All crews get new uniforms during the next few months.

Trainmen and conductors switch from blue with silver and gold buttons to grey with plain buttons. Sleeping car conductors, porters, stewards and waiters also come in for a new look.

Those red, white and blue days must be paying off.

Coley Hall, better known for hockey teams, is joining forces with Fred Dietrich to spend $200,000 on a silver-zinc-lead exploration program near Nelson.

UNDER OPTION

The property, once known as the Molly Gibson Mine, has been acquired under option from Consolidated Mining and Smelting.

Current ore reserves are estimated at 115,000 tons assaying 16 ounces of silver per ton with 2.96 per cent lead and 3.17 per cent zinc.

Name of the new outfit is Homestake Silver.

B.C.T. Ties Outlined

VANCOUVER (CP) — Contracts between B.C. Telephone Company and three sister companies also controlled in the United States are beneficial to B.C. Tel, the Board of Transport Commissioners was told Friday.

J. C. Carlile, assistant vice-president of finance, named three companies with which B.C. Tel had contracts — Canadian Telephones and Supplies Ltd., Dominion Directory Company Ltd., and General Telephone and Electronics Service Corp.

General Telephone and Electronics Corp. owns the other two companies, and controls B.C. Tel through its ownership of Anglo-Canadian Telephone Company.

Mr. Carlile said B.C. paid $2,600,000 to Canadian Telephones last year, and $500,000 to General Telephone. He said it made a profit of $1,600,000 on its contract with Dominion Directory.

Mr. Carlile said Canadian Telephones does installation, rearrangement and removal of central office exchange equipments and major switchboards.

Pound Shows New Strength In Autumn

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's economy prepares to roll along into November with the pound sterling today at its highest price in 2½ years.

But the Labor government is determined not to relax tough measures which restored confidence in the currency. Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan said the emergency surcharge on imports imposed a year ago may be retained for another year.

For 12 months, Prime Minister Wilson's administration has fought to get sterling back to its official parity level of $2.80.

It succeeded a month ago and the currency was being quoted on the London foreign exchange market at $2.80¾ when the exchange closed Friday.

It has been boosted by rigorous government measures to cut expenditures at home, and restrictions on credit; by an improvement in Britain's overseas trade balance, and by the building up of gold and foreign-currency reserves which earlier were raided to beat off speculators banking on devaluation.

These measures alone, however, would not have succeeded without the practical financial support given by overseas central banks and International Monetary Fund.

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal treasury ended the first half of the current fiscal year Sept. 30 with a surplus of revenues over expenditures amounting to $502,500,000, it was announced Friday.

This compared with a surplus of $396,900,000 a year earlier at the mid-point in the 1964-65 fiscal year. The treasury ended that year with a budgetary deficit of $38,000,000.

The finance department's regular monthly statement of government financial operations said September revenues amounted to $615,900,000 and September expenditures were $581,400,000.

STORE SALES STILL SOARING

OTTAWA (CP) — Department stores continued to experience strong sales trends at mid-month, the bureau of statistics reports.

Sales in the week ended Oct. 16 were valued at 10.6 per cent more than in the same week last year. During the previous week, sales ran 10.2 per cent ahead of year-earlier figures.

Toronto Trade Trails N.Y.

By GORDON GRANT,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stocks moved hesitantly higher this week in a pattern started at the beginning of the month. And the big question remains: When will Canadian stocks catch up with the high-flying issues on the New York Stock Exchange?

Even stock market analysts aren't sure that this will happen, and some would be just as happy if it didn't.

In Toronto, the industrial index, a measurement of investors' sentiment toward blue-chip equities, climbed 1.34 to 170.4 this week, compared with a gain of 8.40 to 960.82 by the popular Dow Jones industrial index of New York stocks.

Even a new, big wheat contract with Communist China failed to arouse sustained buying.

There was a sign of renewed interest in speculative issues as volume cracked the 3,000,000-share mark in each of the last three sessions, something it had been unable to do in more than two months.

JELEX UP

Prominent among the speculatives was Jelex which climbed 7 to 27 cents, averaging almost 200,000 shares a day. United Comstock gained 6½ to 33 cents and Norgold 4 to 12½ cents.

The industrial list was paced by the same issues which have been carrying the market for the last month.

Moore Corp., despite some profit-taking Friday, climbed 1 to 83 and reported sharply increased nine - month earnings. The stock has added more than $11 in the last two weeks.

Massey - Ferguson, a farm implement maker, climbed sharply on news of the new wheat deal, but it sold off sharply Thursday and Friday and closed the week with a loss of 1⅞ at 33½. Versatile Manufacturing, another farm implement maker, added ¾ to 21⅜.

Transportation companies fared a little better. CPR was ahead 1½ to 70½ while Canada Steamship Lines gained 1⅜ to 36⅜.

METALS ADVANCED

Base metals continued to move ahead although the rate of climb slowed from last week's pace.

Falconbridge was ahead 1¾ to 111¾ after touching a record 112. Inco, which this week raised its price of copper to overseas purchasers to 38 cents (U.S.) a pound from 36 cents, gained 1½ to 89½.

Hudson Bay was up 1 to 77½ after reporting higher nine-month earnings while Noranda eased ¼ to 53. Cominco, controlled by CPR, was up ⅝ to 49⅝ and Chromium Mining, a junior issue, 60 cents to 2.30.

Among uraniums, Denison jumped 2 to 40 and Rio Algom ⅜ to 19½.

On index, golds were up 1.17 to 158.25, base metals .64 to 85.71 and the TSE index 1.20 to 160.07. Western oils were down .50 to 102.69.

Volume for the week was 15,035,285 shares compared with 13,921,031 shares last week. Dollar value rose to $65,403,417 from $63,136,655 last week.

In Montreal, industrials were up 1.34 to 165.49 and utilities 1.31 to 155.07. Banks fell .57 to 121.76 and papers 1.58 to 115.54.

Industrial volume was 1,132,568 compared with last week's 952,012 and mining volume 5,242,966 against 5,902,250 shares.

on our economic HIGH SEAS, invest in mortgages or a mortgage company. In this way the chance of loss is far less than most other investments. A mortgage represents only PART of the VALUE of the security, and if the value were to come down for any reason the reduction would be unlikely to be sufficient to effect a loss on the well-placed mortgage investment.

For example, if a $10,000 property with a $5,000 Mortgage upon it were to suddenly drop to $6,000, no loss would be inflicted on the mortgage.

If our economy, then, were to drop to the extent where even small losses were GENERAL among mortgage holders, PICTURE THE SEVERE LOSSES that might occur at the same time IN OTHER INVESTMENTS!

Naturally nothing is 100% safe, but the Mortgage field offers the least amount of risk to the invested dollar.

If you are still with us to here — perhaps you might like to obtain the story of Victoria Mortgage Corporation. We offer 7½%, paid quarterly on 5 year debenture investments. 7% one year. Obtain prospectus, simply phone 384-7128, or call at 817 Fort St.

Pine Point Gets New Power Source

FORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP)—Power surged into the mining community of Pine Point, N.W.T., from the 170-miles-distant Taltson River hydro power development Friday when Revenue Minister E. J. Benson pushed a button in Fort Smith.

The hydro development, on the Taltson River 35 miles northeast of here, is the largest north of the 60th parallel and the fifth to be built in the north by the Northern Canada Power Commission, a crown corporation.

The 25,000 - horsepower plant primarily is to supply power to Pine Point Mines, the giant lead-zinc producing subsidiary of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company. However, substations at both Fort Smith and Pine Point step the power down for distribution in these communities. Cost of the project has been estimated at $9,120,000, made up of about $6,600,000 for the generating station, $2,290,000 for the transmission line, and $320,000 for the substations.

REMOTE CONTROL

About 150 persons gathered outside the Fort Smith substation in near-freezing weather to hear an address by Mr. Benson before he officially opened the project, which is to be operated by remote control from Fort Smith.

Mr. Benson said the development will reduce power costs and retire existing diesel electric generators here and in Pine Point to auxiliary power production.

For the Fort Smith householder, now paying five cents a kilowatt hour after the 75-kwh minimum costing $7.42, it will mean a reduction "of from 1.5 to 2.7 cents a kilowatt hour, effective immediately.

"The fact that hydro power is available in this area may be the deciding factor whether or not an ore body can be placed in production," Mr. Benson said.

EXPLORE REGION

"A source of power would also be an incentive to encourage mining companies to explore this area more thoroughly.

"The development and settlement of our north . . . can be accomplished only by creating a favorable economic climate for private industry . . . for development of northern resources."

The future economic expansion of the North rests on discovery and exploitation in large quantities of the North's mineral resources, Mr. Benson said.

POWER PLANT

The dam is the first hydroelectric plant in the area and "promises to add considerably to the economic activity south of Great Slave Lake," Mr. Benson said. The Pine Point mine is on the lake's southern shores.

BEST CUSTOMER ROLE

Canada Tie Grows With U.S.

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada has widened its lead as the biggest customer of the United States both in value and the percentage of total goods imported.

Canadian purchases of U.S. goods in the first seven months of this year totalled $3,454,000,000, or 71.2 per cent of total Canadian purchases abroad.

In the 12-month period ended July 31, Canadian purchases from the U.S. have risen 15 per cent compared with a rise of 11 per cent for all Canadian imports, say U.S. Commerce department figures.

So far this year, Japan as usual continues to run closest to Canada in value, with U.S. imports worth $1,385,000,000. But this is only 28.8 per cent of all Japanese imports, and Japan in the last 12 months has bought three per cent less from the U.S.

Mexico maintains its second-place position in dependence on U.S. purchases. Mexican imports — the figures apply for six months only — were valued at $501,000,000 or 67.5 per cent.

Generally, American sales to its 50 top trading nations have increased and the figures reflected higher rates of importing by most nations.

RESERVES NEEDED

But while this was accompanied by higher holdings of gold and dollars in most developed countries, including Canada, these reserves vital to future trade were lower in the less-wealthy countries.

The figures for India, Pakistan, United Republic and some other nations also reflect large-scale sales of wheat and other food.

Canada's increased buying here in the last 12 months is described as "largely a result of heavier purchases of machinery and transport equipment to satisfy demands of a rapidly-growing economy."

Japan, by contrast, has been pinched economically and Italy is another country where import restrictions have resulted in a decline of 17 per cent in U.S. purchases for the year ended June 30.

Taking the calendar year 1964, Canada had purchased $5,214,000,000, or 69 per cent of all her imports from the U.S., while Mexico's margin was 68.5 per cent. Canada held better than a 2-to-1 advantage over Japan, however, in value of imports, with Germany third and Britain fourth.

Yugoslavia is the only Communist country listed and its American purchases for the 12-month period up to June 30 were up by 62 per cent. That includes food aid.

Launch Set Nov. 12

First of the world's two largest newsprint barges, which will run a shuttle service between B.C. and California ports, will be launched Nov. 12 at Yarrows.

The two barges, valued at $2.5 million are being built for MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co.

The barges are larger than a football field — 360 feet — and will have a carrying capacity of 6,500 tons.

The newsprint will be housed in an enclosed shed-like area. Easy loading by clamp-lift trucks is made possible by large sliding doors on the side of the shed.

There will be no ceremony at the lanuching of the first barge which began construction in August.

The second barge is already being prefabricated for assembly on the ways.

The two barges, designed for deep-sea towing and heavy weather, will be pulled by a $1,250,000 towbot launched recently in Halifax.

Total round-trip towing distance between Mac-Powell mills in Powell River and Port Alberni will be 2,400 miles.

SHIRLEY OF COLONY

WHO and WHY

Many of you are already familiar with COLONY HOMESALES, but there are those of you who may be hearing of us for the first time. As a means of introduction let me quickly give you our history, our theme and policies and tell you why we are successful. Firstly ladies comprise our entire selling staff and they devote all their time and their energy to the selling of homes only. (We have one male employee, Mr. McLure, an agent and an institutional mortgage man.) As an all-lady Real Estate firm we are not more than two years old, but formerly as Colony Realty with both men and ladies on the staff, we operated successfully for several years. However, through research and through studying sales records it became clear that women were outstandingly successful in the home selling field, consequently we decided to enter this exclusive branch of the Real Estate profession and now have a staff of approximately twenty-five ladies. Our decision has been amply justified. The very fact that we are so successful is an endorsement by the public that there was a definite need for an office devoted entirely to the selling of homes. In fulfilling this need, we now notice the home owner, when selling, makes certain that COLONY HOMESALES is informed that his home is for sale. We appreciate this faith and will continue to serve in this capacity.

INDY DRIVERS SPEAK TO 5,000 STUDENTS ON SAFETY

Leadfoots Deliver Vivid Message

By RON SUDLOW

Some 5,000 Greater Victoria students received a vivid message of traffic safety this week from Indianapolis 500 driver Bob Harkey.

Bob, a veteran of the famed 500 and 17 years in professional racing, brought his message home by drawing parallels between track and highway driving.

His visit here was sponsored jointly by The Times and the Champion Spark Plug Co. in co-operation with the Greater Victoria School Board.

5-Day Visit

And it was a busy schedule for his five-day visit here.

He spoke to students of nine schools and made as many as three speeches in one morning at one of the schools.

In oddition, he presented a film of the 1964 Indianapolis classic to Goldstream Chapter, Order of DeMolay, and to Victoria Optimist Club.

Teachers, principals and students showed wide interest in his safety program and career as a race driver wherever he went.

Lots of Questions

In many of his appearances Bob offered students the opportunity to pepper him with questions ranging from his opinion of women race drivers to the r.p.m.'s of an Offenhauser engine.

The interest was augmented Friday as local leadfoot Billy Foster shared the stage. Foster placed 17th at Indy this year. He is the only Canadian to qualify for the event.

Students at Lansdowne and Gordon Head junior secondary schools cheered and applauded the local driving hero at his two appearances.

For Billy, it was more of an apprenticeship. He has indicated he will be joining the Champion safe driving team and will probably tour city schools within two years.

Foster will be with Harkey in Vancouver for the next two weeks and take a side trip to schools in Alberni and Nanamio.

Showing his film of the 1964 race, Bob pointed out the mistakes of professional drivers.

Three errors — all caused by being in too big a hurry — cost two drivers their lives and two others first-place money of $155,000.

In his address to the students, Bob stressed courtesy, mental alertness and mechanical condition of the automobile, as the three main factors of safe driving.

And to would-be hot-rodders he issued the following warning:

"Don't think your brakes are so good you can always stop on a dime. Someday it may be in somebody's pocket."

He also distributed to schools a folder of 36 safe driving tips from professional racers to be placed on bulletin boards.

And like any sports hero, he was beseiged by autograph-seekers.

Some students were lucky to get an autographed color picture of Bob in his A. J. Watson roadster. Others made do with slips of paper.

On Forearm

And one girl at Gordon Head junior secondary school walked away with Billy Foster's and Bob Harkey's signatures on her forearm.

And another was happy he broke his leg Sunday from a fall off Mount Douglas

His cast bears the signatures of two gentlemen who know how courtesy, mental alertness and car condition can pay off on the highway as well as the track.

COMPARING STRATEGY on taking nine-degree banked turns at Indianapolis Motor Speedway Friday outside Gordon Head Junior Secondary School were city driving ace Billy Foster (left) and traffic safety expert Bob Harkey.

'Why Should B.C. Be Cursed?'

Indy driver Bob Harkey wasn't the only man in B.C. with a traffic safety message this week. Provincial Liberal leader Ray Perrault had one too.

He told North Vancouver Safety Council 338 British Columbians have died so far this year in highway collisions and predicted toll will reach a record 500 this year.

And he also forecast death rate in five years of 1,000 per year within the province if the current pace keeps up.

"Why should B.C. be cursed with these grim totals?" he asked.

We have been unwilling to face the problem. We have lacked leadership. Not enough money has been invested in programs to reduce the death toll," he said.

Ambassador Awards Student French Medal

The French Government Medal for high standing in French was awarded to Terry Guernsey, 2986 Westdowne, when the French Ambassador His Excellency Francois Leduc visited the University of Victoria Friday.

Miss Guernsey, a third year student at the university, topped her French class two years in a row.

It was the first official visit of the ambassador to the campus. The award is presented annually to the top student.

Leonard Schmidt, R.R. 1, Osoyoos, a second year student, was presented with a French government book prize for his standing in first year.

Addressing an assembly of senior students, the ambassador, who spoke in French, spoke on the European market, agricultural difficulties in England and youth in France.

Youth to Hang For Killing Prison Guard

ST. JOSEPH'S N.B. (UPI)—Reginald John Colpitts, 19, of Moncton, was sentenced to hang Jan. 19, 1966, for the Sept. 23, 1964, stabbing death of a Dorchester prison guard.

Presiding judge, Mr. Justice Adrien Cormier, pronounced sentence Friday evening after the 12-member jury had returned with its recommendation on clemency.

Only three of the members favoured mercy for the slender youth who remained calm when his sentence was pronounced.

The jury was unanimous in its guilty verdict after deliberating one hour.

When asked if he had anything to say, Colpitts replied "no."

JOB TRAINING OPPORTUNITIES
BASIC LOGGING
(Sponsored by the Federal-Provincial Governments)

Training opportunities are offered to suitable applicants in a six weeks pre-apprenticeship course leading to employment and apprenticeship in the logging industry.

The training will be conducted at the B.C. Vocational School—Nanaimo, where dormitory accommodation is available.

Courses run on a continuous basis with intakes every two weeks. The first commences October 4th, 1965.

Educational grade standing is not a pre-requisite.

Trainees in the six weeks course will receive basic knowledge in various phases of the logging industry such as rigging, yarding and loading, both at the school and in a timber stand provided by the Forest Service which is equipped with portable spar tree and regular logging equipment.

Basic fire suppression, slash burning and reforestation will be covered and emphasis will be applied to safety rules and practices.

Following the six weeks course, trainees will enter the industry as apprentices and will receive the basic salary paid to chokermen. ($2.57 per hour).

Applicants must be physically fit.

The Apprenticeship Branch, Department of Labour will pay all tuition fees, and a subsistence allowance will be provided plus one return transportation to the school from applicant's place of permanent residence. These to be paid on completion of the six weeks course.

Illegal Snooping To Be Studied In News Special

NBC News will present The Big Ear, a review of the wide extent to which illegal bugging and telephone wiretapping of private conversations are carried on in America, Sunday at 6:30 p.m., on Channel 5.

Senator Robert F. Kennedy of New York, who as U.S. attorney-general presented a bill to Congress calling for stiffer penalties for eavesdropping and wiretapping, will be interviewed on the program. "The Big Ear" also will present interviews filmed in various parts of the country with private investigators, authorities on the law governing eavesdropping and wiretapping, experts in the use of both bugging and de-bugging equipment, and persons who have suffered as a result of illegal monitoring of their conversations.

"The Big Ear" will demonstrate that monitoring of private conversations without the participants' knowledge has become a common practice in America. It is so widespread, in fact, that regulation or control to protect the innocent may now be a physical impossibility. And this is taking place despite the fact that federal law prohibits electronic eavesdropping or telephone wiretapping of any kind, as do many states in the nation.

Emmanuel Mittleman makes bugs. Not the flying kind, but the kind used for "bugging"—or listening in on telephones and private conversations. Mittleman will show how some of his bugs work, and how well they sell.

NBC News correspondent Robert MacNeil, reporter for "The Big Ear, will be shown on the program visiting Mittleman's Manhattan workshop, which bears the entrance sign, "Wireless Guitar Company." There Mittleman demonstrates for MacNeil various ways telephone taps work, using power from telephone and transmitting conversations by wire to a tape recorder. Mittleman also shows MacNeil a phone bug which works without wires. Using this device, Mittleman claims, a person can bug any direct dial telephone in the country — from his home — by dailing that phone's number in a special way. The price for this item: a mere $400.

'Bug' Hears All

Mittleman also demonstrates a bugging device he makes and sells. It is a tiny box which can be concealed in a drawer, chair or other hiding place. This bug picks up any sound the human ear would hear and transmits it to a radio receiver located up to a quarter-mile away. As Mittleman says, this bug is perfect for jealous husbands checking up on their wives.

Mittleman is quick to point out that he is not in the business of eavesdropping. He simply supplies his customers with custom-made bugs. His clients, he says, are private investigators and the police who presumably use the bugs to get leads on cases they are investigating. He has refused to sell to certain people who have approached him, he says, but will not go into details.

As an acknowledged authority on electronic eavesdropping and wiretapping, Mittleman has appeared before Congressional committees investigating the prevalence of wiretapping in America today. His testimony quickly convinced the Congressmen that bugging equipment is available so readily to the general public, and so efficient, that legal control of wiretapping is a monumental, if not impossible task.

The fact that Mittleman operates behind a sign "Wireless Guitar Company" is not an intentional ruse of his part. He first entered the electronics field by inventing a device for amplifying electric guitars without using wires. When guitarists showed little interest in the item, he switched to making bugs. As he makes clear on "The Big Ear," from the point of view of finding customers the move was the right one.

Hydroplane Race

Guy Lombardo, orchestra leader and speedboat racing enthusiast, assumes the mantle of a TV sports reporter when "NBC Sports in Action" presents highlights in color of the World's Championship Regatta for Unlimited Hydroplanes at Lake Tahoe, Nevada, on Saturday, at 5:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

A former hydroplane racer himself, Lombardo takes an NBC microphone into the pits, where he talks with contestants about their craft and their plans to capture the $36,050 first prize. The total of $60,000 in prize money makes it the richest race ever run on water.

"WASSE-THE-MATTA YOU? You no-like the blackmail I give you, Captain McHale?" asks Mayor Lugatto when he proposes the crew of PT-73 should go into commercial fishing, Tuesday at 8:30 p.m., on Channel 4.

The World's Championship Regatta, in addition to its unprecedented purse, holds other distinctions. It is the first competition for unlimited hydroplanes to be sanctioned by the Union of International Motorboating, headquartered in Belgium, thus giving the event world championship status. It is also the first time boats have qualified for starting positions, and the first time boats have to stay in their own lanes from the start.

Color cameras capture some of the sport's most famous boats and drivers zooming, at speeds exceeding 100 miles an hour, over the Blue Lake set against the rugged and picturesque Nevada countryside.

Hydroplanes are a combination of aluminum hull, plywood decks covered with fiber glass, and oak framing. They cost between $35,000 and $50,000, and for power use old aircraft engines salvaged from Second World War fighter planes. They are capable of speeds up to 200 miles an hour on a straight course.

Instead of plowing through the water, the three-point hydroplane skims the surface with only half the propeller and about one square foot of each sponsor (a short wing-like piece attached to the hull to provide stability in the water. At racing speed, the bottom of the boat is about nine inches above the surface.

Man of Month

Secretary of State Dean Rusk will be the subject of the October Man of the Month broadcast on "The Twentieth Century," Sunday at 6 p.m. on Channel 7.

This will be the first in a series of six such features centering on people who make the news.

RATINGS TELL . . .

'Idiot' Shows Outmatch Working Man

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Did you ever stop to think of the beating the ordinary working man, or even a professional man, takes on television.

Seriously, consider the plight of television's leading men this year.

Doctors are passe. Ben Casey and Dr. Kildare have been pushed aside in the ratings. Even the doctor-husband on the Donna Reed Show has lost his appeal.

Lawyers fare even worse. Slattery's People and The Trials of O'Brien are dead ducks. Both heroes are attorneys, albeit Slattery turned politician. But mouthpieces of the past, Arrest and Trial, The Law and Mr. Jones and The Defenders all blew it.

Only Perry Mason remains, and he's more sleuth than shyster.

Don't even mention heroic newsmen. Fearless journalists got murdered by the dial twisters.

The Reporter went down the drain before the hero could call the city desk. Wire Service and Saints and Sinners also attempted to glorify members of the press with disastrous results.

Few occupations stir viewers. The carpenters on I'm Dickens. He's Fenster were terrible bores. And the rich businessman on Tycoon went bankrupt after a single season. An advertising man couldn't sell his product on The Cara Williams Show.

A book publisher went kaput on Valentine's Day. A horse breeder ran out of the money in Kentucky Jones. A department store executive rang up no sale in Many Happy Returns.

Even a pack of thieves went under with The Rogues.

It gives one pause. What does a hero have to do to sustain himself on a weekly television series?

Two categories appear to have a virtual lock on public imagination: law enforcement officers (from sheriffs of the Old West to modern cops) and international spies. Both of which, in reality, are lousy jobs with low pay. But, boy, does television make them look exciting.

MILITARY MEN

Surpassing even cops and spies are military men.

Now anyone who's ever been in the service knows for a fact that nothing, absolutely nothing, is duller than military life. But at this moment there are precisely 15 prime-time shows in which the leading men are running around in uniform.

A surprising category of success involves farmers. Well, they dress 'em up by calling them ranchers. But rustics rule the roost in a flock of shows, among them the top-rated Bonanza, Green Acres, The Virginian, Big Valley and Beverly Hillbillies.

A not surprising group catching on fast, are the idiots.

You can tune them in almost every night. They abound in Get Smart, Camp Runamuck, The Smothers Brothers, Tammy, Hank, F Troop, My Mother the Car and, doubtless, in the executive offices of the three networks.

Salmon Controversy Baited

World Powers Seek Solution In Treaty Rift

The troubled times of the Pacific Northwest's commercial fishing industry are outlined Thursday at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 5, in a documentary titled Fish Story.

In "Fish Story," for the first time, the international salmon controversy is examined from the Japanese and Russian, as well as the North American viewpoint.

The international disagreement over the deep-sea harvesting of the run of red salmon at Bristol Bay, Alaska, is seen in the special colorcast as only one of the problems now facing the local commercial fishing industry.

A covey of top fisheries experts spotlight the slipping of U.S. fisheries to fifth place in world rank. They contend that drastic modernization — now thwarted by featherbedding and regulative licensing that controls future size of fishing fleets—is essential if the Pacific Northwest is to preserve and expand a 150,000-job industry.

In the hour-long Special Feature presentation, the U.S. fishing industry, as it now exists, is compared to what logging might be, if denied the use of trucks and bulldozers.

The Japanese position is outlined by Consul General Yoshio Nara, the regional Japanese Consulate at Seattle. Also commenting on the Japanese outlook are Edward Allen, chairman of the International North Pacific Fisheries Commission, and University of Washington law professor Ralph Johnson, who recently returned from conferences with Japanese fisheries leaders.

The interviews are supported by exclusive on-the-spot color film of Japanese and Russian factory ships operating on the North Pacific.

No Treaty Line

The Japanese make clear in "Fish Story" that they are unwilling to accept a westward shift of an existing treaty line as demanded by U.S. fishermen. In fact they officially state they will contend in Seattle negotiation this fall that present conservation should allow elimination of the treaty line. Conversely, U.S. biologists contend continental high-sea harvest by Japanese and Soviet fleets will undo all conservation efforts and drive salmon and halibut into virtual extinction.

Several possible compromise solutions are examined in the program which, in addition to exploring the long-standing salmon controversy, also presents a unique and educational behind-the-scenes look at the techniques and hardships of commercial fishing.

Written and produced by KING-TV's Special Features Director Bob Schulman and narrated by KING's Howard Hall, the special has been in preparation four months. A unit consisting of director Fred de Armond, cameraman Ralph Umbarger and sound technician Robert Koons was dispatched by Channel 5 to Alaska's Bristol Bay to film this season's salmon run.

There they filmed and recorded Japanese, Russian and American fishing activities including work-day footage taken aboard the gillnetter Lutefisk, owned by salmon fisherman Walter (Wally) Kendrickson of Aberdeen, Wash., and his partner, Bill Hanson of Pacific Beach.

At the peak of a record-breaking harvest, the KING-TV unit also documented individual attitudes about Japanese high-seas salmon fishing.

Huge 1965 Harvest

This year U.S. fishermen had feared—unwarrantedly, as it turned out—that Japanese activities would prove disastrous to the American catch. But even despite an unusually huge 1965 harvest, fishermen remained deeply concerned about their future in the fear that subsequent salmon runs would prove small and yet still be subjected to the in-roads of Japanese high-seas harvest.

Among those seen in "Fish Story" will be U.S. commissioner of fish and wildlife Clarence Pautzke; Alaska State fisheries director Walter Kirkness; director Heward Bell of the International Pacific Halibut Commission, and Dayton Lee Alverson, regional chief of exploratory and gear research for the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries. Others commenting on the growing multi-species commercial fishing problem include veteran fishermen Einar Pedersen and John Ivarson of Seattle and Ivar Angill of Bellingham.

New Canadian halibut-vessel design and automated fish-unloading methods are also featured in the telecast as evidence of what experts feel is a more advanced state of fishing technology than that employed by U.S. fishermen.

The CBC-TV French network production that brought the corporation its first Emmy Award, a 90-minute television presentation of Rossini's operatic comedy The Barber of Seville will be telecast on the English network's Festival series, Wednesday, at 9:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

CBC's Emmy Award

Sung in French by an all-Canadian cast, the production captured this year's International Emmy, television's coveted equivalent of Hollywood's Oscar. The international award is given annually "for outstanding programming produced outside the United States."

Accepting the award for the CBC at the Emmy presentations in New York on Sept. 12 were Marcel Ouimet, vice-president and general manager of the CBC-TV French network, and Pierre Morin, producer of The Barber of Seville.

The CBC production was competing in a field of 34 entries submitted by 22 broadcasting organizations in 14 countries.

The Barber of Seville (or le Barbier de Seville, as it was titled on the French network) won high praise from Montreal critics following a telecast on L'Heure du Concert last March.

The performance is conducted by Otto Werner-Mueller, and staging is by Paul Buissoneau. Hugo Wuetrich designed the sets.

In the story of The Barber of Seville, the elderly Bartolo plans to marry his pretty and wealthy ward, Rosina, but she is in love with the dashing Count Almaviva. Figaro, the town barber and self-appointed factotum, weaves an ingenious and hilarious plot to bring the young lovers together.

The opera contains some of the best-known and best-loved music in the operatic repertoire, including the famous "Figaro" aria sung by the barber.

The 'Bond-Wagon'

"The timing was right," explained Harry Saltzman, co-producer of the James Bond movies. "People were looking for a new form of escapist entertainment to fit the age of violence we live in."

So we got a sophisticated rock of Gibraltar named Sean Connery as James Bond, secret agent 007—the superman of the jet-set—plus a suitable assortment of adversaries including the diabolical Dr. No who meets his demise in an atomic pile; Oddjob, a Korean valet who crushes golf balls with his bare hands; and a leather-loving, beautiful blonde judo expert with the unlikely name of Pussy Galore.

The timing and Saltzman were indeed right. Box-office records were smashed as customers lined up for blocks at theatres from coast to coast.

New Protest Marches Due In U.S. South

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — New street demonstrations have been called for in certain areas of the southern United States where civil-rights workers have been slain.

The action was taken at a meeting of representatives of several civil rights and religious organizations here Friday.

It came the same day Attorney - General Nicholas Katzenbach ordered federal registrars into 12 more southern counties in an effort to step up implementation of the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

Rev. Andrew Young, executive secretary of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said the 100 to 150 persons attending the three-hour meeting in Selma voted overwhelmingly for more demonstrations.

'TIME HAS COME'

Rev. Henry Stines, a white minister representing the Atlanta office of the Episcopal (Anglican) Society for Cultural and Racial Unity, put it this way:

"The consensus of this meeting was that the time has come for the good forces in the nation, black and white, to go out in massive demonstrations in Hayneville, Selma and Birmingham, Ala., in Mississippi, and in all those places where civil-rights workers have been murdered."

Young said a decision on the time and the place of the demonstrations will have to come from Dr. Martin Luther King of Atlanta, president of SCLC.

In Washington, Katzenbach added South Carolina to the list of states where federal voting registrars are being sent. The others are Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana.

His ordering of registrars into 12 more counties brought to 32 the number of counties where special registrars have been called on to list voters under the voting rights law signed Aug. 6.

Killed by Own Guns

SAIGON (Reuters)—Six paratroopers of the United States Army's 101st Airborne Division were killed and three others were wounded by friendly artillery fire Thursday near Qui Nhon, an American military spokesman reported.

Make your vote count for more.

More good jobs, more money to spend

There are more Canadians at work today than ever before. There are fewer people out of work than at any time since 1957. 500,000 Canadians are in new jobs created in the past two years. Income taxes were reduced by ten percent. Income from wages has never been higher. There are more people holding down more good jobs, earning more money than at anytime in Canada's history. The country is moving again and Canada needs a strong Liberal government to keep it moving.

More opportunity for our young people

Extended family allowances and student loans are helping our children get the education they need. Federal grants for vocational schools are ensuring a square deal for all our young people. Young Canadians are learning new skills in federally-supported retraining programs across the country. The Liberal program for scholarships will make sure that able young Canadians are no longer shut off from university because they can't afford it.

More security for everyone

In 1963 the Liberal government raised the Old Age Pension to $75. a month at age 70. Under this year's legislation, the pension is to be provided earlier. By 1970, it will be paid to everyone at age 65. Under next year's Liberal program, the Canada Assistance Plan will provide whatever support above $75. is needed by people already retired. For those now working, the Canada Pension Plan—universal, contributory, fully portable, geared to future wages—gives real meaning to the word security. For 1967, the Liberal government has set the stage for Medicare. A strong Liberal government will secure the Canadian dream: a debt-free future for the sick, a worry-free future for the old, in a proud and growing Canada.

Alcohol Intake Excessive Rules Jury in Kenny Death

A driver killed in an auto accident on Government Street eight days ago was so drunk he should have been "lying on his back," a pathologist testified Friday night.

Dr. Ross McNeely was giving evidence at an inquest into the death of David Kenny, 48, of 1927 Quamichan.

The jury found that the accident was caused by Kenny's "excessive intake" of alcohol.

Dr. McNeely said a blood analysis of the dead man revealed he had an alcohol level of .39 per cent which showed he had drank 20 ounces of whisky or its equivalent.

He testified this was a "terribly high level" and Mr. Kenny must have been "really loaded." Dr. McNeely said that a slightly higher level would be sufficient to kill some people.

Dr. McNeely said the actual cause of death was "tremendous hemorrhage" which resulted when Mr. Kenny's liver was "torn asunder" in the collision. The doctor said the liver was affected by alcoholic cirrhosis.

Canstable James Ramsay, who was first on the scene of the accident, said Mr. Kenny's car travelled 572 feet from the first car it hit to where it finally came to rest after colliding with two more cars.

The officer said the car must have been travelling at an excessive speed to go this distance particularly since a bent bumper was pressing against one of the front wheels.

Con. Ramsay said the car was filled with smoke and was jammed on one side against a parked vehicle. The doors on the other side were locked.

He gave evidence that he smashed a windshield with a piece of wood and then opened the door on one side to extricate the body.

The accident occurred at 1 a.m. and Mr. Kenny was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Restrictions Cut

ROME (AP) — Italians were freed Friday night of restrictions on installment-plan buying of cars, television and radio sets and home appliances. Premier Aldo Moro's cabinet abolished a measure, in force since Sept. 8, 1964, that had required purchasers to make down payments of at least 25 per cent and pay the rest within 24 months.

Seven Killed In Car Crash

ST. REMY D'AMHERST, Que. (CP)—The bodies of seven persons, killed about midnight Friday when their car went out of control near this community 70 miles northwest of Montreal, were recovered from the Maskinonge River early today.

Dead are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Pinard, 41 and 35, respectively, their four children, Anne, 10, Roselyne, 14, Normand, 18, Gilbert, 12, and a brother-in-law, Simon Allard, 37, all of Montreal.

Drug Reduced Breast Cancer, Doctor Alleges

CHICAGO (AP) — A Chicago doctor, called as a defence witness in the krebiozen fraud trial, identified Friday four courtroom spectators as persons he had treated with krebiozen for cancer.

The witness, Dr. John Pick, said one of the spectator-patients had suffered from breast cancer and now, after krebiozen treatment, shows no trace of the ailment.

The patient, Dr. Veera Morrison, an osteopathic physician from San Diego, Calif., sought treatment for malignant tumors in both breasts in January, 1960, Dr. Pick said. He testified that after several treatments with krebiozen only a nodule remained, which he said he later removed and found to contain cancer cells.

Dr. Morrison and the three other spectator - patients were expected to testify for the defence later in the U.S. district court trial.

Dr. Stevan Durovic, the developer of krebiozen, and three other defendants are accused of mail fraud and conspiracy in the sale and distribution of krebiozen. The government maintains that krebiozen is useless in combatting cancer.

The defendants, in addition to Dr. Durovic, 60, are his brother, Marko, 64, a lawyer; Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, 73, of Roosevelt University; and Dr. William F. P. Philips, 52, a general practitioner.

WOULD YOU HAVE TURNED DOWN A $59-A-MONTH RAISE?

Six weeks ago, the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, representing nearly 100 truck drivers, warehousemen and barge operators in British American Oil's B.C. Marketing Division turned down the company's offer of three wage increases which, by next October, would amount to $59 a month. The men went on strike and were followed about a week later by members of the bargaining group at the company's Port Moody refinery.

B-A's "no-strike" package offer of 35 cents an hour over a 30-month period was substantially better than the B.C. Conciliation Board recommendation of 25 cents an hour over 24 months, and higher than the 4.5 per cent increase accepted by the O.C.A.W. in the United States, which amounts to 16 cents an hour over a 15-month period.

The O.C.A.W. members who turned down the B-A offer were already receiving an average wage of $464 a month, or 15.5 per cent above the average industrial wage in B.C. The B-A offer would have increased the average wage received by these men to $523 a month within a year.

JOB SECURITY AN ISSUE?

Since the strike began, the Union has been claiming that job security as related to automation is the major issue in the dispute. But is it? Although the petroleum industry employs the latest equipment and techniques in its effort to be efficient and competitive, these improvements have been adopted gradually, over the past quarter century. As a result, layoffs have been very rare in the oil industry. In fact, since 1958, only a few junior employees have been displaced in the company's B.C. distribution organization, and no one has been laid off at a B-A refinery since 1949.

IF THAT ISN'T JOB SECURITY, WHAT IS?

VICTORIA'S MOST LISTENED TO STATION

LIFE'S WORK HAS TOUCHED MILLIONS

30 Years Ahead in the Classroom

Jim Hume Talks To DR. BROWNELL

He sits quietly on the 10th storey of the Lord Simcoe apartments puffing on a yellow Meerschaum pipe, modestly aware that his life's work has touched millions.

His step, as can be expected when a man reaches 70, is far from spry.

But his mind is quick and clear, his voice firm and his opinions flint-sharp.

Dr. William Arthur Brownell, born in Smethport, Pa., May 19, 1895, former dean of education at the University of California, Berkeley Campus, didn't come to Victoria to retire.

He came to teach because an old associate, Dr. Frederick T. Tyler, dean of education at the University of Victoria, asked him.

World Trip

"My wife and I had just got home from a world trip when Dean Tyler called and asked me to help out this year," he recalled Friday. "It seemed pretty ridiculous to even think of travelling anywhere. We were tired and just wanted to rest. But he was an old associate—so here I am."

Here he is, indeed, with a string of academic distinctions far too long to list here. A rare prize for a young university to capture and one which brings international distinction and recognition to the fledgling campus.

International Fame

Throughout his many years of teaching Dr. Brownell has held positions of trust in 16 universities, has been sought for opinions by innumerable others, has written textbooks, conducted research programs and generally carved out for himself an international fame for his work on meaningful arithmetic.

Some of his observations and recommendations made 30 years ago were so far ahead of their time that they are now being introduced into schools as "new" methods.

Little Angry

"It makes me a little angry," said the quiet man, "when I see things I suggested 30 years ago being introduced as new ideas. It is a long time since I first suggested that children should understand what they learn rather than just memorize certain things.

"They must know what it's all about before they can learn properly and effectively."

On three occasions Dr. Brownell has stepped briefly aside from the 100 per cent academic life.

"I worked as an insurance salesman—better say I represented an insurance company—in 1918 to boost my slim high school teacher's salary.

"I served in the army and once tried running a grocery store. I was utterly incompetent in all three."

First Love

But Dr. Brownell was far from incompetent when it came to his first love: educational psychology as applied to learning arithmetic.

Last September he became the second man in the world to receive the highly prized Edward L. Thorndyke Award for "distinguished psychological contributions to education."

Among his many honors, this is most treasured.

Scottish Study

Dr. Brownell did not remain idle long after he retired, in 1962, from the Berkeley staff. He was soon on his way to Scotland on behalf of the United States Department of Education to study British youngsters at work and bring back some system comparisons.

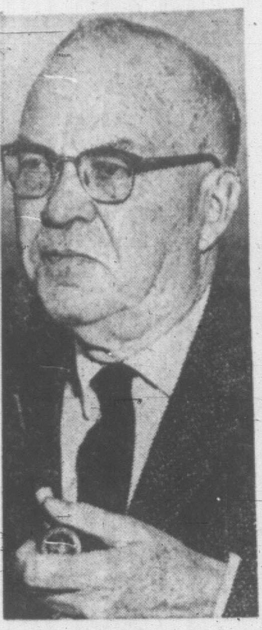
In Scotland he discovered that children studying under the Cuisinaire system had a great advantage over those studying under traditional systems.

In England the reverse was true. The Cuisinaire students trailed behind the traditionally taught students.

Why?

Crusade

"It's quite simple, really," Dr. Brownell said striking yet another match for his Meerschaum. "In Scotland the teachers on the Cuisinair system were better trained than the English teachers using that system. In Scotland, Cuisinaire had become a kind of crusade.



BROWNELL
. . . 'here I am'

"But in England the traditional teacher was much better trained than the traditionalist in Scotland.

"Hence the two opposite records of success and failure."

Dr. Brownell has applied to the United States government for a second grant to go back to Scotland to continue his work.

"If I get it, and I hope I do, I shall go on to Scotland after I am through here next spring," he said.

One Term Only

Even if he doesn't, Dr. Brownell will likely be lost to Uvic when the first blossoms appear next year. He agreed to help out for one semester only.

What does he see in the future for Uvic?

"It is hard to predict. But it will take great skill and a great deal of money to make the university a success," he answered. "The skill is there in nucleus now. I have great respect for Dr. Taylor and some of the men he has around him. But hiring top faculty men is a tough, competitive job these days and top men are needed if a reputation is to be built."

Dr. Brownell was gentle in his criticism of his present academic home.

Wasteful System

"It's a very wasteful system you have here in Victoria," he said. "I think it is ridiculous to only use a university plant nine months of the year. The quarter system is much better, for under that system the university plant is fully utilized."

But even in making the criticism Dr. Brownell was anxious that it be regarded as a suggestion for the future rather than as an intrusion by a guest.

A Democrat politically, Dr. Brownell supports United States policy in Viet Nam.

"I don't see what else we can do but stay in there," he said. "And I do deplore demonstrations by people not yet mature. I like to see young people demonstrate, but they should demonstrate for or against things they understand."

But Dr. Brownell's sharpest criticism was saved for university professors or lecturers who claim Canadian high schools are failing to graduate students ready for first year university.

Arrogant

"Any man who says that is arrogant," he said. "That's a strong word but I won't change it. He is saying that he is so superior that he cannot reach down to bring these students up. And he is forgetting that the average student in his first year is away from home for the first time, is in awe of the university, homesick and dismayed.

"It isn't easy for the student to find release under those conditions.

"I have troubles myself with freshmen. It is the first time I have taught them in all these years. I'm used to graduates and teach them better than I do freshmen. But the failure, if there is failure, lies with me, not the freshmen."

Dr. Brownell, who came to Uvic unheralded except by fellow professors, will leave a large gap in the faculty of education next spring when he packs his bags, lights up his Meerschaum and moves on to dispense his quiet wisdom elsewhere.

Refugees Pour Out of Cuba

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI)—Refugees in small boats poured out of Cuba without let-up today, braving a spray-driving northeaster in the Florida Straits while U.S. and Cuban officials neared agreement on a safer and more comfortable air shuttle for exiles.

In Washington, officials said only minor details stood in the way of concluding an agreement on a mass exile transfer, and that agreement could be reached today.

Friday the Florida Straits claimed the first victims of the small boat shuttle which has been underway since Oct. 7. One woman died en route to freedom and a dazed man told of four companions who went down with a boat they were taking to Cuba to bring back refugees.

The coast guard reported that despite the Castro government's announcement it wanted no more boats to come to the port of Camarioca for refugees after Thursday midnight, a trickle of boats continued from Florida toward Cuba over the straits.

About 180 refugees arrived in Key West and Marathon Friday, bringing to nearly 2,400 the total of Cubans who have fled their island since Castro opened the doors. Scores of boats were reported waiting to leave Camarioca and the coast guard anticipated a busy weekend.

The weather picked up in the straits about nightfall Friday. Northeast winds up to 30 miles an hour were forecast through today.

Refugees arriving aboard the cutter Ariadne Friday night were drenched with sea spray. The cutter plus two boats accompanying it and another small boat which landed at Marathon brought 109 refugees to freedom.

Earlier in the day the 60-foot vessel Double Play docked with the body of Maria Carballo, 66. She died a few miles off Florida apparently of a cerebral hemmorhage. Her son, Ramon, said he had gone to Cuba to bring his mother back more than two weeks ago, and that Cuban officials had been hesitant about letting her leave because of her health.

Also aboard the Double Play was Mario Castellanos, 39. He said he was one of two survivors from among six exiles who sailed for Cuba Oct. 20 from Miami aboard a boat called the Caribou II.

The boat sank in rough seas 15 to 20 miles off the north coast of Cuba.

How are we able to offer this service?

We are not a small loan company, discount company or an acceptance corporation. We deal only in loans of more than $1,500. By doing so we eliminate the high cost of servicing such as would be borne by a finance company making ten loans of $50 each. We deal only in mortgage loans for long terms and reasonable rates. Many a home-owner today may find that he is in the uncomfortable situation of having several high interest rate, short-term obligations that lead to over-burden monthly payments. Why not give us a call to see if we can arrange to consolidate all these obligations into one low-cost term low monthly payment loan.

We invite comparison!

We invite you to compare our facilities and loan system with any other finance or loan company. Thousands of British Columbians have compared and have taken out loans with our company. We have a complete network of offices throughout Western Canada. People from 186 cities, towns and villages throughout B.C. have come into our 4 offices to take advantage of our low-cost, low monthly payment loan service.

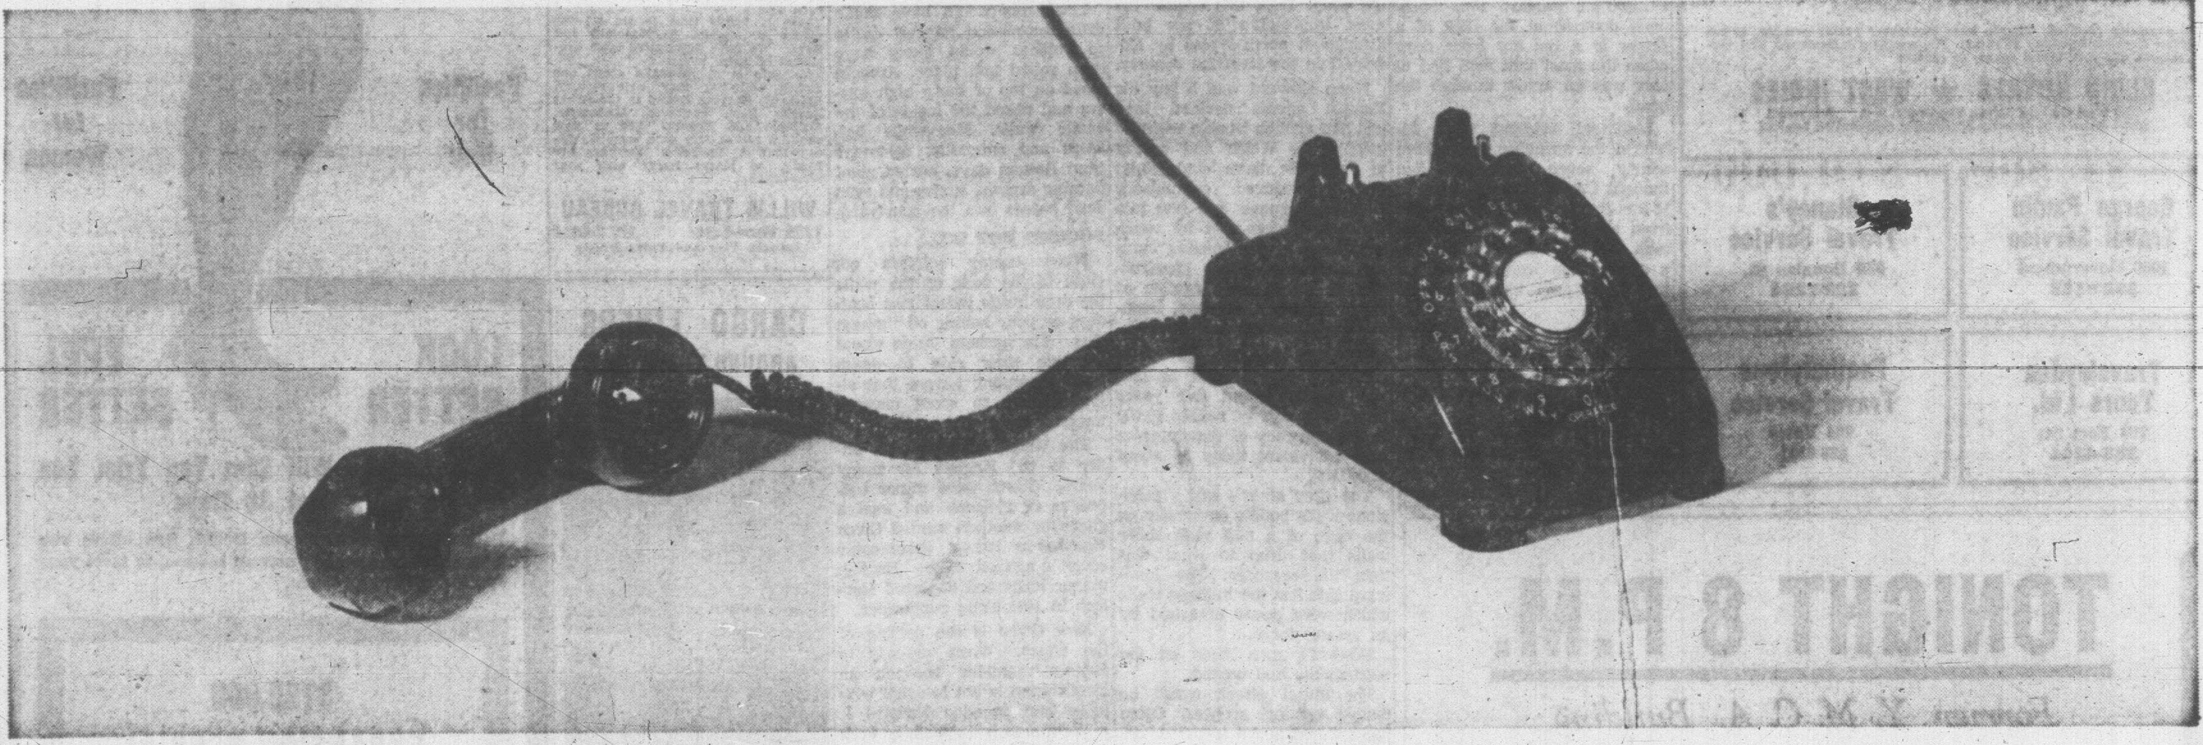
Why is the Ottawa line always busy between elections?



It is a sad fact that the only time the old line parties ever take any notice of the problems of British Columbia is when they want your vote. ■ Once they get that vote, they turn their backs, forsake their promises, ignore your support and generally act as if Canada ended at the Rockies. ■ We must put an end to this lopsided treatment and send to Ottawa, representatives who will fight for a fair deal for our province. The job can be done — elect your local Social Credit candidate.

TELL THEM YOU'VE HAD ENOUGH

The election of this Social Credit team will assure a fair deal for British Columbia

Bean Chewing Can Be Fatal

The word is out, ladies: Check your necklace before you chew on it; the beans may be bad for you. They may, in fact, be fatal.

Tourists from the Caribbean have been coming home again with bags, necklaces and toys of highly-toxic jequirity beans, called "crab eyes" in the West Indies. A few years ago the Haitians were manufacturing "voodoo swizzle sticks" of the semi-lethal bean.

Now the customs bureau reports that highly-poisonous trinkets are being purchased by visitors in Jamaica, Antigua and nearby Caribbean islands.

Invaders of Old Castle Use Cameras as Weapons

By ALAN WALKER

HARLECH, Wales (CP)—Pushbutton warfare with thousands doomed at the flick of a finger is a far cry from days when the most that men had to fear was an arrow through the head.

Medieval soldiers who defended the immense castle here nearly seven centuries ago thought Castle Harlech, with its 12-feet-thick walls, was safe from every means of direct attack. The only sure way to take a castle then was to wait for the inhabitants to run out of food.

Time passed. Jet fighters streak across the sky today and a lone raven in Harlech tower notes their passing with a sudden cry of alarm.

Holidayers bask in the afternoon sunshine by the sea below the castle walls.

"Men of Harlech" is known to many who have only a hazy awareness of what lies behind the song. It is this castle, the most impressive of six built throughout north Wales by Edward I in the late 13th century.

When Edward was a boy his English agents decided they had had enough trouble with the neighboring Welsh and sought to subjugate them completely. They introduced compulsory English language and law into Wales and were met by rebellion. Late in the ensuing campaign, Edward began construction of his massive castles at Flint, Rhuddlan, Conway, Beaumaris, Carnarvon and Harlech.

THICKEST WALLS

Harlech was started in 1285 and finished about five years later at a cost of nearly £9,000 in the currency of the times—a sum equivalent today to about £3,000,000.

The grey slate-and-sandstone walls huddle ominously on the edge of a cliff with sheer walls that drop to what was then the seashore. The landward side has the thickest walls which were never breached by an assault force.

Edward's men stood on the battlements and waited.

The initial attack would be fended off by archers. Often these would prove sufficient deterrent, but let us suppose the enemy resources were more powerful. Standard routine for castle siege involved filling in the moat so that battering rams and other machinery could be brought up to the walls.

The rams would have made little impression on this castle so belfries would likely have been rolled into place. Archers stood on top of these high towers and raked the inside of the castle walls. Meanwhile ballistas and catapults, holdovers from Roman days, hurled giant flaming arrows, stones and even dead horses into the courtyard.

POURED HOT OIL

When enemy soldiers got close to the base of the walls the men inside would toss boulders or pour boiling oil through slits. The archers inside would continue their rain of death from projecting towers that allowed them to shoot inwards towards their own walls.

The Welsh didn't knuckle under to the English for many years. There were minor outbreaks of violence and then a guerrilla chieftain named Owen Glendower led a spectacular revolt against the English manor lords and captured Harlech in 1404 using gunpowder.

Now Owen is the darling of the Welsh. When anybody in Britain mentions Harlech an Englishman is apt to swell with pride and mention Edward I. A Welshman will speak, or even sing, of Owen.

The capture of Harlech was the climax of Owen's career. He held it for four years, moved his family into it and even called a Welsh parliament there. But Henry IV fought back and Owen was defeated.

Harlech was in operation during the Wars of the Roses and the civil war in the 17th century.

Modern Harlech has its invaders, too.

They swarm through a turnstile, past the chapel, under the spike portcullises, through the giant gatehouse, through the kitchens and dining hall, up the stair turrets and over the battlements.

Their weapons are cameras and guidebooks.

Japanese Were First!

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—You can forget the argument over whether the Norse or the Italians discovered the New World, a University of Pennsylvania professor said yesterday.

The Japanese probably beat them both by about 7,000 years and Siberians were here thousands of years earlier, according to the Penn archeologist.

Froelich G. Rainey, director of the university's museum, said this week that excavations in Alaska during the summer uncovered tiny flint blades dating back to 6000 BC. He said the blades were similar to those uncovered previously in the Aleutian Islands and the eastern coast of Japan.

"This would indicate that the first settlers in this hemisphere migrated by foot from the eastern coast of Asia via the Aleutians, along the southern edge of a huge land mass that is now the Bering Sea," he said.

Rainey said he and Brown University archeologists found the flints on the Kobuk River about 100 miles inland from the port city of Kotzebue at a crossing used by herds of migrating caribou for thousands of years.

He said the discovery "may revise our ideas about how people first came to this country for another reason."

"For while evidence of migration from Siberia was turned up in Alaska 15 years ago," he said, "it was thought that these crossings occurred in 15000 to 20000 BC.

"These new findings indicate that the migrations lasted much longer than was previously believed. And they may have taken place along a different route—the Aleutians."

Rainey said eight distinct levels of activity were uncovered in the excavations and radio-carbon analysis showed they represented civilizations at 1,000 year intervals from 6000 BC to the present.

Atlantic Fares To Be Reduced

VIENNA (UPI) — Passenger air fare cuts will affect Atlantic routes next year but no changes are expected for flights over the Pacific and between European countries.

Traffic director Don Reynolds reported to delegates to the 21st general meeting of the International Air Transport Association on results of the recent traffic conference in Bermuda earlier this month.

He said "remarkable success has been achieved in maintaining stability and uniformity in passenger fares and selling practices."

Nickname Justified

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—Wellington, capital of New Zealand, is widely known as Windy Wellington by people from all other parts of the country. They say a Wellingtonian can be identified anywhere in the world by the way he instinctively clutches his hat as he rounds a street corner.

Now scientists have produced confirmation that Wellington's nickname is justified. They reported that meteorological records show Wellington has had the highest wind gust measured in New Zealand—154 miles an hour.

The studies show that Wellington is also more prone to recurring high winds than other cities. Wellington can expect gusts of 134 miles an hour once every five years.

Success Story With Khuskhus

A success story in straw—or khuskhus grass — or banana leaves—and one that traces its beginning to Amerindians who lived in the Caribbean island of Trinidad thousands of years ago. Their designs and patterns, the materials they used, all can be bought today by a visitor to this tropical island, or be seen in other parts of the world where the demand for this unique and attractive craft is growing year by year.

It has all come about because Trinidad's dying basketry art was revived some 20 years ago and now forms the principal part of a prosperous handicrafts co-operative.

Realizing that in the remote country districts the indigenous crafts of basketry and mat-making were fast being forgotten, the Trinidad authorities made a great effort to revive them, not only from an aesthetic point of view, but also in order to provide practical employment for many of the poorer village wives who may be unable to take work outside their homes but can put their inherent skill to some profitable purpose.

And so a cottage industry was created and a co-operative formed which is now a well-established thriving concern bringing increased benefits to its members each year, while its products are gaining international fame.

The unique and attractive articles vary from petite banana leaf handbags for little girls to huge khuskhus grass carpets, and include gaily decorated hats, wooden ornaments, trays, vases, mats and shoes.

Originally the Amerindians discovered that the versatile tirite reed growing in great quantities in Trinidad's forests could be woven and made into a number of household articles.

Basketry, however, is not the only local craft encouraged and sold under the auspices of the Trinidad co-operative. Perhaps the most beautiful, certainly the most durable and expensive, is the graded woodwork designed by one particular craftsman.

Taking strips of variously colored wood, he combines them together to make graceful bookends, lovely shallow bowls, trays and other articles. Smoothly-polished, giving a satin-like sheen, the woods blend together to form a perfect patern.

Local woods include mahogany, cedar and purple heart, and a certain amount of wood carving and inlay work are done at different places in Trinidad which find their way to the handicraft centres.

'Pearl of the Pacific'

They call it "The Garden City," "the Monte Carlo of the Americas," and "the "Pearl of the Pacific," and each name well applies for Vina del Mar is all these and much more.

The beautiful city, located 80 miles from Chile's capital of Santiago, was founded in 1874. In the 90 years intervening it has become a fashionable and luxurious Pacific resort.

Santiago, served twice-weekly by Canadian Pacific Airlines DC-8 jets, is only hours away from all major centres served by the airlines five-continent routes. Vina del Mar and all of Chile can be leisurely explored from this central city.

Mother nature had a large part in making Vina such a renowned tourist attraction when she combined its forest-terraced landscapes with its long clean beaches. Then she added an ideal climate which allows for cloudless, sun-drenched days in summer (when Europe and North America are facing winter blizzards) and agreeable weather with almost no rainfall even at the height of Chile's winter (June to August).

If Leafs Can't Do Job, Who Will Stop AHLers?

Hal Malone

LOOKS AT SPORTS

Over a long "cuppa" with Indianapolis race driver Robert Harkey Jr. . . .

Do the tips on driving safety you give high school students have a sustaining effect? Or are they soon forgotten, a la Billy Graham's "instant Christianity?"

"That depends on the children. I try and sneak a few jokes into my talks and if they get them right away I feel they'll remember and follow through. I don't tell them not to exceed the speed limit or stop for all red lights. That stuff they've heard a thousand times and it goes right through their ears. I tell them 10 minutes a week checking their cars could mean a lifetime of accident-free driving."

BOB HARKEY

Do you think a boy of 16 is mature enough to operate a lethal weapon like an automobile?

"If he has completed a course in driver education, I'd say 'yes.'

"No youngster should learn to drive from his family. Anybody can be taught how to let out a clutch or steer. But youngsters should learn the 'why' of driving. This is how to develop the proper mental attitude. In the U.S., driver education in schools will soon be mandatory. In one poll I saw, high school students who took driver education classes had better safety records than college graduates or adults."

If race drivers wear shoulder harnesses why isn't there greater emphasis on their use by street drivers?

"It's hard to get across the simplest safety measures to the public. Eventually, maybe in 30 years, everybody will wear helmets. But imagine trying to get a helmet over a bouffant hairdo! Seat belts save 5,000 to 10,000 lives a year in the U.S. but you can't get some women to wear them because they don't want to wrinkle their dresses."

★ ★ ★

Why is auto racing the largest spectator sport in America? What's the appeal?

"It's hard to figure. Why do people like Demolition Derbies? The cars only go 30 miles an hour yet they draw knockout crowds. A lot of people say they don't want to see drivers hurt or killed. This I don't believe. I think they want to see accidents. They don't ordinarily see a car turn over on the street.

"Maybe racing fans have a hidden desire to be in the cockpit. Racing is a form of expression. They can't drive competitively but they go to the track because it puts them close to the men they would like to be."

I understand you have a civilian pilot's license, have done wing-walking, sky-diving and parachuting. Exercise is wonderful, but isn't this an ideal way to get fitted for a long, black box?

"There's no danger in sky-diving—if you know what you're doing. Wing-walking? You're strapped on. Even picking a ribbon off goal-posts when you're doing 130 miles an hour upside down isn't as hard as it looks. It's not like the old days when you flew by your teeth. You're as safe as the pilot. Unless the plane crashes.

"I hear a lot about parachutists crashing and I wonder about it. When I was with the U.S. Rangers, we used to stuff our chutes like you fold dirty laundry into a bag. Our instructor used to say there's only three ways your chute would fail. If you packed it wet, twisted it or got tied up in it while falling."

★ ★ ★

You also tried boxing. What made you switch from butting heads to butting fenders?

"I couldn't get fights when I wanted them. There wasn't enough money in it to warrant not working.

Troy Ruttman announced his retirement last year from driving. Too dangerous, he said. In effect: "I'm kooky and so is everybody who does this for a living." How do you feel about the danger factor?

"Ruttman and I are the same age, 35. When a guy gets older he tends to slack off. And Ruttman had three bad accidents last year, any one of which could have been fatal. Perhaps he felt his reflexes going. I don't want to knock Ruttman but I think it boils down to what the Marines call 'The Tiger in The Man.'

"That tiger makes or breaks a fighter pilot. Why does a guy keep on fighting when all hope seems lost? When you're doing 150 miles an hour and your car spins out of control why does a guy keep on fighting? Why doesn't he give up? Same with a pilot. If he has a flameout, why does he fight to save it rather than bail out?"

★ ★ ★

Have you been injured badly?

"I've been lucky. I dislocated my neck, four, five times and I've had my feet scalded by hot water and oil. I broke my nose three times; once in the ring, once in football and once when I was asleep in the back seat of a passenger car and the driver ran into a truck carrying coffins."

Then you think driving is really safe?

"Well, for me race driving has been a lot safer than highway driving."

How's that again?

"Last April I was driving about 55 on a highway near Charlotte, North Carolina. All of a sudden this hog that had been running alongside the road dashed in front of me. I hit the brakes but ended up with 400-pounds of hog all over the grill.

"I've raced for 16 years and I've never hit a hog on a racetrack."

Barons Play Here Tonight After Belting Totems 7-2

Victoria Maple Leafs have inherited the task of trying to prove Western Hockey League clubs haven't chewed off a bigger mouthful than they can handle.

This is the first season of interlocking games between WHL teams and American League squads and the eastern boys are threatening to batter the prestige of the westerners.

Los Angeles Blades have lost three straight games in American League cities. This was expected since the Blades are rated one of the weakest coast clubs.

But Friday night Cleveland Barons moved into Seattle and struck a mighty blow for AHL superiority by blasting the Totems 7-2.

Tonight the Barons, winners of both their starts this season, step into Memorial Arena for a battle with the Leafs, who are leading the WHL with four wins and a tie in six outings.

If the Leafs suffer the same fate as the Totems, it would appear the western circuit is in trouble.

Police Break Up Vancouver Hassle

In a Western League game played Friday at Vancouver, the Canucks whipped San Francisco Seals 3-1. Tempers were boiling in the final period and a post-game scuffle resulted in referee Willie Papp and Vancouver coach Bert Olmstead tossing punches with a group of 'Frisco players, led by Larry McNabb. Police moved in quickly to break up the argument.

Howie Hughes and Jack Evans gave the Canucks a 2-0 lead in the first period and Dave Duke added the third goal in the middle stanza.

Gilles Villemure, who turned back 22 attempts by the Seals, lost his shutout with less than a minute to play when veteran Al Nicholson connected for the San Francisco tally.

Two Seals picked up misconducts late in the game—a 10-minute misconduct to Gerry Odrowski, and a game misconduct to Forbes Kennedy for swearing at referee Papp.

Seattle Coach Calls It Disgrace

The referees weren't taking much from anyone—coach Bud Poile of San Francisco found himself sent off the bench late in the game for abusive language to a referee, and that carried an automatic $50 fine with it.

Bobby Kromm, a newcomer to the Western League coaching ranks, was very quiet after Seattle's 7-2 loss.

"Have you ever seen such a disgrace?" he said quietly after the game.

Ron Atwell and Joe Szura both scored twice for the Barons who led 3-2 going into the final period. They collected four insurance markers in the third frame while the Totems were unable to get out of their end.

Playmaker Guyle Fielder assisted on both Seattle goals. Jim Powers knocked in the first counter for the Totems at 12:05 of the second period and Bill MacFarland got the second with only two seconds left in the middle stanza.

The other Cleveland goals were scored by Bob Courcy, Fred Glover and Keith McCreary.

HUGE DOUBLE AT PAWTUCKET

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP)—With a 100-to-1 shot winning the first race, the daily double at Narragansett Park, Friday, paid a whopping $3,513 for $2. The big payoff was formed by Sarge, who returned $202.20 after taking the first race, and Guemes, who paid $26 for his victory in the second.

Stamps Drop Title on Line In Sunday Tiff With Lions

By The Canadian Press

Larry Robinson, Martin Fabi, Tommy-Joe Coffey and Calgary Stampeders could be the big winners when the Western Football League ends its regular season with two weekend games.

Then again, it could be Peter Kempf, Randy Kerbow, Hugh Campbell and Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

A number of individual winners as well as the WFC playoff structure will be decided when Saskatchewan Roughriders play Edmonton Eskimos Saturday and the Stampeders play British Columbia Lions at Vancouver Sunday.

Among the more interesting duels will be Robinson of the Stamps against Kempf of B.C. for the scoring title; Fabi of the Roughriders against Kerbow of the Esks for the punting title and Coffey of the Esks against Campbell of the Riders for the pass-receiving title.

It's all on the line for the Stamps in their game against the fourth-place Lions.

CAN BREAK TIE

If the Stamps win or tie, they will break a first-place tie with the Blue Bombers and leave Winnipeg to face Saskatchewan in the sudden-death semi-final.

If the Stamps lose, they relinquish first place to the Blue Bombers who have beaten them two of three in league play. Calgary then would miss the valuable first-round rest in the playoffs and be left in the showdown semi-final with Saskatchewan.

Tonight's Edmonton - Saskatchewan game will be televised over Channels 2 and 6, starting at 8. Sunday's game at Vancouver will be seen on Cablevision only and broadcast over CKNW (980), starting at 2 p.m.

The Kerbow-Fabi and Coffey-Campbell duels will both be in the Edmonton game.

Kerbow and Fabi are tied for the WFC punting lead with 42.4-yard averages.

COFFEE LEADING

Coffey has 75 receptions to Campbell's 71—and will move into the Esks' defensive backfield to put man-on-man coverage on Campbell.

Campbel lended a season-long holdout Friday and signed a three-year contract with the Roughies.

The 27-year-old flanker had been saying all season that he would play out his option and become a free agent. He indicated he would try for a place with an American team next year.

Vic High Captures Title in Overtime

Willie Wong and Gary Goy each scored two goals, but the man of the hour for Victoria High Friday was Luciano Zambrano.

Zambrano scored a goal in the first overtime period to give the Vics a 5-4 victory over Oak Bay and the championship of the Inter-High Soccer League's second division.

There was never more than a one-goal difference in the thrilling, sudden-death final at Royal Athletic Park.

Wong scored Victoria's first two goals and Goy popped in the next pair. Bruce Howe and Dave Fish each scored twice for Oak Bay.

The same two schools are due to meet again next Friday in the first division final.

HOOP GROUP CARDS CLINIC

Victoria and District Amateur Basketball Association will sponsor a clinic for coaches and referees.

Directed by Ollie Goldsmith and "Mo" Turner, the clinic will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at S. J. Willis Junior High School.

Information obtained at a recent clinic at Vancouver will be included in the instruction and new rules will be explained.

All interested persons are invited to attend. Information may be obtained from Bob Bird at 385-0793.

FIELD FOR INTERNATIONAL . . . . . . TRIMMED TO FIVE

Bookies Slice Odds on George

(From CP Reports)

Heavy betting from the United States has forced a firm of London bookmakers to shorten the price on George Royal, the Canadian entry in the Washington International horse race, to 10-to-1 fror 33-to-1.

But George Royal, a four-year-old dark bay colt bred in British Columbia, is still the longest priced entry in the race at Laurel, Md., Nov. 11.

George Royal is owned by Ernie Hammond of Vancouver and Robert Hall of Aldergrove, B.C.

The bookmaking firm said Friday that $60,000 on George Royal had arrived in the last two days. The favorite is Roman Brother at 2-to-1.

The International suffered a double setback Friday when Convamore of England was forced to withdraw and it was learned the Russian entry, Aniline, had been shipped back to Moscow.

However, Laurel race track officials expressed hope Aniline, third in the 1½-mile turf classic last year, would be on hand for the race.

It was also reported that two more foreign entries may join the field for the $150,000 race. Laurel president John D. Schapiro is negotiating with the owner of a European horse and another invitation may be issued after the Clasico Simon Bolivar in Caracas, Venezuela, Sunday.

The remaining field now stands at five, including Roman Brother and Hail To All of the United States, Super Sam of England, George Royal of Canada and Diatone of France.

Convamore, a three-year-old who won the King Edward VII stakes last summer, was withdrawn because he had developed lameness following a workout.

The four-year-old Aniline won a race in Cologne, West Germany, Oct. 16, and was expected to be shipped to the United States, but now is reported back in Moscow.

VIKINGS SINK NAVY

Skating Session Does the Trick!

Douglas Anderson, the freshman coach, issued a simple invitation to the University of Victoria Vikings' hockey team earlier this week:

"Leave your sticks in the dressing room and come out for a skate."

Skate they did, and Anderson's request for the fundamental thing in hockey paid off Friday as the Vikings hammered out a 7-3 victory over Navy in an Esquimalt District League shoot-in; match at the Soprts Centre.

Vikings' skating emphasis showed up in the third period, when the collegians broke a 3-3 tie by rapping in four goals within six minutes.

Mike Woodley and Brian Whitten each scored twice for University. Mike McAvoy, Glynn Harper and Jim Haggerty (with the winner) added the other Viking goals while Ray Gregoire, with two, and Hardy Crowe, with one, replied for the Sailors.

PENALTY PARADE

The game was marred by a total of 64 minutes in penalties and an apparent mis-tally in the shots on goal. The penalty parade included misconducts to Gregoire and Viking's Don Ferguson.

Behind the goals, the mathematicians counted 100 shots, including 70 by Vikings.

STANDARDS LOWER

Cassius Won't Have Arithmetic Rematch

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, floored twice by army intelligence tests, apparently isn't due for a rematch any time in the future.

The question arose after the defence department announced Thursday that it was lowering intelligence standards for draftees and volunteers to get more men for the Viet Nam buildup.

But Kentucky selective service officials said today they have been informed by the department that "it would not be desirable at the present time" to re-test persons who flunked the test when standards were higher.

Clay flunked the first army test at Coral Gables, Fla., in January, 1964. He was tested again in March, 1964, and failed. At the time, the army said Clay couldn't handle simple arithmetic.

Soccer's Co-Leaders Put Records on Line

Gorge Molsons and Hourigan Kickers, the undefeated leaders, step out Sunday to preserve their edge atop the first division of the Victoria and District Soccer League.

The surprising Molsons will be seeking their third straight win when they meet Victoria West at Central Park while the Kickers are playing Brodies at Royal Athletic Park.

In another first-division match, Luckies will play Navy at Heywood Avenue Park.

In second-division activity, front-running Esquimat is due to play Gorge at Bullen Park; Sidney will meet Wanderers at Beacon Hill Park, and the University Vikings will entertain Victoria West on the Gordon Head campus.

All games get under way at 2 p.m.

TORONTO (CP)—Regardless of the betting odds, Monday night's heavyweight championship fight between Ernie Terrell and George Chuvalo at Maple Leaf Gardens shapes up as a battle of underdogs.

The World Boxing Association conferred the title on Terrell when he outpointed Eddie Machen March 5.

In the eyes of many fight fans, the six-foot-six Chicagoan will remain a committee-room champion until he beats Cassius Clay, the unbeaten titleholder. The WBA stripped Clay of the crown in September, 1964, for defying its regulations by signing a return-bout agreement before his first meeting with Sonny Liston.

Chuvalo, Terrell's first opponent since he won the title, is getting his best chance at the big money when he enters the ring Monday.

LOSER A WINNER

Ironically, the rugged Canadian champion earned it through a losing fight, his rousing 12-rounder against Floyd Patterson in New York's Madison Square Garden last February. The former heavyweight king, who might have had the shot at Terrell's title, chose to fight Clay at Las Vegas Nov. 22.

The WBA hopes to clarify the heavyweight picture by matching the winners of the Terrell-Chuvalo and Patterson-Clay fights.

Fighting before a hometown crowd, expected to number 13,000, Chuvalo figures to earn about $88,000 to Terrell's $110,000. Based on the crowd estimate, gate receipts would total $180,000 at admission prices ranging from $5 to a $50 top with closed-circuit television bringing in another $420,000 or so.

Terrell will pit a five-inch advantage in height and reach and effective left jab against the brawling Chuvalo's two-fisted attack to the body.

The 26-year-old champion has the more impressive won-lost record, 37-4 including 18 knockouts. He was stopped once in 1962 by Cleveland Williams, whom he outpointed in a return bout the following year.

Victoria boxing fans may be able to see Monday's bout through closed-circuit television at the McPherson Playhouse, starting at 7 p.m.

Chuvalo, 33-9-2, has 27 knockouts and has never been knocked off his feet in competition.

Terrell's best-known victim, apart from Machen and Williams, was the veteran, Zora Folley, whom he outpointed in July, 1963. Folley won a comfortable decision over Chuvalo six months later.

Busy Days Ahead For Lady Bowlers

Some males are apt to disagree, but BB stands for "busy bowlers."

The busy season, for Victoria's women bowlers, starts Sunday when the third annual marathon fivepin tournament is held at Esquimalt Bowladrome.

No Separatist But Quebecer Hot at CAHA

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP)—Roland Mercier, a governor of the Quebec provincial Junior "A" Hockey League, demanded this week that the Canadian cede its jurisdiction over parts of Quebec province to the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association.

Mercier, who represents Shawnigan Bruins, said: "I am far from being a separatist, but it is high time the Quebec sporting population awoke, arose, and claimed its rights."

He complained about the length of time he had been waiting to hear whether Hull Mustangs could play in the Quebec Junior "A" League, and said: "It is illogical for Quebec players to have to ask people outside the province for permission to play Quebec teams."

The Junior "A" League comes under the jurisdiction of the QAHA, while the CAHA is responsible for teams in Papineau, Pontiac, Hull, Gatineau, Temiscamingue, Rouen, Noranda, Abiti-East and Abitibi West. These nine districts come under the CAHA Ottawa district.

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — A boxing fan hit in the eye by a two-shilling piece was awarded £400 Australian ($968) in court. Antonio Trovarelli, 21, had sued Stadiums Limited for injuries suffered when hit by one of a shower of coins thrown in the ring after a preliminary bout in 1964.

Cliff Thwarts Western Tide

It was cool-weather sailing all the way and Victoria distance aces successfully beat a Western Washington tide in the annual Royal Canadian Legion road races Friday.

Victoria Spartan Track Club stars John Cliff and Norm Patenaude finished 1-2 and the Western Washington State University track club picked off the next six positions.

17-SECOND MARGIN

The winner was John Cliff, who toured the four-mile course in 18 minutes and 40 seconds, or 17 seconds better than Patenaude's time.

Running in a slight drizzle, Jim Eaton of Victoria High captured the three-mile intermediate race in 14:14. He was followed home by Chris Garret-Petts of Oak Bay (14:37) and Charlie Thorne of Mount Douglas (14:44).

One title moved out of Victoria.

Shawnigan Lake's Doug Hansen won the junior trophy, whipping across the two-mile course in 11 minutes, 37 seconds. Royal Oak's Bill Beaveridge was second in 11:46 and Dave Hugget of Vic High was third in 12:16.

UNEASY TRUCE

DR Factions Near Violence

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—Six months after the April revolution began, the Dominican Republic seems a long way from peace and only a grenade throw away from violence.

Despite a laboriously - fashioned "act of national reconciliation," the factions involved are still at each other's throats. This is because the Organization of American States and the contending sides worked out a settlement based more on exhaustion than on good faith.

The ultimate solution may be unpalatable to both: Full occupation of the country by OAS forces under a modified form of trusteeship.

This is the conclusion of many prominent Dominicans and some diplomats who viewed the OAS peace formula only with mild enthusiasm when it was signed Aug. 31.

To them, the settlement lacked an important ingredient: Machinery to implement the peace-formula conditions, particularly civilian disarmament, the verification of this disarmament and the reintegration of the armed forces and national police.

ALIENATES BOTH SIDES

Compounding the OAS formula's shortcomings, its critics argue, Provisional President Hector Garcia-Godoy has in trying to please everyone apparently alienated both sides.

Material for his cabinet was in short supply among moderates and conservatives, but it abounded in professionals, avowedly political independents, with rebel inclinations. The pro-rebel strain is strong in the present government.

This frightened the military. It found a sympathetic response for its fears among far-rightist political leaders. The stage was set then for the still unresolved crisis.

Relations between the military and the civilian population, in Santo Domingo at least, have been a story of abiding hostility and nearly non-stop violence. This was what fueled the April revolt.

The president's decision not to change the military leadership brought increased pressures from the rebel side. This only widened the gap between the two sides.

The current crisis reached its climax when Garcia-Godoy ordered troops into a downtown fortress the rebels regarded as a shrine. The violent exchanges between the troops and armed rebel sympathizers showed arms remained in the hands of civilians in the rebel sector.

The situation brought back to Santo Domingo the OAS political committee that forged the original peace formula. It resulted in sending inter-American peace force troops into the heart of the city—an area rebel leaders had sworn never would be touched by foreign boots.

The heart of the crisis is whether Garcia-Godoy should reshuffle his cabinet to give it a semblance of impartiality, or whether he should fire the military chiefs.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1965 --PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

Last night a lonesome wind, at least I suppose it was the wind, came moaning around our house; and probably because I happened to be re-reading one of Thomas Raddall's novels, my thoughts strayed back to a trip we once made together.

The time was a good few years ago, the place a lost pond ringed by Nova Scotia pinewoods except for a brushy tongue at its far end.

If this were a ghost story—which it isn't, of course, since who believes in ghosts?—I would name that spot on the Queen's County map, 'The Lake of the Frozen Scream.'

We started out from Tom Raddall's town of Liverpool on a bright, quiet day of early fall, travelling first by the coastal highway, then inland on a secondary road which we traded presently for a dim woods trace.

This ended in a ragged little clearing studded with the tombstone-like slabs of whitish rock that crop out here and there along the South Shore. We left the car, locking it against visitation by bears, and pushed on along a trail that ventured in a furtive sort of way through the second-growth.

It was quiet in there, no sound but the minor scuffing of our boots, and the wind-sigh in the treetops.

The half-hour trail brought us to Tom's log cabin where he sometimes worked on his books, and to sunshine startling after the gloom of the woods.

★ ★ ★

It was very quiet. Even the breeze had been left behind. The lake before us was dead calm, more grey than green, its surface dotted here and there with rock nubs each bleached and round as a skull.

"Lake's still at summer low," Tom said, "but if you like, we can put a canoe in and head down to the far end."

This we did. I hadn't paddled bow in a canoe for quite a spell, and it was pleasant to ease along, rhythm established and sun warm on back and shoulders, with an eye cocked for those oddly-shaped pinnacles.

Not all of them broke water. Something grated gently beneath us; we slid over; and while I was resolving to keep closer watch, Tom Raddall spoke from his place aft:

"You see the low brown patch there at the end? They call that the haunted bog.

"How come?" I asked, expecting some legend of early-day Nova Scotia.

"Every year or two," Tom said, "a scream comes out of the bog. It's no ordinary scream. Woodsmen who have heard it says it's absolutely unimaginable. There's no warning. The scream starts at full volume. It fills the air, and goes on and on."

"What causes it?" I asked as we skirted another rock-skull; and in the same breath, "Have you heard it?"

I'm not sure Tom answered the second question. To the first, he replied, "Nobody knows. Marsh gas escaping, from a fissure, perhaps. But a couple of geologists worked the bog over foot by foot a while ago. They found no clues."

We hung up on another rock, worked the canoe off it, and promptly grazed again. The ledges seemed to lurk everywhere.

Another grounding, and we decided further keel-skinning was pointless. Anyway, the bog was now only a couple of hundred yards away. I gave it a hard, long look, where it basked so blandly in the afternoon heat. Then we swung the canoe and started back on the way we had come.

"One of those geologists I mentioned," Tom told me, "had a neat turn of phrase. They were paddling away from the bog when the scream cut loose behind them."

I missed a stroke and dipped again.

"Like being stabbed in the neck with an icicle," said the ruddy, burly Nova Scotian who gave us 'His Majesty's Yankees' and an armload of other well-spun tales. That's how he described it."

No, the bog didn't give tongue—not that day—and as I said at the start, this isn't a ghost story. Still and all, I'm not sorry to be a continent's width distant from the Lake of the Frozen Scream this night!

CRAZY? JUST DRIVE (READ) ON

The young man tootled to a stop.

As a surprised crowd watched, the engine of his little car dropped out.

Calmly, and ever so gently, he picked the engine up, replaced it in the car, and chugged on his way.

A few miles away another young man was busy dismantling his gear box while travelling downhill in first gear.

Crazy?

Sure it is.

But it happened.

British Columbia Automobile Association has a file to prove it.

The file includes excerpts from letters written by drivers trying to explain their problem.

If their mistakes behind the wheel are as numerous as their mistakes behind the pen . . . God help us.

For instance:

"The engine, although tuned, faded, and I lost the engine everytime I stopped."

Then there's the other man: "I cannot get out of first gear on downhill gradients without dismantling the gear box."

"I am the only person who has driven this car so I know it has never been badly driven by anyone else."

"I feel it would be in your interest to exchange this vehicle for my son."

"At the time of reporting this my wife is expecting and would like your assurance there will be no further mishaps."

"Although I have a new car, I am in fact a menace on the roads."

Finally there's the Honest John who speaks for all the others:

"I've told all my friends about it and they are just as disgusting as I am."

ART BURGESS
. . . 'half a stadium'

Amateurs Charge 'Sell-Out'

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Amateur sport in Victoria has been "sold down the river."

That was the charge levelled today against municipalities supporting construction of a Greater Victoria Centennial Stadium on University of Victoria grounds.

Members of the Centennial Stadium Committee severely criticized building the stadium at Uvic.

The committee, composed of Victoria Sports Council members, feels that location of a civic stadium on university grounds will lead to "tremendous conflict" when the collegiate sports program expands in later years.

Victoria city council formally endorsed the stadium proposal on Thursday. Aldermen also agreed to guarantee up to $100,000 in extra payment should tenders exceed the $430,000 available through centennial grants.

Art Burgess, secretary of the stadium committee, charged the move is "an obvious compromise between the city and Saanich because they couldn't agree with each other and couldn't satisfy anybody else."

'Distressed, Dismayed' by Action

"Placement of the stadium on university grounds, distresses and dismays us (the committee)," said Mr. Burgess.

"We remained silent when the idea was first suggested, but feel that now is the time to speak up. For one thing, time is becoming important. A firm decision on the stadium will have to be made by the end of November.

"The committee has worked on the stadium project for a year but wasn't consulted about the university site.

"The city's argument is that the committee did its job—pointing out the need for a good stadium in Greater Victoria.

"As far as we're concerned, we're only getting half a stadium, and that's not good enough. Sports leaders in Victoria are agreed that it will be practically impossible to set up any suitable legislative formula for the use of the stadium.

"You cannot alter the fact that the stadium will wind up on university grounds.

'Political Bodies Come and Go'

"Political bodies come and go. The present administrations may act in good faith, but who can say what the politicians will do in 10 or 20 years from now?"

Mr. Burgess also suggested that the physical education and sports groups at the university "are not in entire agreement" with the proposal.

"Let's face it. The university sports program at the university today is very small. But in a few years it will grow to tremendous proportions, and that's when the trouble is going to start," he said.

"As far as I'm concerned, amateur sport has been sold down the river.

"The professional politicians are dabbling in a pie, but they won't come and ask for advice from the people who use the facilities and know of all the problems involved."

Mr. Burgess said the Victoria Sports Council and stadium committee was "almost unanimously" agreed that a site at Burnside and Tillicum, proposed by Saanich, was the best choice. The city supported a Topaz Park site.

NEW DANCE CRAZE hits Victoria tonight. Street demonstration above for Times photo punographer Bill Halkett is meant as an inspiration. Dance really starts in bed in most homes. When lights are out and everything quiet, suddenly the male or female partner leaps up with a shout, stubs a toe, hops nimbly to the clock and, like the girls above, PUTS THE HANDS BACK. You put them back one hour. A sense of timing is all important if you want to be in rhythm with the rest of the province when daylight saving ends at 2 a.m. If you can't sleep after all that, you will have an extra hour to ponder the wiles of photographers.

BY POLICE

'Tell or Else' Charge Denied

A man convicted today of vagrancy said police threatened him with the charge unless he got them some information to help solve recent break-ins in the city.

Gerald Kleiner said Detective-Constable Ted James and Murray MacArthur told him that if he didn't tell them "who was pulling all the B & E's (breaking and enterings) in town" they would book him for vagrancy.

Det.-Cons. MacArthur replied to Kleiner that "I don't know what you're talking about."

THREE MONTHS

Kleiner was given a three-months jail term when convicted after a trial. Magistrate William Ostler said the evidence showed he had been leading an aimless life for the past month and was wandering about the streets with persons of doubtful character.

Det.-Cons. James and MacArthur testified that they checked Kleiner three times recently. When picked up for vagrancy at 5 p.m. on Wednesday he had only 25 cents in his pockets, they said.

Kleiner said that when he was checked by the two officers they kept "bugging" him to get them information about a recent wave of break-ins in Victoria.

He said they told him "we'll book you" for vagrancy if he did not co-operate with them.

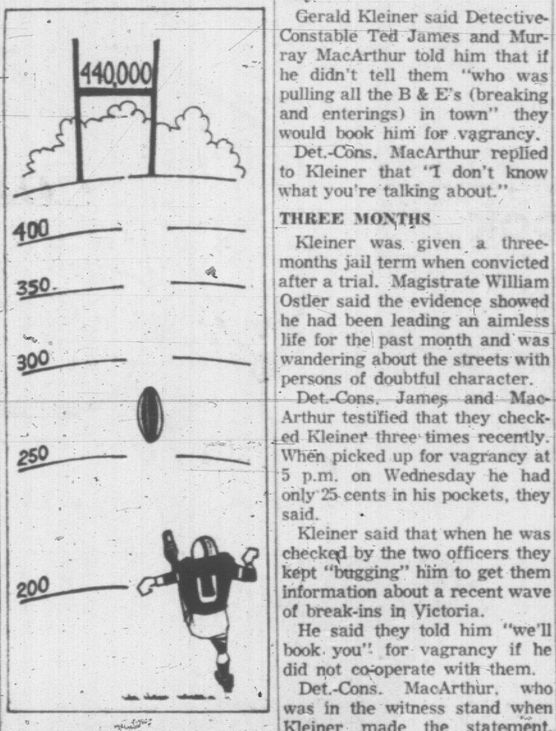
Det.-Cons. MacArthur, who was in the witness stand when Kleiner made the statement, said, "I don't know what you're talking about."

'DON'T HARASS'

The magistrate said he saw nothing wrong with the policemen questioning a person with Kleiner's associations about break-ins. He said it was permissible for police to ask questions "so long as they do not harass citizens."

The magistrate said the crux of vagrancy is not the amount of money a man has but his mode of life. He said he was satisfied that Kleiner's way of life was aimless.

Kleiner has a record for uttering a forgery, theft, and has a previous conviction for vagrancy.



Help Score 'Fair Share' Goal

The United Appeal campaign may get a good swift kick.

Right into the middle of next week.

And possibly further.

Deadline for the 1965 fund drive, which is nearly 40 per cent short of its goal, will "almost certainly" be extended so the target can be reached, a spokesman said today.

"Fair Share" contributions from thousands of Victorians have sent th total to $275,112, the figure late Friday—62.6 per cent of the goal.

The campaign has been dragging its feet, despite highlights like the $90 donations received from an anonymous donor at the Yates and Douglas Appeal booth one day this week.

Returns from the residential canvass have been slow.

Final decision to extend the closing date will be made at a committee meeting Monday noon.

Ask The Times

Q. How many enumerators are required to go door-to-door to list eligible voters in a federal election? P.F.

A. Two enumerators, each representing one of the two leading parties in the last election, make a door-to-door list of urban voters. In rural constituencies, one does the job, says Encyclopedia Canadiana.

JUNIOR LEAGUE READY TO 'WARM' WATCHERS

The Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League will feed the fish-watchers at the main entrance to Goldstream Park from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

They will serve hot dogs, hamburgers, coffee and hot chocolate to persons watching the upstream run of spawning salmon, and all proceeds will go to the solarium.

This service will continue every Sunday until the salmon run ends. It will also be available on Remembrance Day, Nov. 11, which is a public holiday.

TODAY AND MONDAY

Advance Voting 'Normal'

The first votes in the Nov. 8 federal election were cast this morning at the advance polls.

A normal turnout was reported in Victoria, but Esquimalt-Saanich said from the number of telephone queries there is "a fair interest."

Voting stations opened at 8 a.m. for anyone on the voters' list who expects to be away on the normal voting day.

Polls close tonight at 8 and are open again at the same times Monday.

Among early voters were crew members of the transport department weathership Stonetown, which left at 11 a.m. for Station Papa.

More than 80,000 of the country's 10.2 million eligible voters were expected to cast ballots at the advance polls.

Any person on the voters' list may cast a ballot early by signing an affidavit saying he or she expects to be away from home election day.

Counting of the advance votes does not begin until after polls close on election day.

In addition, starting Monday is the six-day armed services vote, taken early to allow time for balloting by servicemen around the world.

There are nine advance polling stations in Victoria constituency, four for urban areas of Esquimalt-Saanich — including Sidney — and two for rural areas.

However, voters cannot go to any of the locations. The correct one for any voter is on the preliminary voters' list sent to everyone.

Anyone in doubt should telephone the Victoria returning office at 386-2291 or 477-1891 for Esquimalt-Saanich.

These are the locations:

Sidney Ultimatum Smacks Of Dictatorship: Bradley

By HUMPHRY DAVY

THOMAS BRADLEY
. . . challenges council

Rest Haven Hospital administrator Thomas J. Bradley today charged Sidney council is showing dictatorial attitudes.

His accusation follows council's action Monday giving the hospital 90 days to connect with the village sewer system — a $15,000 project.

"Council was unreasonable," said Mr. Bradley. "We were in the midst of negotiations on the sharing of costs with senior governments and the village when council slaps on this ultimatum. It smacks of semi-dictatorship."

Mr. Bradley challenged council to try and close the hospital.

Council set the sewer connection deadline after receiving a letter from Mr. Bradley asking for a postponement of a planned discussion due to the unsettled state of village affairs.

(Since the start of the year two Sidney chairman and two commissioners have quit council over village policies.)

Commissioner Douglas Taylor objected to Mr. Bradley's reference to the uncertainties existing on council and moved that the hospital be given 90 days to hook up.

PROTECT HEALTH

Commissioner L. A. Christian said council is trying to protect the health of the community.

Mr. Bradley said he had a reasonable excuse for referring in his letter to the state of affairs of the village council.

He pointed out at a previous council meeting he had asked for a meeting with village chairman, Col. J. H. Larocque, and had undertaken to meet him and his associates.

"On the day we had undertaken to meet Col. Larocque resigned from council," he said. "I felt justified in asking for a postponement until things had settled down on council."

"Personally," he added. "I feel village affairs are in a bit of a muddle."

He saw no justification for council's actions because the hospital board had agreed to connect to the sewer system.

The board, he added, had already approached the federal government and BCHIS on sharing costs. They had indicated they were prepared to assist.

He said the matter of connecting to the sewer system is a subject for progressive negotiations.

"There's a marina right alongside where raw sewage is dumped right into the sea," he pointed out. "Across the bay, homes are doing the same."

SUN FACING SUNDAY FIGHT

Clouds and sunshine will vie for control of the weekend weather.

Victoria weatherman William Mackie forecasts possible showers Sunday evening and Monday.

U.S. Offers to Share Data on Nuclear Shot

AMCHITKA ISLAND, Alaska (AP)—A thermonuclear device packing the power of 80,000 tons of TNT was detonated far under the bleak, flat surface of Amchitka Friday in a shot scientists called "near perfect."

The atomic shot, with four times the power of the nuclear bombs which devasted Hiroshima and Nagasaki to end the Second World War, was designed to test the United States' ability to distinguish between earth waves caused by natural seismic disturbances and those generated by underground atomic blasts.

The U.S. invited all nations with seismological stations, including the Soviet Union, to record the earth waves generated by the shot and promised that all data compiled from the test would be made available on request.

Col. Donald I. Prickett, test manager for the underground detonation, carrying the code name of Project Long Shot, was jubilant.

"I don't think even an atom got out," Prickett said. "It was near perfect."

The thermonuclear device, buried 2,300 feet in the volcanic rock of which this island is composed, caused a shock described by Lt.-Col. Ben Grote, deputy test manager for the defence department, as a sharp brief jolt.

EARTH JUMPS SIX FEET

Grote estimated the control point, located about four miles from the corrugated-steel building housing the head of the well in which the atomic device was buried, jumped about one inch. He estimated that the blast caused a lift of about two to six feet at ground-zero.

Roads in the immediate area were marred by a dozen or more new cracks and some sheeting appeared to be torn loose from the building at the well head.

Otherwise, the scene was much the same as it was Wednesday, when the shot originally had been scheduled to go. Unfavorable winds forced a 48-hour postponement.

Prickett said a thorough sweep of the island failed to show any damage to Amchitka's valuable, 3,000-animal sea otter herd, which had been hazed into surrounding waters by gunfire and fireworks.

Grote said checks immediately after the detonation turned up only what was described as normal background radiation.

Grote said he and Prickett estimated the atomic explosion created a cavity of some 200 feet in diameter around the point of detonation. As soon as it can be done safely, they said, a cap of cement will be placed over the well head and the site will be checked periodically for radiation seeps.

EXCESSIVE FORCE

Sentence Suspended For Assault

Magistrate William Ostler, Friday, gave a suspended sentence to a father who was earlier convicted of assault on his three-year-old son.

Edward Fullaway, 640 Belton, was placed on a $500 bond for two years.

The magistrate said the best interests of the child and the family would be served by giving Fullaway "another chance" on probation.

Magistrate Ostler said evidence clearly indicated the accused went further than he intended in chastising the child. He noted that no trouble had occurred until Fullaway was left in charge of the child and two others while his wife was in hospital.

The magistrate said severe sentences are usually imposed on persons found guilty of this offence but the circumstances in this particular case had to be taken into account.

COUNCIL SUPPORTS HIGH-RISE

The mayor and four aldermen Friday spoke in support of a James Bay high-rise apartment rezoning for land wanted by the provincial government for a legislative precinct.

The bylaw necessary for rezoning was introduced and given first reading, virtually assuring its passage. This enables Mace Homes and Investments Ltd. to proceed with plans for a building between Government and Douglas, Michigan and Toronto streets.

The firm indicated through Ald. M. H. Mooney, who had been in touch with James Mace, that up to three weeks would be granted to the government to decide wehther it wants to buy the laod to protect the precinct.

MAIL FRAUD charges have been laid against Minnesota Insurance Commissioner Cyrus E. Magnusson, 61, and 16 other persons by a U.S. grand jury in Minneapolis. The alleged frauds involve insurance firms. (AP Wirephoto).

Drugs Caused Death

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actress Marie McDonald's death was caused by a mixture of drugs and could have been accidental or suicidal, the coroner's office said Friday. Miss McDonald was found dead in her home Oct. 21.

1,500 FLEE FIRE

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Flames raced through movie sets at two Hollywood studios Friday night, driving 1,500 guests from tables at an outdoor banquet.

Film stars Steve McQueen, Elke Sommer, Martha Hyer and Rory Calhoun were among the diners who fled as the fire suddenly flared up at the end of a simulated western street. No one was injured.

Fire officials estimated damage at the two studios — Paramount and Desilu—at more than $200,000. The cause is unknown.

Delegates to the National Theatre Owners of America convention here were sitting down to a barbecue dinner on the set of a forthcoming Paramount Western when the flames spurted up at the fence separating Desilu from Paramount.

In Search of a Grand Slam

Photographers, reporters and other interlopers stand little chance of raising even a single eyebrow from members of the Victoria Duplicate Bridge Club as they settle down to another game. The night this picture was taken, there were 80 players in two sections, one of 10 tables and the other, 10½. The winners of the 10-table section were awarded 50 fractional rating points, which is half of one master point.

Mrs. William Chisholm's face is a study of concentration as she partners her husband and ponders her next call. Tony Marsh, at right, waits her decision.

When Victorians brag about the recreational facilities that our city offers, we're apt to enthuse over our boating waters, golf courses and well-kept gardens. Seldom, if ever, do we mention one attraction that enveigles newcomers under its spell each year. It's the city's bridge-playing fraternity.

One group that has done more than any other to encourage the pursuit of bridge-playing in Victoria is the Victoria Duplicate Bridge Club. The first of its kind in the city, it began in May, 1953, and played a leading part in the eventual formation of a Victoria unit of the American Contract Bridge League.

There are now six clubs operating under the unit's supervision, with competitions taking place each evening of the week except Sunday. All, with the exception of the Sidney Duplicate Bridge Club which meets in St. Andrew's Church hall at Sidney on Fridays, turn out for games at the Victoria unit's club rooms in the Broughton Building on Douglas Street.

On Monday evening, it's the turn of the Monday Masters (those who have 20 master points or more); Tuesday it's the VDBC, Wednesday sees Juniors (players with less than 20 master points) crowding the large hall, Thursday is reserved for the All-Masters Club and Saturday is the night for the unit's duplicate bridge club.

All games are open to the public, subject to the master point restrictions for the Monday Masters and Junior Club. Many a new resident has made his or her first friends over a game of bridge in the club rooms.

Twelve or more games are held for charity by the clubs each year, the main charity games being the continent-wide contests, where hands are played all over Canada and the United States. One such game is scheduled for Friday, Nov. 19.

The first regional competition was held in Victoria in 1963 and another is being planned for 1967. To become a life master (the highest degree a bridge player can attain) he or she must obtain 50 of 300 master points in regional or national competition. Sectional tournaments are held here each year. These larger tournaments attract as many as 600 players from all parts of the United States and Western Canada.

Unlike most sports, bridge demands little outlay in equipment . . . discounting, of course, a high measure of concentration, devotion and skill. It knows few age barriers. Victoria members range from 18 to 80 and this is one recreation where age and its accompanying experience proves an enviable asset.

And, from juniors to life masters, each and every player lives for the moment when that elusive grand slam becomes fact.

Bud Waddington (standing) is president of the Victoria Duplicate Bridge Club. Here he chairmans an after-game business session with committee members, left to right, Mrs. R. Fortye, Mrs. Waddington, Bill Champion and Mrs. Lloyd Murray. Treasurer is Tony Marsh.

Devotees of bridge seem oblivious to everything else—even during the mid-evening refreshment break. Ron Smith probably wouldn't even feel the slightest shock if some of the tea Mrs. Earle Dye is pouring for him accidentally spilled. He's too deep in conference with Ken Magee.

Hats for those important occasions . . .

If you'd like to see the sort of chapeaux pictured in Vogue and Harper's Bazaar "in the flesh," so to speak . . . just step into Miss Frith's and drool! . . . Better still, try one on and turn into a dream walking! . . . One-of-a-kind, naturally, there are copies of fabulous hats from famous designers . . . One a stunning turquoise peau de soie turban . . . with matching hood to wear over it . . . or separately (nice to cover your coiffure when you're going out of an evening) . . . A beige soleil with cinnamon trim and hood . . . ditto in beaver, but a different shape . . . For really chic cocktail wear, there's a dramatic black hat with a great swoosh of feathers rising from a head-hugging base . . . A stunning black satin toreador hat with attached gold mesh snood . . . A curled ostrich pillbox with big pearl teardrop ornament hanging from one side . . . A black lame turban with flat swirls of smokey iridescent feathers . . . and a pixie-ish black satin number from Nina Ricci . . . All are pure drama . . . We're struck with the new old-fashionedness in many of the clothes seen around town . . . from buckled shoes to lace-collared dresses.

Gowns for the quiet hours at home . . .

When is a gown a dressing gown . . . housecoat . . . hostess gown? . . . Or maybe all three at one and the same time . . . We think it's mainly a question of materials and styling . . . the common denominator is becomingness and comfort . . . Wilson's have a choice collection of such gowns, which we believe you'll enjoy seeing . . . Strictly for la vie intime are the plain or flower-sprigged Viyellas . . . one a delicious soft pink with frilly trim . . . or the perennially favorite wrap-around . . . some in the paisley patterns Wilson's are famous for . . . and a pale blue "Dreem" gown that's dreamy . . . warm and snuggly . . . In the "grander" class . . . Dynasty gown from Hong Kong . . . pure silk, with mandarin collars, frog buttons, slit sides . . . lovely colors, like chartreuse, coral, jade green, deep blue . . . and wonderfully becoming silk velvets . . . One we especially like is a luscious royal blue velvet with self-applique trim . . . Another, magenta velvet trimmed with a flowered metallic braid . . . Some beautiful Vocamas, light and warm as thistledown . . . one, a pale yellow, has little satin bows marching down the front, deeply frilled sleeves . . . You'll notice many of these new gowns are long . . . the new trend for intmate wear . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government Street, 383-7177.

Givenchy started the return trend to the fitted midriff.

A great new drink for all the family . . .

Just recently Northwestern Creamery started making and selling a new fruit drink called Beep . . . which we tried last week, and considered absolutely delicious! . . . It's a blend of apricot, orange, apple, prune and grapefruit flavors . . . very smooth, not too sweet . . . A very subtle taste that lifts it out of the class of ordinary fruit drinks . . . besides which it contains added Vitamin C and Provitamin A, so it's not only good tasting, but good for you . . . Beep is processed fresh every day . . . (not canned months in advance, like so many fruit drinks) . . . Comes in a quart milk bottle, ready to serve . . . and is delivered fresh to your door by your Northwestern Creamery milkman . . . Very economical, too . . . only 37c for a big 40-oz. bottle . . . Beep is a refreshing eye-opener to start off the day . . . great for the children at after-school snack time . . . As for us, we like a nice cold glass of Beep when we come home thirsty from "doing the town" . . . and while sitting around watching television of an evening . . . Ask your Northwestern Home Service Salesman for a bottle of Beep next time he delivers your milk . . . Northwestern Creamery Limited, 1015 Yates Street, 383-7147.

We understand there's a special hair spray made for men . . . designed to keep loose strands in place.

Elegant toiletries for men . . .

We caught our spouse lingering over-long at the counter displaying some luxury lines of men's toiletries in Douglas Pharmacy the other day . . . "Like them?" we enquired casually . . . "Um-m . . . luxurious!" was the reply . . . which naturally gave us a bright idea for when we play Santa Claus . . . and dispelled any lingering idea that hankering for fine toiletries is a strictly feminine prerogative . . . A welcome new service at ABC Electric . . .

We took a lamp in need of repairs to ABC Electric last week . . . and were delighted to discover that they now have an amazing number and variety of cleaning and other household products for sale . . . Naturally we got into conversation with Mr. Potter, who told us that every one of these products has been personally selected by him . . . and tested in his own home . . . and he's so sure they'll all do the job they're intended for better than anything else on the market, that he'll refund your money if you're not equally "sold" after using one of them! . . . Sounds fairer than fair to us . . . A lot of these products have names unfamiliar to us . . . others are names we know well . . . but in every case, they do a terrific job . . . There's "Wonder Cleaner," which Mr. P. swears is unbeatable for all types of house cleaning . . . preparations for cleaning appliances, furniture, vinyl upholstery, arborite, stainless steel, carpets, ovens, kettles . . . even your own hands . . . plus other uses too numerous to mention . . . Most people know ABC Electric as a top-notch electric service centre and place to buy vacuums, polishers and such . . . Well, now it's THE place to get tested household cleaning aids . . . ABC Electric, 821 Fort Street, 382-7221.

The Palm Springs Aerial Tramway . . . in the first year of operation 267,074 people rode from the desert floor to a Swiss-like chalet near the peak of Mount San Jacinto. The rapid change in temperature, rock formation and change in plant growth make this a most fascinating trip.

STEP WITH STYLE — By Nona Damaske

Palm Springs Holiday

Times fashion editor, Nona Damaske, is presently holidaying in Palm Springs. She takes time out to tell of some of her impressions of the tourist centre.

Damaske

PALM SPRINGS — The sharp contrast of complete informality for the daytime hours and sumptuous elegance for evening gives a touch of spice to Palm Springs fashion.

For visitors to this area, a day of quickly changing temperatures means need for some variety in their vacation wardrobe. The hot sun is ready with a bright welcome at 7:30 a.m. and breakfast poolside is customary.

A couple of hours of sunshine and then an hour's drive to "Tirol" for lunch. This imposing Swiss type chalet hangs on a cliff in the San Jacinto mountains 6,000 feet above sea level. Here the temperature is very much the same as an October day in Victoria . . . it was a clear, sunny 56 degrees the day I drove up the winding mountain road for lunch.

Slims or shorts are not generally accepted in this beautiful dining room . . . a simple linen or cotton dress with a sweater to ward off the cooling chill of the mountain air is most comfortable. Back down the mountain, leaving the big cone pines, the red-barked manzanita trees and doming again to the colorful desert flowers and shimmering heat. A swim and a rest and then a trip up the other side of the same mountain on the Palm Springs aerial tramway. This time a wool mohair coat is a good companion . . . I checked the mountain top temperature before leaving and found they were expecting it to be about 40 degrees at dusk.

As our cable car with its capacity of 81 persons reached the mountain station — the elevation was 8,516 feet. The late afternoon trip is magnificent as you are above the desert when the glittering lights of the desert communities begin their nighttime winking.

Two huge stone fireplaces were ablaze as we walked into the attractive dining and lounge area. Having less than an hour ago left the 90-degree warmth of the desert, the fire was most welcome.

Down again to Palm Canyon Drive and dinner at Ruby Dunes which is a popular eating spot for visiting celebrities.

Great excitement as a group of baseball "names" came in for dinner . . . young hearts fluttered as handsome Don Drysdale and Sandy Koufax walked from table to table accepting congratulations for the Dodger win. Fashion also has a trend when it comes to leisure-hour garb for the young male sportsman. Don Drysdale, the biggest man in the room, was in white with just a touch of navy blue, and Sandy Koufax was in pale blue slacks and sweater.

The sportsmen all wear the same type sweater . . . the fine mohair loose-sleeve version that Perry Como made popular.

On to Howard Manor where the "greats" of baseball enjoyed a real swinging show featuring the internationally-travelled Salvador and the Strads . . . the whole room seemed to reverberate to the beat of this fabulous group.

The baseball celebrity tournament is an annual event and is by way of a follow-up treat to the World Series.

A fashion show luncheon at The Palm Springs Tennis Club and a day's treatment at the Spa is next on the agenda . . . will tell you about it in a few days.

BE SMART—

Color fall winter violet and capture it in a charming sheer wool dress with softly cowled neckline and bias paneled skirt, wear it under furs or your prettiest new-look coat and gather in the compliments.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Avoid the Onslaught Of Frantic Shoppers

By Penny Saver

Christmas is creeping up faster than I care to imagine! This year, I swore that I would do my shopping early. Why wait until mid-December when the multitudes flock into stores in frantic pursuit of Christmas items when there are so many wonderful gifts that you can pick up now?

In one store that I shopped at, I found a mountain of onyx figures. Onyx, I was told, is a very heavy stone that is found in Pueblo, Mexico, where there actually is a mountain of this stone.

Hand-carved miniature elephants and donkeys, which paraded one shelf, sell for 75 cents and up. Beautiful ashtrays of the same stone sell for $4.95 or $3.45.

Fascinating book-ends with figures carved on them sell for $8.95. Since they are made of very heavy material, you can be assured that your library will remain intact.

Another useful item made of onyx was a set of salt and pepper shakers, selling at $3.50 the set. A select conversation piece.

Hand-made, hand-tooled leather wallets, a perfect gift for the hard-working hubby, sell at $11.95 in this store. Change purses of leather, ideal for the thrifty shopper, are 50 cents and 75 cents. They come in beige and red, too.

For bird lovers on your list, this shop has a collection of colorful tropical bird collages, made of actual tropical bird feathers. These decorative ornaments are contained in hand-carved wooden frames. Perfect for brightening living room or rumpus room walls, these masterpieces sell at $3.95 and $2.95.

Hand-carved wooden trays, with bright hand-painted floral designs sell at $1.25. They are available in red, blue or pink.

For the musically inclined, an economical instrument that doesn't make too much noise, is a set of small bongo drums, selling at this shop for $3.95 the set.

Want to do some Christmas shopping? Give Penny a call at 382-3131.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Plainly Obvious!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband has always bought me gifts of clothing. Clarence knows my dress size, shoe size, glove size, and my most becoming hats have been gifts from him. I think he has excellent taste, and whenever anyone compliments me on my clothes, I proudly say, "Clarence bought it for me."

Recently a good friend of mine said that men who bought their wives wearing apparel were really ashamed of them and tried to make them look better. She said that men married to beautiful women weren't aware that they needed anything.

I thought it over, and had to admit that the wives whose husbands bought them wearing apparel weren't exactly beauties. What do you think, Abby? Maybe some other women would like to comment?

PLAIN JANE.

DEAR JANE: Men who buy their wives gifts of wearing apparel do so because they know that nothing delights a woman more. You may be Plain Jane, but your "friend" is Plain Jealous.

DEAR ABBY: I am 22 years old and am happily married to a wonderful man. We both want children very much but we cannot have them. (My fault.) Since we can't have children of our own, we would like to adopt one or two. Our problem is when I was 16 I had a baby out of wedlock at a home for unwed mothers. (I gave it up for adoption.) It was at this home that I learned how strict the adoption agencies were about choosing parents for their babies. Only those with the best character could get a child. If my husband and I qualified in every other way, would we be disqualified because of what happened in my past?

WANTS A FAMILY.

DEAR WANTS: This would depend on the agency. Some agencies do not regard an incident that took place when a girl was 16 as a character blemish if she managed to make a constructive life for herself thereafter.

DEAR ABBY: About the lady who signed herself "ANNOYED" because her husband stopped at the same restaurant so many times during the day for "coffee." I had the same problem with my husband. Only I found out it wasn't the coffee-maker who drew him. It was the bookmaker. Have you ever heard of a coffee-colored horse?

ALSO ANNOYED.

DEAR ALSO: Yes. And it's pronounced "pal-o-mino." Although it's obviously no pal-o-yours, either.

Honeymoon in Hawaiian Islands Follows Wedding at View Royal

Following a three-week honeymoon in a beach cottage on the island of Kanai, Mr. and Mrs. Ian Alexander May will make their home at Snug Cove on Bowen Island.

Chrysanthemums in fall shades decorated St. Michael and All Angels' Church when Canon J. Rogers heard their marriage vows on Friday afternoon. The bride is the former Brenda Elise Boag, daughter of Mrs. Marjorie Boag, 4528 Stratford Road, and the late Thomas A. Boag. The groom's parents are Mrs. Leonie May of "Dunmora," Saanichton, and the late Gerald H. May.

Dr. David A. Boag, Edmonton, gave his sister in marriage. Her floor-length gown of white shantung was styled on classic lines with slim front panel and gentle fullness at the sides and back of her skirt and a fitted bodice with scoop neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. A wedding ring headpiece held the tulle veil which misted to her fingertips. Golden-toned roses formed her bouquet.

Short-length dresses of bronze shantung with matching bow headpieces, edged with gold veiling, were the choice of matron of honor, Mrs. Bevan Gore-Langton, sister of the bride, and bridesmaid, Miss Tanis Stevens. Their bouquets were of autumn-toned chrysanthemums.

Petite Laura Gore-Langton was flower girl for her aunt. Her short dress of white shantung was trimmed in bronze and complemented with a posy in fall shades. She wore a bronze shantung bow in her hair.

Robert A. Gole was best man and ushering guests were Fred Carriss and Christopher Statham.

White and fall-toned chrysanthemums decorated "Dogwood Acres," the loghouse home of Mr. and Mrs. Gore-Langton, for the reception which followed. A three-tier wedding cake centred the head table. Leonard Crookston proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

As they left by air en route for the Hawaiian island, the new Mrs. May wore a brown and gold suit, brown accessories and green orchid corsage.

FOR NEW PROGRAM

Guiders Under Training

A series of training programs on the new approach to the revised system of guiding has been introduced by a group of guider trainers, the second session being held Tuesday in the Oak Bay Guide Hall.

Instruction on procedure in raising and "breaking" the flag was given to 90 guide and brownie leaders and commissioners from the lower Vancouver Island area. The flag used was made by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Capital City Yacht Club.

The new training project is to adjust guiders in a revised guide program with different activities for a new age grouping. Handbooks on this will be available in December.

Mrs. Gilbert Kennedy introduced the first session held at the beginning of October. On the training team are Mrs. B. C. Manning, Mrs. R. R. Peel, Mrs. H. J. Smith and Mrs. John Richards, all of whom participated in a Canada-wide program during the summer. Miss M. Woiblet is in charge of camp training.

More sessions are planned for Nov. 9 and 23, and Dec. 7, from 8 to 10 p.m., in the Oak Bay Guide Hall.

FETE VOW HEAD

Mrs. C. B. MacPherson, national president of the Voice of Women, will arrive in Victoria next week. A tea has been arranged in her honor. It will be held this coming Saturday from 3 to 5 p.m. in the home of Prof. and Mrs. C. S. Burchill at 1350 Dallas Road.

Bracelet Fulfills Tradition

Her great-grandmother's gold link bracelet fulfilled the tradition of "something old" worn by Beverley Jean Rule, this afternoon, when she became the bride of Peter Donald McKinnon in St. Patrick's Church.

Her floor-length gown of silk brocade featured a slim skirt slightly en train. The empire-line bodice was styled with soft rolled collar and wide three-quarter-length sleeves. A garland of Johanna Hill roses held her veil of silk illusion net and she carried a cascade bouquet of similar roses.

Arrangements of gold and white chrysanthemums decorated the church when Fr. A. Leonard heard marriage vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rule, 1897 Foul Bay Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. McKinnon, 2860 Beach Drive.

Organist J. Lenaghan played Purcell's "Trumpet Air" as the bride entered the church on the arm of her father. Soloist, Mrs. L. Taylor sang "The Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer" during the ceremony.

FLOOR-LENGTH GOWNS

Floor-length gowns of peacock blue peau de soie were worn by matron of honor, Mrs. W. A. Stewart and bridesmaids, the Misses Catherine Hood and Lynda Lynch. They complemented their ensembles with headpieces en tone and bouquets of gold chrysanthemums.

Brian Smith was best man. Guests were ushered to their pews by William Stewart and David Rule.

Mrs. A. Winstanley proposed a toast to the bride at the reception following in the Olde England Inn.

The couple will make their home in Vancouver following a honeymoon trip to the provincial mainland and Washington. For travelling, the bride chose a turquoise tweed sheath dress, topped with a beige Borg pile coat. Completing the outfit were a turquoise hat and black accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Lackie

Victoria Sportsman Has 50th Anniversary

Sportsmen all across Canada will be interested in the coming golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Jim McEwan Lackie of Beckley Manor, 548 Dallas Road. Mr. Lackie, still an avid curler, has taken an active part in many sports, including football, ice hockey and softball. An enthusiastic and knowledgeable coach, he led one softball team to the championship in Western Canada competition and coached eight championship teams on the provincial level.

The couple will mark their anniversary on Tuesday, Nov. 9 by holding an open house in Holyrood House from 7 to 10 p.m.

They were married in Winnipeg by the late Dr. Duval on Nov. 9, 1915. They have one daughter, Mrs. Cliff (Edna) Robbins, four granddaughters and two great-granddaughters, all of this city.

Mr. Lackie served overseas with the First Canadian Mounted Rifles during the First World War, enlisting in March, 1916, and receiving his discharge in Winnipeg in January, 1919. He farmed at Swan River, Man., before coming to Victoria in 1926.

WORN BY SANDRA CORBETT

Lace Highlights Gown of Nylon

A floor-length gown of nylon over taffeta, styled with a lace panel on the bodice and bell-shaped skirt, was worn by Sandra Arlene Corbett this afternoon when she exchanged marriage vows with Angus Macaulay Haggarty in the Salvation Army Citadel. The bodice of the gown was styled with lily point sleeves.

The bride complemented her ensemble with a three-tier veil of nylon net which misted from a fabric rose headpiece and carried Talisman roses and ivy in her cascade bouquet.

The citadel was decorated with arrangements of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums for the ceremony when Brig. J. R. Thierstein heard vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Corbett, 1587 Yale Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Haggarty of Alexandria, Dumbartonshire, Scotland. Mr. Corbett gave his daughter in marriage.

Organist was G. Clarke and Mrs. J. Wilson, the bride's aunt sang "O Perfect Love" during the ceremony.

GOLD BROCADE

A gown of gold brocade with headpiece en tone was worn by maid of honor Miss Margaret Trickey. Similar gowns and headpieces were worn by bridesmaids, the Misses Darlene and Marlene Corbett. All carried crescent bouquets of bronze chrysanthemums.

Mandy Cornick wore a frock of green brocade, styled with a toning organza overskirt. She carried a basket of bronze chrysanthemums. William Campbell was best man. Ushering guests to their pews were Larry Corbett and Dale Wilson.

Yellow roses surrounded the three-tier wedding cake, made by the bride's mother, which centred the head table at the reception following in Holyrood House. Capt. R. MacMillan was soloist. R. Wilson proposed the toast to his niece.

A green and yellow check suit, with brown accessories and Talisman rose corsage was worn by the bride for travelling on honeymoon to the mainland. The couple will make their home at 131 Olive Street.

Catholics Formally Bound To John's Charted Path

By EUGENE LEVIN

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The new decree proclaimed by the Vatican ecumenical council put the Roman Catholic Church firmly on the road to the 20th century renewal Pope John charted when he called the council together.

The council's action Thursday in a public session presided over by John's successor, Pope Paul, formally bound the church to new attitudes that represent notable changes from the past.

Pope Paul and his bishops decreed a new approach to non-Christians: Jews, Moslems, Hindus, Buddhists and others. It held out a hand of friendship to the great mass of the world population that is not Christian.

The Pope and his bishops told Roman Catholic teachers of religion they must never charge the Jews as a whole with the crucifixion of Christ.

Officially, Roman Catholicism never taught that. But through the centuries the belief, with the word "deicide," had become planted in the minds of many men.

The Catholic Church also has tendered a hand to the Moslems and others whose view of Christianity is often clouded by bitter thoughts of long-dead crusades and missionaries.

MUST NOT DEPRECATE

The church did not renounce missionary work. It reaffirms such activity in a document still before the council. But it has made clear that the missionaries must seek to spread the message of Christ by demonstrating its values, not be deprecating other religions.

Two years ago, Pope Paul announced he planned to reform and internationalize the Vatican Curia, the central church administration. Since then, many inside and outside the church have wondered whether the reform would come.

Ranking Curia officers act "in the name of the Pope"—and one of the many complaints by bishops in the dioceses and mission districts has been that too many Curia decisions originate without papal awareness.

Other complaints were that the Curia is overwhelmingly conservative and fights change; that it pigeonholes requests; and that it is dominated by Italians.

To meet such criticism, the decree calls for the Curia to be "reorganized and better adapted to the needs of the times."

Pope Paul said the acts of the council were astonishing.

They are. Just seven years ago Thursday, there was no indication that Roman Catholicism was on the threshold of a revolution.

A man had just been chosen pope who, because of his 77 years, was regarded by many as a transition pontiff.

But Pope John, elected Oct. 28, 1958, had other ideas. He convened the council that reached its highest point Thursday, the seventh anniversary of his election, in the third year after his death.

Church choirs, big and small, have often been called the backbone of the nation's music. They raise the morale of the service, keep up the tempo of the singing—and sometimes perform in hospitals and institutions between times. Every Saturday, the Times will feature one of the Victoria choirs.

HUNDREDS of men and women have sung in the choir at Oak Bay United Church since it was founded as the Presbyterian Church of St. Columba in 1914. One of its longest-serving members is George Burnell (second from right), who joined the choir on his return from the First World War in 1919. Mr. and Mrs. James Clark, who have sung in the choir for 20 years past, are now joined by their daughter, Elsie, and her husband, Jack Edwards. This Sunday, organist and choirmaster Robert Kroeger will lead the choir in Be With Us (Roberton) and Grieve Not the Holy Spirit (Stainer).

Translators Have Own Air Force

WAXHAW, N.C. (AP) — The "air force" of a missionary group which devotes its full time to translating the Bible for jungle tribes has its international headquarters here.

"Our general objective is to go to the tribes in the world that have no written languages, reduce these languages to written form and translate the Bible into them," says Harold L. Goodall.

The missionary group is the Wycliffe Bible Translators, Inc., named after English missionary John Wycliffe. Its aviation and communication arm is the Jungle Aviation and Radio Service, known as JAARS.

Goodall, 36, is the director at Waxhaw, 15 miles south of Charlotte.

"This work started in Mexico 30 years ago," he says. "Since then we have branched out to 25 different countries and 370 different languages or dialects."

Wycliffe Translators was founded in 1934 by W. Cameron Townsend, present general-director. Townsend quit Occidental College in Los Angeles in 1917, when he was 21, and went to Guatemala to distribute Spanish-language Bibles.

The first of three talks designed to interpret frequently misunderstood books of the Bible will be given by Rev. H. W. Kerley, DD, in Fairfield United Church Sunday evening.

The books are those of Jonah, Esther and Ruth, who deal with the same subject from different points of view.

In the morning Dr. Kerley will speak on The Mystery of the Rock.

'Phenomenon Demands Attention'

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Rt. Rev. G. B. Snell, Anglican coadjutor bishop of Toronto, says some paperback books dealing with religion are being written by critics outside the church who hardly know what they are criticizing.

"The interest shown by the public is an indication of what persons are thinking. The clergy must sit at the same level as the general public and in humility present the truth to those who are seeking it."

In several of the books, Bishop Snell said he found three basic movements which kept recurring as prime areas for concern.

"The first is the ecumenical movement which is so prominent in the 20th century. The second is the liturgical movement, a growing restlessness about the forms of worship used in the Anglican Church.

The third . . . is one that most of us thought could never happen, especially from within the church itself. It is a reassessment of the basic foundations of the faith."

YOUNGSTERS gather each Sunday around Rev. Charles Cline, 58, a retired New York and Miami Baptist minister, who preaches to the surfboard set on a Miami beach. One 15-year-old summed up their enthusiasm for "Holy Joe" by saying: "He says something."

SURFBOARD'S HOLY JOE GIVES A SIZZLING SERMON

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) —Rev. Charles Cline, 56, a retired Baptist minister, has one of the liveliest congregations anywhere.

Each Sunday he delivers a sizzling sermon to the surfboard set on this resort city's South Beach. The youngsters call him Holy Joe.

Standing ankle deep in the warm sand, he speaks of "lusts of the flesh," "pitfalls of trial marriage," and "obedience to parents."

He gets enthusiastic reaction from his sun-bronzed congregation of 150 to 200 youngsters.

"Cool, dad," exults one mophead with a wide grin. "Keep it up. You got a tiger by the tail."

Guitars strum, bikinis slink by, and one lanky, 16-year-old throws his skinny arms skyward and cries, "hallelujah . . . hallelujah"

The minister keeps smiling, and preaching, and suddenly bends down and with a flourish draws a cross in the sand.

OFFERS THEM 'POWER'

"You want power?" he shouts. "Tie yourself to that and you will have wonderful power."

A grinning youth slips an empty beer bottle into the preacher's little black satchel resting at his feet.

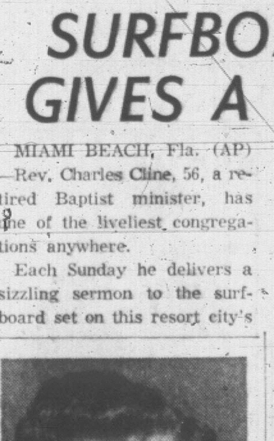
"That's all right, boy," the preacher says, "life is made for fun, but it's also deathly serious."

The slender preacher with faded seersucker trousers and much-laundered shirt quotes from the 121st Psalm, eighth verse:

"The Lord will keep your going out and your coming in from this time forth and forevermore."

"I think that is beautiful," said an 18-year-old blonde in a bikini.

"This guy's got guts," said a 15-year-old surfboy. "He used to come out here every Sunday and they'd throw sand and rocks at him, and push him around. He never got mad. I like to listen to this old guy. He says something."



SOLOIST with the choir in First United Church Sunday at 11 a.m. will be R. Allan Husband. He will sing How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings (Liddle) and the choir will be heard in Fierce Was the Wild Billow (Noble).

YOUR TREAT INSTEAD OF A TRICK

Boys and girls of Victoria's Seventh-Day Adventist Church will be collecting canned goods in the Lansdowne area between 6:30 and 8 tonight.

The goods will be made up into hampers for delivery to needy persons at Christmas time—and a pamphlet, Your Treat Instead of a Trick, will be given to each donor.

Participating in the collection will be children from the Sabbath school department, Hill Memorial school and the Pathfinders Club.

Special Service For Y-Teens

More than 800 girls from Y-Teen clubs will take part in a special service in St. John's Anglican Church, Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

Theme for the occasion will be Lead Us Onward.

Maureen Doersam, inter-club council president, will lead the assembly in dedication to the four-fold code: Be physically fit, mentally alert, socially alive and spiritually awake.

The rector of St. John's, Canon Grahame Baker, will give the address.

Highlight of the service will be a candle-lighting ceremony, symbolizing the dedication of each girl to the code.

REV. BUTLER SAYS:

Courageous Man Died for Peace

Four years ago the United Nations lost a great servant of peace in its secretary-general, Dag Hammerskjold, who died tragically in a plane crash while embarked on an African peace mission.

He was a public servant of peace who drew strength from his sense of communion with God. He was a mystic, in a position of exceptional power, and he left behind him a diary which is the spiritual testament of a solitary, honorable and courageous man.

The teachings of Jesus were part of his life and thought—Love your enemies; do good to them that hate you; pray for them that despitefully use you. He knew, as Jesus knew, that true peace does not come from evading issues, but facing them, dealing with them and conquering them.

There can be no real peace until men are reconciled with the Holy Love of God; until they abstain from provocation, move with gentleness and plead in love.

Dag Hammerskjold worked and prayed in the hope that men would ultimately repudiate war as a means of settling disputes. But they must also eradicate the chief contributory causes—hunger, disease and misunderstanding. And they must be ready to accept an international police force that is capable of bringing offenders against the peace before an international tribunal of justice.

An army in war settles matters before a tribunal of Might; an international police force must have ultimate resort to a tribunal of Right. There is a profound difference between the two.

The reward of the peacemaker is doing God's will and his hope is enshrined in a huge concrete plaque which hangs outside the United Nations headquarters in New York:

> They shall beat their swords into plowshares,
> And their spears into pruning hooks;
> Nation shall not lift up sword against nation,
> Neither shall they learn war any more.
> —Isaiah 2: 4.

Rev. E. Laura Butler has been assistant minister of Metropolitan United Church since 1954. The daughter of Rev. John R. Butler, a Methodist minister, she was born in Victoria, but grew up in Seattle where she graduated from the University of Washington with a BA degree. While at university, she had a student pastorate at Wesley Methodist Church and later organized a new Methodist church at Skyways, Seattle.

Famous Name Organists May Appear at Concerts

Featured performer at an organ recital Nov. 5 in St. John's Anglican Church will be Suzanne Gibson.

The concert is the first in a series, to be held this season in the church, which may include organists such as Victoria's David Palmer and Hugh McLean of Vancouver.

"We hope to be able to build up a fund to bring famous name organists to the city," said St. John's staff organist Kenneth Ansdell.

The church features a first-rate organ, he added, the most modern one on the Island.

It was installed in 1961, after the church's old organ was almost completely destroyed by fire.

Mrs. Gibson, who will initiate the concert series, has recently moved to Vancouver from Edmonton where she was well known for her musical ability. She frequently gave concerts with Mr. Ansdell when he lived there several years ago.

A fellow of the Royal College of Canadian Organists, she holds an ARCT in both piano and organ, has studied music at McGill University, the University of Toronto and in New York and Boston.

She has given several recitals on CBC radio.

Included on her program, which starts at 8:15 p.m., will be two Bach fugues, the Agincourt Hymn by Dunstable, the Chorale Prelude on "Forest Green" by Purvis, and the Incantation for All Saints Day by Langlais.

St. John's Church boys' choir will also perform at the concert.

GUEST ORGANIST to perform Nov. 5 at St. John's Anglican Church will be Suzanne Gibson of Vancouver. Concert is first of a series which church officials hope will eventually include famous name organists. Also performing at recital will be St. John's boys' choir.

42 Register For Course On Family Life

Forty-two men and women from eleven different churches have registered for the study course, The Creative Years, now being conducted by the Diocesan Board of Religious Education.

"We have lively and often humorous discussions," says Rev. H. Gordon Walker, vicar of St. David-by-the-Sea, Cordova Bay, who is conducting the course.

"We come to grips with the questions and tensions of Dick Foster as he considers his relations to the boss and his work, and the other members of his family."

Mr. Walker says Dick Foster is the modern business family man around whom Reuel Howe has built his provocative story, The Creative Years.

And The Creative Years is the theme of the course.

Remark Untimely Says B.C. Bishop

NEW WESTMINSTER — The bishop of the Anglican diocese of New Westminster said Friday he disagrees with the remarks of the Archbishop of Canterbury which suggest force to prevent a white minority from seizing power in Rhodesia.

Bishop Godfrey Gower described as untimely the remarks made by Archbishop of Canterbury Michael Ramsey.

"I don't think force should be a subject for public debate when there are peaceful negotiations under way, and I hope force will never be used against our own kin."

The Archbishop of Canterbury said non-pacifist Christians should be prepared to back the British government in preventing a seizure of power by the white minority in Rhodesia, even if force becomes necessary.

Many of today's 700,000 newspaperboys will be the leaders of tomorrow. The future judges, mayors, governors — yes, even the Presidents of our great land —may well get their first lessons in leadership from a newspaper route.

Route management encourages initiative, dependability, resourcefulness and courtesy—important character-building traits. And surveys show that newspaperboys rank higher scholastically than the average student.

The training a boy receives delivering newspapers gives him a great start in life. Prominent citizens at every hand are examples of the kind of men these boys become.

Suds Drinkers Relax; No Increase: Bonner

British Columbia beer drinkers aren't likely to face an early increase in the cost of "suds," Attorney-General Bonner indicated Friday.

He said the Liquor Control Board "would be very reluctant to entertain any suggestion of an increase in the price of beer."

Mr. Bonner was commenting after B.C. Hotels Association president W. S. Wainwright told a Vancouver convention that the increase would be necessary.

But Mr. Bonner pointed out that there is not a single case in recent years where a hotel was sold for less than its purchase price. This indicates profitable operation, he stated.

ELIZABETH WILSON LEADS CAVALCADE THROUGH RIBBON

MAYOR'S WIFE DRIVES TO THE TOP

Car Park Opening Marks End Of Centennial Square Projects

The mayor's wife drove her car to the top of a four-storey building Friday to mark the completion of Victoria's Centennial Square.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson broke the ribbon used traditionally in opening ceremonies with the bumper of her convertible — top up because of rain—and declared Centennial Car Park open to the public.

She led a cavalcade of aldermen's cars, Mayor R. B. Wilson at her side, in a drive to the top deck overlooking the square, city hall and downtown rooftops.

$3.5 MILLIONS

Mayor Wilson said completion of the car park and shopping arcade on the square finishes the $3.5 million project, apart from one or two small items including landscaping touches, interior of shops and the theatre restaurant.

"There are many of our visitors who are quite amazed that we have been able to construct this whole square and its buildings for $3½ million, so I think it is safe to say that the city has received good value for the money spent," Mayor Wilson said.

Nearly half has been paid for, or $1.5 million, leaving $1.652 million in borrowing outstanding.

The mayor paid tribute to many persons who played a role in square development as well as designing individual projects.

CREDIT TO MANY

"The final result is indeed a great credit to them and at this time I would like to recognize them by name."

He listed Clive Campbell, John di Castri, Roderick Clack, Allan Hodgson, Clive Justice, Robert Siddall, John Wade and C. D. Stockdill. He said the team was "an unusual situation, but I think you will all agree that it worked out very well."

"This handsome parking structure and shopping arcade rounds out Centennial Square and will serve not only its component parts but the rest of downtown Victoria," the Mayor said.

"It is not an easy thing to design an attractive car park building, and I have been impressed with the many remarks of visitors and citizens alike who have commented particularly on how well it blends in with the rest of the square."

Square committee chairman Ald. A. W. Toone, also credited by the mayor, reported that the eight-deck building cost $485,000 provided out of capital budget funds. It allows for police department use and 210 public spaces.

Screening Group Unlikely

Attorney-General Bonner is opposed to creation of a committee to search out obscene literature on newsstands.

He said in an interview that there are provinces where such committees operate.

"Quite frankly, I can't see any difference between their newstands and those in the province of B.C.," he stated.

The attorney-general was commenting on a recent statement by city clergyman Rev. H. T. Allen, spokesman for the Committee of 150.

This association is campaigning for public pressure to stem the flow of magazines and books which it considers are harmful to public morals.

The group says that under section 150 of the Criminal Code the A-G's department is empowered to establish a screening committee which would recommend action against obscenity.

Mr. Bonner said there have been a number of prosecutions in B.C. in recent years even though no committee exists.

FOR A Xmas Turkey?

Well Not Exactly . . .
It's just our way of saying . . . if you take out a Homeowner Loan with us before Christmas, you get a loan plan packed with benefits plus a nice big Turkey. Why the $1,550? Because we are not a small loan company, we deal only in loans of more than $1,550. In fact, the more we think about it, the Turkey is just one of the fringe benefits.

The Loan Is More Like the Gift!
We deal only in loans greater than $1,550 to avoid the extremely high cost of servicing a multitude of small loans such as other finance companies make. We can pass this saving on to you where it counts most:

1. We offer lower interest rates!
2. We offer lower monthly payments!

For example, by consolidating all your present obligations, say under one loan of $1,550 from us, you will pay only $33.38 a month. Just think of all the extra money you will now have left to spend on your family at Christmas. Wipe out your high interest, large payment debts today . . . the extra cash from easier payments will feel just like a gift . . . and the Turkey will taste great too! This is only one of the many plans tailored to your specific needs. Call any of our offices for further information without obligation.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

I WISH TO THANK ALL FRIENDS and relatives for flowers, cards and gifts given to me while I was a patient in hospital. — Mrs. A. R. Hick.

WE WISH TO EXPRESS OUR SINcere and heartfelt thanks, to all those who cared for our beloved mother, Mrs. R. J. Stocks, during her stay at the Sandringham Hospital, and latterly at the Royal Jubilee Hospital. Also many thanks to all relatives and friends for their sympathy and kindness in our bereavement. — The Family.

OUR GRATITUDE CAN NEVER BE fully expressed for the words of sympathy and kind deeds from all our relatives, friends and neighbors before and during our time of sorrow. A special thanks to Dr. Archie Gray and Rev. A. G. MacLeod.—Joan Bates, Charles Semple and families.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DUNN—In memory of Stuart, our dearest little son, who fell asleep October 30, 1963.

O valiant heart.

—Always in our thoughts, Mommy, Daddy and Kathy.

—And always in our thoughts, 'Butch.'
Aunty Re, Uncle Ron and Mark.

MERRIMAN, SPARKS — In loving memory of Edward W. Merriman, who passed away Oct. 29, 1950; also Frederick Sparks, who passed away Oct. 31, 1954.

Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tries to break, but all in vain;
To have, to love and then to part
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never—
The memory of those happy days when we were all together.

—Always remembered by their wives and families.

SIMPSON—In loving memory of my father, William Simpson, who passed away October 30, 1963.

His dear bright eyes and cheerful face
Are pleasant to recall;
He had a loving word for each,
And died beloved by all.

—Always remembered by his daughter, Lillian, Art and grandson Gordon.

SIMPSON—In loving memory of my husband, William, who passed away October 30, 1963.

Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him dear.

—Sadly missed by his loving wife, Florence Simpson.

BRIDGE LESSON

By JACOBY and SON

There is always a great thrill when you bid and make a grand slam.

Such contracts are easy to bid when you look over both hands. At the table they are much harder to bid.

Opening lead—♦ 3

Today's hand is from the men's pairs at the Asbury Park Regional. There is no trouble in the play at seven diamonds. South must discard two hearts on dummy's king and queen of clubs and ruff two spades in dummy so that everyone who played the hand in diamonds made seven.

A few people played at six no-trump and one pair made that contract when the defence slipped a trifle. A spade was opened and at trick two South led the three of hearts. West played the five and the eight spot forced East's king: East led back a spade. South took his king, cashed the ace of clubs, entered dummy with a diamond; discarded a heart and a spade on the king and queen of clubs and ran off all his diamonds. The last diamond lead squeezed West, who could not protect his two queens, and this particular South made his contract.

Only a few pairs got to the grand slam. The bidding in the box shows how we would have bid the hand. North's two club response is preferred to one heart because North wants to make sure that his partner won't play him for a five card heart suit. Later North decides that his partner's spade and diamond rebids show nine cards in those two suits and therefore that two aces plus two kings in the South hand will produce 13 tricks in diamonds.

PRIVATE HOME SELLERS HOW TO SUCCEED IN SELLING YOUR HOME

1) BE HONEST. Don't conceal defects. You'll gain the prospect's confidence and he'll be inclined to do business with you.

2) BE OBJECTIVE. Put yourself in the prospect's shoes. Are you aware of his needs? KNOW the adaptability of your home through alteration or addition and its cost.

3) BE INFORMED. Above all know the mortgage field. Two-thirds of selling homes is financing them. There are probably 6 ways of financing your home catering to all down payments. Know them or a qualified buyer will slip through your fingers.

4) OR JUST RELAX. Real Estate Brokers are successful in selling homes. So—if you really want to sell, but just don't have the time, experience or specialized training to do it yourself, let your Broker sell it for you. You'll get top dollar, plus the quickest sale possible, without any aggravation, strain or pressure on yourself by calling:

A SINCERE APPEAL

Last weekend our firm put a lengthy ad in this column in an attempt to convince vendors that we had genuine buyers. The results were fair but not overwhelming. I still have genuine buyers and need homes to show them. I AM NOT AFTER AN EXCLUSIVE LISTING and promise, if you call, not to bother you in any way if yours is not what is needed, but should you want to list with me, I certainly won't turn you down. There is no obligation and it costs nothing to phone. Here are some that are needed—there are others:

ANY AREA: Large, older, 5-bedroom, 2-bathroom, basement, large lot, suitable for foster home, up to $17,000.

CARNARVON PARK: 3 or 4-bedroom, modern home with basement, to $16,000.

CLOSE IN: Duplex or revenue, walk to town, $15,000.

OAK BAY, FAIRFIELD: Older, 3-bedroom with basement, prefer beamed ceilings in living and dining rooms, to $16,000.

IN COURT

Agile Prowler Found Guilty

A sailor who chose an unusual means of calling on his girl friend early today ended up in central court charged with prowling by night.

James Dolan, HMCS Yukon, pleaded guilty and was remanded to Nov. 5 for sentence.

Detective Lyle Somers said Dolan was seen climbing down from balcony to balcony at the Queen Victoria Inn, 601 Douglas, around 12:30 a.m.

He said that Dolan was found by police slumped in a chair in a suite he entered through a sliding glass door. Dolan said he had gone to visit his girl friend and when she did not answer the doorbell he had tried to enter by going up to the roof and climbing down the balconies.

The detective said that although Dolan was almost in a state of intoxication he showed considerable agility in climbing.

Another sailor got in trouble early today over payment of a bill in a Chinatown restaurant.

Kenneth Mindenhall, HMCS Antigonish, was fined $25 when he pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance.

Constable Bruce Campbell said Mindenhall was using abusive language when he arrived on the scene. Mindenhall had gone to the restaurant with a friend who left without paying.

When employees asked Mindenhall to pay for both meals he refused until he had finished his own meal. But the employees refused to let Mindenhall finish his meal because of the noise he was making.

Magistrate Ostler said Mindenhall was justifiably annoyed at the incident but should not have used bad language after police arrived.

Sonja Hansen, 4649 Cordova Bay Road, was remanded to Nov. 5 for sentence after she pleaded guilty to stealing an $8.88 transistor radio from a city store Friday night.

She admitted the offence when stopped on the parking lot by a detective who was called to the store.

Collective Bargaining NDP Plank

The 80,000-member Civil Service Federation of Canada was told today a New Democratic Party government would introduce collective bargaining immediately.

Victoria candidate J. Lloyd Brereton was replying to letters sent by the federation to all candidates across the country in the Nov. 8 election.

"If in opposition we shall use all our influence to this end," he added.

In reply to the questionaire, Mr. Brereton said:

- The civil service should be consulted before legislation is introduced;
- There should be only one bargaining unit;
- There should be a bargaining system dealing with matters over which the deputy department head has jurisdiction.

The candidate said both federal and provincial civil servants should have the full rights of citizens including participation in elections.

"We have inherited a totally wrong idea that public servants should be sealed off from the ordinary life of the people," he told Claude Edwards, president of the Civil Service Federation.

Petty Officers Pallbearers For 'Old Friend'

Soue Kee, a favorite laundryman with sailors at Esquimalt, died in Victoria Chinese Hospital early Friday at the age of 80.

He became known to sailors from coast to coast during his 33 years of laundering for the crews of navy ships at Esquimalt.

Soue Kee was a good friend to sailors who ran out of cash between pay days. His loans were interest-free and they were invariably repaid.

Five chief petty officers and a petty officer will be pallbearers at the funeral service in the Thomson and Irving chapel Wednesday at 1 p.m.

Moscow Orders Death For 5 Nazi Suspects

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A court in Riga today sentenced to death five Latvians — including one living in Canada and another in the United States—for alleged war crimes committed during the German occupation of Latvia in the Second World War.

Three men sentenced to death in absentia were Harold Puntilis of Willowdale, Ont.; Boleslav Maikovskis of Mineola, N.Y., and Albert Eichelis of Karlsruhe, West Germany.

The trial lasted three weeks.

Of the six accused, three were present in court. Two of these, Jazep Basankvic and Janis Krasovkis, were sentenced to death, and Peter Vaicuk was given 15 years in jail, the official Soviet news agency Tass reported.

All six were accused of taking part in the murder of 15,000 people in the Rezekne district of eastern Latvia between 1941 and 1942.

They were alleged to have been members of Nazi punitive groups, and Eichelis was declared at the trial to have been police chief of Rezekne.

The sentences corresponded exactly to the demands of the public prosecutor at the trial, which was held in public.

The death sentence always is carried out by shooting in the Soviet Union. Announcing the sentences, Tass did not say whether any of the accused present will appeal.

Long-time checker champ Millard Hopper poses another problem for fans who would like to play a better game. White checkers, moving up the board, to move and win in four moves is the challenge. Can you meet it?

Hopper's solution is presented below, but try working out the answers by yourself before consulting it.

Solution: White 23-19, Black 15-24. White 20-16, Black 11-20, White 22-26. Black 13-22-31, White 25-22—Curtain!

TRANSACTION TAKES HORSE SENSE

I bought a colt for $90, intending to train it for riding purposes. A short time later, I had an opportunity to sell it for $100 and did so. The buyer found he didn't have a satisfactory place to keep it, and I offered to buy it back at $80. My offer was accepted.

How much profit did I make on the three-way transaction?

Answer: Nothing. You have a horse that has cost you $70 ($90, the original purchase price, less the $20 difference between the price at which you sold and the price at which you bought it back). You cannot figure any profit or loss until you sell the horse again.

SEE THROUGH BEANS?

Suppose you were asked to guess the number of beans in a jar. You are given this clue: The number therin, when divided by 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10, will always leave a remainder of one. How many beans are in the jar? No fair peeking below.

Answer: There are two thousand five hundred and twenty-one.

LINKETTES

These are linkettes: the last letter of one word forms the first letter of the second; the two combine to make a third. For example: Katherine plus a Tibetan ox makes an Eskimo hunting boat. Answer: Kay and yak for kayak. Now try these lines:

1. A beak linked to a moo gives a wave.
2. A utensil linked to a dining place gives a drink.
3. A reality linked to a conservative gives a mill.
4. A light linked to a victim gives a sea-eel.
5. A walk linked to grease gives a duck.
6. A test linked to an excavator gives an inspector.

OOPS! OUR SLIP IS SHOWING

Numerous sharp-witted readers took us to task for a misprint in the following problem:

Tourist A, travelling 40 mph in the same direction as tourists B and C, passes C 10 minutes after passing B. If both B and C are travelling at a rate of 35 mph, how many miles apart are they: 2½, 7½, 20, 37½?

Our answer was 2 miles. Can you find the error in the problem?

Answer: It should have been stated that B and C were travelling at 25 mph, not 35, as indicated.

CRAZY PRESCRIPTION NUMBER

A prescription number consists of five digits whose sum is 24. The second and fifth digits are the same. The first and fourth digits are also of equal value. The sum of the fourth and fifth numbers is the same as the sum of the first and second figures, whose total is equal to the third digit. See how long it will take you to find the prescription number.

Answer: Three five eight three five.

RIDDLICULOUS

Foolish questions. Why were all the soldiers tired on April's Fool's Day? Give up? Why, they had just finished a 31-day March. What's it take to make a hen a he? Just take the letter "n".

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

There has been rather a lull in new Commonweath issues this month. On the sixth we had a set of four stamps from Malawi to mark the opening of their new university. The design, common to all, shows an open book and microscope—symbols of scholarship and science. Values are 3d, 9d, 1s 6d and 3s.

* * *

Malta's interesting Christmas issue has also made its appearance—1d, 4d, and 1s 3d. These stamps are of distinctive design showing the three Magi with their gifts. As is the case with Malta's other recent stamps, they are the work of the famous Maltese artist Chevalier E. V. Cremona.

Another Christmas stamp hails from Australia—a 5d value, released on the 20th. It was designed by John Mason and depicts a nativity scene painted in four colors. A similar stamp was issued by the Australian dependency of Norfolk Island a few days later.

* * *

Zambia celebrated its first anniversary of independence on the 24th (it is a republic within the Commonwealth). To mark the occasion a set of four stamps was issued—3d, 6d, 1s 3d and 2s 6d. The designs by Mrs. Gabriel Ellison, are pictorial, each with an inset of President Kaunda's portrait.

* * *

The modern trend in stamp design, featuring pictorials in bright colors rather than the more old-fashioned portait types in monochrome, has changed collecting habits to an astonishing degree, for it has had the effect of bringing women into the game, thus pretty well doubling the potential number of the world's collections.

It has also attracted artists of the opposite sex to design stamps themselves, and many recent issues bear tribute to their ability in this field. It would no doubt be possible to make a fairly large collection consisting entirely of stamps designed by women.

Incidentally, the forthcoming Winston Churchill omnibus commemorative issue of stamps to be released by the Crown Colonies on January 24 next, is the work of Miss Jennifer Toombs—a young lady in her early twenties, and the youngest artist ever to have her designs accepted by the Crown Agents.

* * *

Talking of designs—surely Canada can do a little better than the current 5 cent printed envelope in the large size. The portrait is shockingly crude; the shading done in large blobs of ink. For some reason the 4c value is printed from a different die, and is not too bad.

LISTEN WORLD!

Phrases now in common speech testify how widely persons have listened to, and perhaps been influenced by, certain men and women. Can you supply what's omitted here in a quotation from the past?

"What is twice —— is commonly better remembered than what is transcribed."—Samuel Johnson, The Idler.

Think you know what's missing from Johnson's statement? Better re-read it before pronouncing judgment. It's a four-letter word.

Answer: The missing word is "read."

IT'S A DATE

On May 5, 1955, we wrote the date 5/5/55. Next time will be 6/6/66; then 7/7/77, etc. One day it will be possible to write the date with seven consecutive like numbers. How soon?

Answer: On February 22, 2222.

NEW WHARF at Nanaimo (extreme right) is in constant use as deep-sea ships load lumber for shipping around the world. The wharf, completed this summer, was built to accommodate the ever-increasing flow of ships putting in to the up-Island city. In centre of the picture is the CPR ferry Princess of Vancouver which plies daily between Nanaimo and Vancouver.

WINTER FERRY SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

B.C. Ferries revert to winter sailing schedules starting Monday.

Until spring, both Island services will run two-hourly—7 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Only exception will be long weekends when the ferries run more frequently.

During the summer months the Tsawwassen-Schwartz Bay and Nanaimo-Horseshoe Bay runs have operated on an hourly basis.

Winter Program Will Employ 25

DUNCAN—Winter works projects in the Cowichan district will make 25 additional jobs available.

And the local social welfare office reports 29 men available.

These figures were given to Cowichan winter employment committee Friday.

Six projects, totalling $131,000, includes work on municipal waterworks, drainage, roads and forest slash.

George Rook of Lake Cowichan school board, said the area has $50,000 of school additions in hand.

The accommodation is not required until September, 1966, but the board is anxious to pay a part in the winter works campaign.

Mr. Rook said: "Also, you can get better construction prices at this time of year."

Miss Catherine Dangerfield said social welfare cases will get priority in hiring for these jobs.

Of 34 men on social welfare in the district last year only 11 are still receiving assistance.

Will Dobson was re-elected committee chairman with Wil-William Chappell, Lake Cowichan village clerk, vice-chairman, and Harold Whitfield, secretary.

One new committee member was added, local radio executive Peter Duke.

Well-Known Saw-Filer Dies in City Hospital

BECKER . . . services on Monday

Funeral services will be held at Sands Mortuary Monday at 3 p.m. for Ira Becker, well-known Vancouver Island saw-filer, who died in St. Joseph's Hospital Friday at the age of 82.

Archdeacon A. E. Hendy will officiate.

Mr. Becker learned saw-filing as a boy on Bowen Island and had his own saw-filing business in Victoria. He continued practising this disappearing craft until he entered hospital several weeks ago.

His parents came from Minnesota and settled on Bowen Island and it was there that Mr. Becker learned logging and saw-filing. His father rowed a boat to Vancouver once a month to fetch groceries.

For nine years, Mr. Becker worked on logging railroads in Washington State, firing and driving locomotives. Then a forest fire burned up his house and everything in it.

He started his own saw-filing business in Victoria about 40 years ago.

Surviving are the widow, Nellie, at home, at 2082 Haultain; three sons, Al and George, in Victoria, and Dick, in Nanaimo; two daughters, Helen, in Victoria, and Mrs. P. Michael, Toronto, and four sisters in Vancouver.

Thetis, Kuper To Vote On DD Service

Telephone subscribers on Thetis and Kuper Islands will next month be offered the choice of direct dialling with Vancouver Island.

B.C. Telephone Co. will conduct a plebiscite to see if the islanders are willing to have the service installed.

The suggestion to hold a plebiscite was accepted recently by Thetis Island Ratepayers' Association.

Ballots will be mailed to subscribers.

If the 75 telephone owners vote in favor and approval is received from the Board of Transport Commissioners for Canada, free-calling will be implemented by September, 1966.

Feeder Airport Possible

DUNCAN — Liberal candidate Doug Greer said here Friday night he is sure federal aid can be obtained toward building a Duncan airstrip.

But government grants would depend on Duncan being a "feeder" airport.

Mr. Greer said he didn't think a new airstrip would be in conflict with the existing facilities at Cassidy.

Rejecting a Conservative idea of NHA loans for buying and selling older homes, Mr. Greer said the loans were intended to stimulate new building and provide extra jobs.

A Liberal government would follow through with the Speech from the Throne promise of money set aside to help provincial assistance programs.

He hoped the provinces would substitute a needs test for the present means test.

A person's right to assistance should be based not on what they had but what they needed.

Defending the gradual cutting away of shipbuilding subsidies to the West Coast, Mr. Greer said: "Somehow or other the industry here has to stand on its own feet.

"Even though West Coast yards may be paying higher wages they still have to be competitive. We should be thinking and talking in national terms."

Mr. Greer repeated his main election theme of the need for a stable majority government.

And he said he was confident of overcoming the 4,500-vote edge NDP's Colin Cameron held at the last election.

CHURCH COURSE, VIEWS OUTLINED

Make Marriage a Little Harder

DUNCAN — If the Anglican Church marriage laws are changed it may make it a little easier for divorced persons to be married in church.

But Canon Harry Greenhalgh, of Nanaimo, said here Friday the main aim is to make marriage initially a little harder.

The new law would require 30 days' notice from people wishing to be married.

And couples would have to take a course from the parish priest.

Canon Greenhalgh said: "Holy matrimony is an ideal. There are only two things you can do with an ideal.

"You can leave it there and strive after it or tear it down and let people marry who, what, or how they liked," he said.

About the remarriage of divorced persons, Canon Greenhalgh said most people know the church's stand.

Few people came in "off the street" to be married in church. The relaxation of the divorce law, if passed at the next general synod two years from now, was intended to help sincere church people who had had an unhappy marriage experience.

Canon Greenhalgh was speaking to the Cowichan Deanery annual meeting.

Diocesan secretary, Col. Douglas Mitchell said: "If anyone is so keen to be married in church it is shocking to say, in effect, the United Church will do our dirty washing for us.

The revised canon was to help those who desired the redemptive spirit of remarriage in church.

A laywoman, Mrs. Fred Cooper, Cowichan Station, said it was hypocrisy to let these people remarry in some other church and allow them to stay in the Anglican Church for communion.

ANOTHER LOGGING DEATH

CAMPBELL RIVER — Logger Thomas Broach, of Chemainus, was killed in the woods Friday.

The accident happened at lonely Bute Inlet on the mainland.

Broach's body was flown here this morning for burial in his home town.

The Campbell River police boat was still at the inlet today investigating the circumstances.

Broach is the fourth Vancouver Island logger to lose his life in the past two weeks.

Second Cathedral Desecrated in U.K.

YORK (Reuters) — Vandals desecrated York Cathedral with paint today in the second incident of its kind in English cathedral in two days.

Paint was sprayed Friday over Bible and church treasures in Canterbury Cathedral, "parish church" of Dr. Michael Ramsey, the Archbishop of Canterbury and head of the Anglican Church.

Red paint was sprayed on the lectern and archbishop's chair at York Minster, the seat of Dr. Donald Coggan, who ranks immediately after Dr. Ramsey in the Anglican Church hierarchy.

The incident at Canterbury Cathedral came after Dr. Ramsey was involved in controversy for a statement he made on Rhodesia.

Dr. Ramsey advocated support by Christians for the use of force by Britain if necessary to protect Negro African rights in Rhodesia.

PEARSON

New Appeal For Majority

By JOHN MIKA
Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER—About two dozen hecklers were counter-heckled to a standoff while a full house of 2,800 supporters gave Prime Minister Pearson rousing cheers throughout a 33-minute speech Friday night in the Queen Elizabeth Theatre.

The noise volume hit its peaks in support of the Liberal leader's several appeals for return of his government with a parliamentary majority.

Police swung into action only twice—once to stop a pro-Pearsonite from pumelling a heckler beside him and the other time to chase back a man who rushed towards the platform with a sign calling for a Canadian merchant marine.

Mr. Pearson kept talking through both incidents and also ignored the hecklers to deliver his appeals, recount successes of his administration, outline current prosperity and slam the NDP and Tories.

The heckling was more like persistent but light sniper fire than the thunderous volleys of screaming and fist swinging that almost broke up Mr. Pearson's Vancouver rally in the 1963 campaign.

Isolated shouts of "Viet Nam," "conscription" and "Rivard" sometimes could be heard and other times were muffled by distances separating the widely scattered hecklers and the platform.

Counter-Hecklers Amuse Crowd

With everyone braced for a repetition of the 1963 near-riot, Friday's rally was almost anticlimactic and some even drew ironic amusement from the counter-hecklers who snapped back with "nitwits" or "why don't you go to Viet Nam?"

And the man with the merchant marine sign was booed and pelted with crumpled papers as he retreated before the police.

The heckling was loudest immediately after Mr. and Mrs. Pearson entered the theatre to the din of frenzied applause, the skirl of four bagpipers in the lead and the chanting of about 40 boys and girls bearing Liberal placards that brought up the rear.

The charged atmosphere gradually dissipated as it became evident Mr. Pearson was not fazed and the cries of the hecklers grew hoarse.

"Vancouver is always a stimulating place in an election campaign," said Mr. Pearson with a broad smile bathed by the spotlights.

"I am not likely to forget the wonderful reception I got here in 1963," he quipped to touch off a burst of general laughter.

He recalled he had felt rather low after the 1963 rally but an aide came bubbling up to his room gleefully announcing "we won three seats tonight—if only they had drawn blood from (you) we would have won two more."

Must Be Able to Plan Ahead

Mr. Pearson said the major issue of the campaign was majority government and if one was not achieved this time it likely would make another early election inevitable.

"Perhaps our motto or our slogan should be 'no more until 1970'," he said prompting a wave of cheers.

He said in the last parliament it was the opposition and not the government that held a majority "and I suggest we return to the traditional way with the government in the majority."

He said it would be impossible for the opposition parties to support a minority Liberal government after the attacks made during this campaign and in the first vote of confidence, within eight days of parliament's opening, "we would be defeated and there would be another election."

Mr. Pearson said Canada needs a majority government because an administration "should be able to plan ahead for five years and not just five weeks — surely that makes sense."

He said only the Liberals could form a majority in the country's present mood.

He said Conservative Leader Diefenbaker himself indicated the Tories could only hope to form a minority government and recalling the Diefenbaker minority government of 1962, he asked "do we want to return to that?"

Can Afford Extravagant Promises

"No," the crowd roared back.

Mr. Pearson said the New Democratic Party has no hope of forming even a minority government because the latest poll showed the undecided voters had dropped from 36 per cent to 11 per cent and NDP had only 16 per cent of the committed, while the Liberals had 47 per cent.

"A party with no hope of forming the government, no matter how good its intentions may be, can afford to make the most extravagant promises, secure in the knowledge it will not be

Dief Charges Pearson 'Threatens' Canadians

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau Staffer

TRURO, N.S.—Conservative Leader Diefenbaker charged Friday night the prime minister had adopted the dictum "I am the state" to "threaten" Canadians into voting for a Liberal majority.

At a swinging, shouting Nova Scotian rally the Tory leader lashed out at Prime Minister Pearson for suggesting as had been reported an election would follow a Liberal minority win by 18 months.

"He has enunciated a principle which almost indicates 'I am the state'," Diefenbaker said.

"What you did in fact, Mr. Prime Minister, was threaten the Canadian people, that's what you did."

"You said either you fall in line or I am going to force another election—but I am going to wait until after I celebrate July 1, 1967," Diefenbaker continued.

"Well when the votes are counted every indication is this nation, wherever it may be, is that 18 months from now you won't be in a position to advise the Governor-General of anything."

Diefenbaker said that the prime minister had denied making the statement as it was quoted in the press.

He said that Pearson's "aide Mr. (Richard) O'Hagan said he said it."

RECORDED ON TAPE

The prime minister's words had been recorded on tape, the Tory leader said.

"I can't understand why tapes record so wrongly," he said. "This is not the first time the prime minister has had this difficulty. He should be more tape careful."

Diefenbaker's remarks before the meeting were more restrained than those he had made earlier in the day to newsmen.

At Moncton airport he said the prime minister had shown a "contemptuous disregard for democracy."

In a taped interview on his private railway car he said the prime minister had a "power complex."

"He is beginning to think he controls the people, that whatever he wants he is going to have," said Diefenbaker.

"This is the first time in Canadian history that a prime minister has spoken to the people as if they were children who were to have their future determined by him, and to be

Liberals to Survive Small Gains by NDP

By PETER REGENSTREIF

TORONTO—If British Columbia is booming, Toronto is positively throbbing with affluence.

Where two and a half years ago stood a two-door Chevrolet, a Pontiac Parisienne hardtop now stands; hotels are booked solid; unemployment is at a record low.

This prosperity operates rather powerfully to mobilize potential indecision in a Liberal direction.

A taxi-driver who claimed he was undecided finally made up his mind on the spot: "Things are very good now. I mean compared to 1957 and 1958. Oh, no. I'll vote Liberal again. Things are better when the Liberals are in. I looked at the want ads. I saw four or five jobs I could hold today."

●

It brings converts into the fold. A 1963 Conservative, a carpenter in Broadview who now intends to vote Liberal, explained: "I like the present government. We're doing pretty well. Personally, the way I look at it, I have a good job."

This is obviously bad news for the opposition as it sets about taking the government on in the 18 Toronto and York constituencies. The Liberals now hold 16; the NDP 2.

The Conservatives drew a fat goose-egg here in 1963. They are slated to repeat in 1965.

To be sure, there is considerable public concern about scandal and the charges of corruption. But, at the same time, Diefenbaker is a repellent against voting Conservative

Rhodesia Crisis Averted

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Britain and Rhodesia reached agreement today on a compromise ending the threat of an immediate declaration of independence by the African colony.

The compromise called for establishment of a royal commission to work out details for advancing political power to the nation's black majority.

It also brought a statement from British Prime Minister Harold Wilson supporting the Rhodesian government's position that the colony's four million Negoes are not yet ready for majority rule over the White minority and a promise that Britain would not use its military to force an African majority government.

A number of African nationalists had demanded use of force by Britain to prevent a unilateral declaration of independence by Rhodesia.

The proposed royal commission would be headed by Rhodesian Chief Justice Sir Hugh Beadel and composed of a British and Rhodesian representative still to be named. It would analyze the existing constitution and suggest amendments guaranteeing African rights.

There were immediate rumblings from both African nationalists and some extremist White settlers impatient for urgent action on independence now on their terms.

The Rev. N. Sithole, African nationalist leader under restriction by the Rhodesian government, expressed "deep disappointment" that Wilson had been unable to provide immediate majority rule.

Douglas C. (Boss) Lilford, former chairman of premier Ian Smith's ruling Rhodesian front, said he had "some doubts" about the plan but that the party was united behind Smith.

Net effect of the compromise was to delay the unilateral Independence threat—the first by a British colony since America's in 1776—at least until the end of the year.

BY END OF YEAR

In announcing the compromise, Wilson said he expected the commission to complete its work by the end of the year.

Both Smith's cabinet and the 50-man British task force which accompanied Wilson here from London for last-minute talks appeared pleased by the compromise.

Wilson disclosed agreement shortly before flying off to other African states en route home to London for discussion of the royal commission by the British cabinet.

"I am now absolutey clear that the door is open," Wilson said. "We have found a means to settle this problem quite quickly.

"I believe that given time—a short time in my view—the proposed royal commission can hammer out a solution which can lead to an honorable and acceptable basis for independence."

Wilson said his government is irrevocably committed to eventual rule by the colony's Africans over the 220,000 whites.

50 Communist Youths Slain In Java Battle

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Indonesian government troops killed 50 Communist youths in a battle following the discovery of the bodies of murdered Moslems, the army announced here today.

It said Moslems who found the bodies Wednesday in a grave at Prambanan in central Java attempted to move them to a burial place. They found the area occupied by Pemuda Rakjat (Communist youth front) forces and called for military help.

Observers said the battle was the most serious reported between government forces and Communists.

Third Deputy Premier Chaerul Saleh today described the Indonesian situation as "civil war."

Another army announcement said troops and police raided a village in East Java and arrested 11 persons suspected of the "massacre by poisoning" of 62 anti-Communists at Karangasem.

Meanwhile, reliable army sources said today Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio has been replaced as chief of the intelligence service by a high-ranking soldier.

U.S. Fights Hand-to-Hand As Cong Hits Tents in Dark

SAIGON (CP)—U.S. marines, using pistols and fighting hand-to-hand from their tents, beat off a "human wave" assault by the Viet Cong in the early-morning darkness today 10 miles southwest of Da Nang.

A U.S. military spokesman said 56 Viet Cong, many of them teen-agers, were killed. He described casualties among the 300 marines as moderate.

One marine squad, however, was badly mauled. Two of its 14 men were killed and the rest wounded, the spokesman said.

The Viet Cong also mortared the U.S. special forces camp at Plei Me in the central highlands and launched a flurry of new assaults in the Mekong delta.

The Associated Press reported a 13-year-old boy was among the Viet Cong dead at Da Nang. It quoted marines as saying he had been selling soft drinks to Americans in the area and they found drawings of key U.S. installations on his body.

"We dropped a lot of Viet Cong with pistols," said Sgt. Harry Dowdy. "They came right up to our holes. We fired at a range of 10 yards."

A U.S. spokesman said the first wave of attackers consisted of Viet Cong carrying meat hooks.

They charged the defences, throwing grenades and dropping to the ground just before reaching them. As they fell, riflemen charged over them and began mounting the defences.

Sgt. Dowdy said "as soon as one of the riflemen fell the ones lying on the ground dragged him away with a meat hook and another one took his place."

FIGHTNIKS PARADE OVER VIET ISSUE

NEW YORK (AP)—Thousands demonstrating support for U.S. policy in Viet Nam marched down Fifth Avenue today.

The parade, led by five medal-of-honor winners, took the same route as a demonstration two weeks ago protesting American involvement in the Viet Nam war.

The parade chairman, city councilman Matthew J. Troy Jr., estimated the number of marchers today would exceed 100,000.

The finance department's regular monthly statement of government financial operations said September revenues amounted to $615,900,000 and September expenditures were $581,400,000.

The Critic

AS THE LEADER OF A POLITICAL party which has never held federal office, Mr. Tommy Douglas is in the comfortable position of being able to blame everything that is wrong with the country on the current and previous governments. No error of judgment, no weakness of policy, no mistake of administration can attach to his New Democratic Party because it has never enjoyed the responsibility of national government nor the risk of being wrong.

Mr. Douglas was his usual cheery and entertaining self as he took full advantage of this position Thursday night before a Victoria audience. All the evils that beset us were the direct result of faulty action by the Liberals or the Conservatives when in power. In fact it appeared that the only acceptable representatives of these two parties—and probably destined to be the last — were Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir John A. Macdonald.

Mr. Douglas, for instance, made much of the situation in which Canada finds itself, with 62 per cent of our industry under foreign control. Neither of the old-line parties object to the trend that has produced this result, he said. The NDP would reverse the trend, said Mr. Douglas, and buy back our industry from the foreigners.

That would be a monumental task, of course, and would depend not only on the willingness of Canadians to put their money into such a purchase—never yet a very popular idea with Canadian savers—but also on the willingness of the foreigners to sell.

Mr. Douglas suggests that he could easily form a better government than the Liberal administration. That is an easy boast. He might have the cabinet material, as he says, but he has yet to get the members of parliament that would make his aspirations possible. The reality is that Canada does not want or need a socialist government — and the fact that the word "socialist" is being heavily damped in the NDP propaganda for the current election campaign is an indication that Mr. Douglas knows this.

His hope of influencing Canadian affairs to a greater extent must rest on the possibility of a minority government, with the NDP as the third weight which could swing the balance either way. In such a situation Mr. Douglas could exact a price for his support and force many of his policies into legislation.

Rule by a splinter group which represents but a small part of the electorate would be an abandonment of the central principle of parliamentary government; it would be a negation of the people's will, a seizure of governing power through a freak of public indecision. That is not good enough for Canada. We must have a majority government, with a strong, responsible opposition, for the effective direction of our affairs.

That is not to say the NDP can have no place in the scheme of parliament. It can continue—as it has done in the past—to provide a stimulant, a leavening, a saddle burr in our national life, in an era which turns increasingly to the humanitarian objectives of the welfare state. Mr. Douglas' party is one fated to be an often welcome bridesmaid, but never quite a bride.

Japan and Bristol Bay Records

A SPOKESMAN FOR JAPANESE fishing interests has pointed to this season's record salmon run in Alaska's Bristol Bay to support his country's claim for greater access to the fisheries of the North Pacific.

On the face of it, his case looks strong. He says that the catch by American boats this year set a new record. In addition, the fish escaped to the spawning grounds in record numbers.

This, said the spokesman, seemed to destroy the argument that Japanese high seas fishing was seriously cutting into the supply of salmon and threatening the existence of the run.

The point is important because under the original treaty between Canada, the United States and Japan, Japan agreed to abstain from fishing east of the 175th meridian if any party could prove that the fishery concerned was being exploited to the fullest extent possible without endangering the stock, and that conditions were being investigated.

Japan now feels the abstention principle to be an imposition forced upon her at the time the pact was signed — the early postwar years when the nation was still under the stigma of defeat.

By citing this year's record hauls in Bristol Bay and the record escapement to the spawning grounds, the Japanese might argue that the resource is being under-exploited in this region. That case was made by Japan with some success in respect to halibut fisheries off Alaska.

There is, however, a modifying factor which weakens the Japanese case. For reasons which have not yet been determined the supply of salmon in Bristol Bay returning to spawning rivers fluctuates wildly from season to season. No stable pattern similar to the cycles in the Fraser River fisheries has been established.

If, over a period of years, the Japanese can prove that Bristol Bay salmon are building up to the point where they are under-exploited, then the country would have a substantial argument. That situation may occur. In the meantime, the results of one year's count will scarcely be accepted by Canadians or Americans as significant evidence of a continued trend.

Divisions In Unity

A YEAR OR TWO AGO INformed Western observers pointed to the embarrassment suffered by some newly emerging countries when they found that translation of the magic word "independence" into political fact failed to solve their national problems.

The economic difficulties continued even when the vilified "colonial" power had withdrawn.

Now another issue confronts the new states of Africa. In the Organization of African Unity, they find their consciences troubled by the fact that attention has to be given to half a million refugees who have fled persecution or war in white or black countries.

The existence of these dispossessed people seems to contradict the "unity" in the African organization's name.

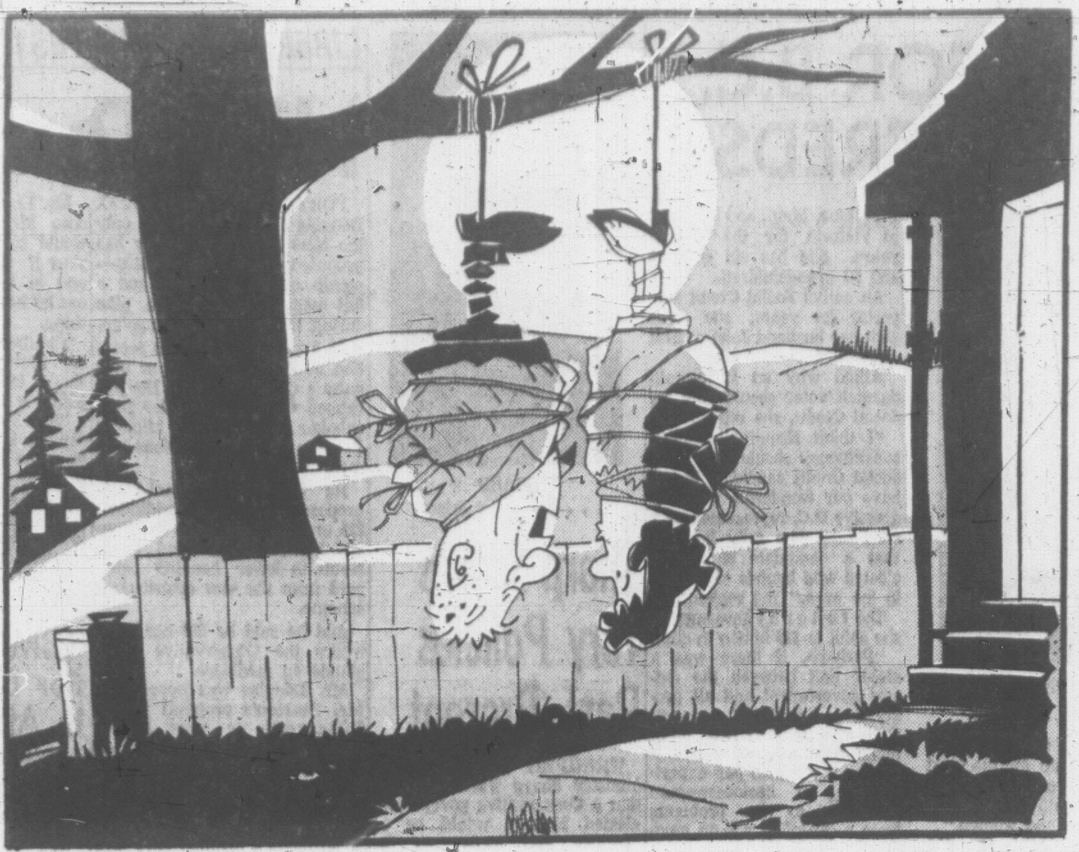
The plight of the refugee in any of a number of older countries wrings sympathy from a settled and established citizenry. So does it from the people of the new African states—but not enough, apparently, to effect a satisfactory repatriation in lands where the native population has won the right to run its own affairs.

Few Jobs for Dropouts

RECENTLY COMPILED AMERICAN statistics—and they should be noted in Canada—indicate the necessity for today's young people to acquire more education than their elder brothers.

They show that 38.2 per cent of the country's unemployed white males between the ages of 18 and 24 have had less than nine years of schooling, while only 13.8 per cent of all unemployed white males between the ages of 35 and 44 have similar school periods behind them.

In other words, the jobs open to American men who have not finished high school are largely held by the older group—there are few left for young ones. And employment for the less-educated is continually shrinking.



"Anyway . . . for next year we know now that 85 cents worth of candy won't carry us through the night . . . !"

Probing the Plei Me Mystery

Alsop

THE fighting at Plei Me, in which the Viet Cong suffered the gravest sort of setback, is a knotty little enigma, wrapped in a cloud of mystery, which is in turn shot through with glints and hints of hope and danger. The enigma is inherent in the facts. Briefly, Plei Me is an isolated outpost close to the Cambodian border, rather heavily fortified and originally held by an American special forces team of 10 or 12 men, a Vietnamese special forces team of comparable size and four companies of mountain tribesmen recruited and trained by the special forces.

Shortly before dawn on the morning of October 19, the outpost was sharply attacked by at least one enemy battalion. The first onslaught was repulsed, with heavy losses to the enemy. Two Vietnamese ranger companies were airlifted in, to reinforce the Plei Me garrison, yet the attack on the post was not broken off. Thus, the attackers became fixed targets, as it were, for our tactical air support, and thereby they incurred further very heavy losses.

Three battalions of South Vietnamese troops had meanwhile moved out by road to relieve the beleaguered garrison. Because of the danger of ambush, their movement was necessarily very slow. An ambush was duly attempted by at least two enemy battalions, but the relieving column fought its way through, inflicting still further heavy losses on the enemy forces.

Even so, the attack on the outpost was maintained until the arrival at Plei Me of the Vietnamese relief column and the intervention of a brigade of the U.S. First Cavalry Regiment. Two helicopters were the main American losses. Vietnamese casualties were also relatively light. And when the fighting began to die down on October 27, the bill paid by the enemy had reached close to 500 dead, plus many more wounded, plus a heavy loss of weapons.

The obstinate continuation of the attack on Plei Me is the heart of the enigma; for the Mao Tze-tung-Vo Nguyen Giap rule book requires any attack to be broken off that meets with resistance by a superior force. Yet even at the outset the attackers were confronted by a superior force because of the combination of the stout courage of the Plei Me garrison and the harsh power of American and Vietnamese tactical air support.

One possible reason for this obstinacy is Plei Me's location, just to the south of the main east-west highway leading to Stung Treng, in Cambodia, where there is a junction with a main road coming north from Phnom Penh. The only other case of an equally obstinate and wasteful attack was the attempt, earlier last summer, to overrun the special forces outpost at Duc Co, which lies even nearer to the border and just to the north of the same highway.

Supply Via Cambodia

The attempts to eliminate these outposts at almost any cost suggest an extra-special dislike for surveillance of this particular area — which is all the outposts achieve. That points, in turn, to the extremely disagreeable, but increasingly strong possibility that Cambodia is now being used as a main supply base for the Viet Cong. Movement would be by ship to Sihanoukville, then north to Stung Treng and west by road to the border.

In addition, the main troops employed in the attack on Plei Me were certainly North Vietnamese regulars. They do not appear to have belonged to the North Vietnamese 125th Division, already identiifed as having invaded South Viet Nam. That points to a further invasion of South Viet Nam by at least a regiment and perhaps another whole division from the North.

These are the hints of danger—and pretty serious they are. The glint of hope, which is also most important, is obviously inherent in the entire pattern of the fighting around Plei Me. The surprise attack on an isolated outpost, accompanied by a carefully contrived ambush of the relieving column, has been the main offensive stunt of the guerrillas in Viet Nam for about 20 years. It almost always worked to perfection in the old days.

Quick Retaliation

It has not worked in the last six months, however, for two sternly practical reasons. Our airpower in Viet Nam has been, and is still being, vastly increased. Thus, the attackers of an outpost can expect, nowadays, to come under the heaviest sort of air attack within an hour or so. (Later, the "reaction time," as it is called, will be reduced to five minutes.) In addition, power on the ground has been so much increased that ambushes are seldom paying propositions.

All this is so meaningful because of its obvious implication. When a general knows that his favorite stunt will not work in a new situation, yet goes on using the same old stunt at dreadful cost, it implies that the general in question does not know which way to turn.

FROM CALGARY

By JAMES H. GRAY

Old-Time Fervor Lost

Gray

SOME of the most interesting aspects of the current federal election campaign begin to become apparent only when you veer out of the cities into the countryside. Perhaps most striking is the disappearance of the election poster. If there is one thing all parties are agreed upon, it is the wisdom of economizing on billboards, bumper stickers and display cards. There was once a time when every rural telephone pole became festooned with campaign cards. Not any more. In a 2,000-mile tour the only places where this technique was still being used with the old enthusiatsm was in Selkirk and Springfield constituencies east of Winnipeg.

In these constituencies there was one obvious change from the old days—nobody was playing dirty pool. The cards were not being defaced by saboteurs from the other parties. One party's cards were not being nailed over another's. Dates of meetings being advertised were not being mischieviously re-arranged.

Puzzling

Perhaps there will be a blizzard of material in the closing stages of the campaign. Yet the lack of fluorescent colored bumper stickers is downright puzzling. Once one of the most universally popular American election gimmicks, we counted less than half a dozen on our tour.

On most of the billboards and posters, this is a campaign without issues, without slogans and almost without parties. It is a folksy campaign, in which the electors are urged to "need" Bill or Tom or Ernie. There is no confrontation of the electors with a challenging choice between "King or Chaos". There is only the plaintive appeal that Regina does need Bill Clark, though you could never prove that by the B.C. Lions. (Mr. Clark is a retired Regina Roughrider footballer).

With the smaller posters, as distinct from billboards, it is often necessary to stop the car and paw around in the small print to identify the party the candidate is representing. This, however, is not true of the Social Credit candidates in Alberta. They all use standard cards, obviously bought in quantity with provision for interchanging the pictures of the candidates.

As always, the Social Credit campaign in Alberta is largely under the surface. Premier Manning has been holding rallies, but the main campaign is being waged by the doorbell ringers. The Social Crediters, who invented radio politicking, and have always made good use of it, seem this year not to be on the air so often.

Indeed one of the strongest impressions one gets is the paucity of radio messaging. Travelling around Regina, for example, there seems to be five plugs for fluoridation to every one for a politician. In Saskatchewan the civic elections come in the first week in November and these are the elections which seem to be attracting the attention.

Silent Papers

Perhaps the strangest silence of all is that which engulfs the Saskatchewan newspapers. Both the Regina and Saskatoon papers are owned by the Sifton families of Toronto. Once mighty voices of Saskatchewan Liberalism, they are dragging their feet in this election clear up to their thighs.

For example, on the day after Mr. Pearson's visit, the Regina Leader-Post ran an anti-Pearson cartoon and devoted its main editorial to the box-car shortage. The Saskatoon Star-Phoenix also hammered away at the railways, and ran a long editorial lauding Ontario's medicare plan. In Alberta, on the same day, the Edmonton Journal was lambasting the provincial Social Crediters for advocating a $100 a year home owners' dividend, applauding the authentic Eskimos and approving Prince Charles' educational junket to Australia.

If the old-time religious fervor has disappeared from the newspapers, the general public may perhaps have come by its apathy naturally. But the general reaction of the people encountered en route seemed to hint that there was more than mere apathy involved.

Among the people a tourist encounters there was a curious unanimity of opinion that not much was going to be changed by the election.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

AN interesting hour or two can be spent on the banks of Goldstream along the middle reaches. Here the water swirls and eddies amongst the fallen logs that are scattered in the stream.

The many leaves in the water take on the shapes of boats, ranging from a squat tug to the more stately liner standing out to sea.

As they hit the riffles and miniature rapids they lift and dip; each type of leaf has a different way of running the rapids.

Looking down through the crystal-clear water you can see on the bottom many of the leaves that have become waterlogged. Here too they seem to have taken on a different shape.

As the leaves drift along you can often spot some insect that has become a passenger. In some instances you will see a tiny fingerling dart up and strike at the leaf. Perhaps it is after the insect that has alighted there.

As you wander along you will see a number of the little dippers or water ousels. They dart into the water and disappear only to bob up some distance away.

Watch them hop onto a log, then you will understand why they are called the dipper. They are never still but always bobbing up and down.

Overhead on some branch you will see the kingfisher watching. If he spots a small fish in the stream he will dart like an arrow into the water for his catch.

Perhaps if you are very quiet you may see one of the great Blue Herons standing in the shallows waiting for a meal. At the slightest danger he will take off as silently as a shadow.

To the Editor

"Trash"?

Would people who called the Peace Action League supporters "trash" also call Christ, Pope Paul, Linus Pauling, Brock Chisholm and Albert Schwietzer trash? The two older ladies at Mr. Hunter's Oak Bay meeting, one who so angrily dismissed these sincere people with this one word and the other who spat at one of the demonstrators, should seriously think of Christ's words from the Sermon on the Mount, "Blessed are the peacemakers; for they shall be called the Children of God." These two, and all others who think themselves to be Christians, may also support disarmament after re-reading St. Matthew, chapter 5, verses 43 to 48.

It is a great mistake to assume that young people who protest against war are trash. Surely it is now clear that anyone who speaks out for peace is serious and should have his opinion considered very carefully. I believe that the young people who are protesting have learned from the horrible mistakes of previous generations.—Mrs. V. Willis, 1B, 811 St. Charles.

RENOIR

Reward for The Artist

By TONY EMERY

Emery

THE strange spasm that from time to time contorts my mobile features is meant to be what the cliche experts call "a wry smile". It is occasioned by the memory of my innocence in supposing that the academic life was going to provide me with a great deal of time for reading. I imagined — and the fatuity of it now makes me gasp and writhe—that there would be hours, nay days, spent in the cosy womb of the university library, browsing through the great monuments of scholarship, and snacking away at the periodical literature, with occasional refreshment from a novel of genius.

I assumed, of course, that the life of a university teacher would be much like the life that I led as an undergraduate, only with more time to pursue my own interests in the field of learning.

Price of Academic Freedom

I discovered—much too late—that the price of academic freedom is endless committee meetings and other activities of an important but time-consuming nature. Far from spending hours in the library, I am hard put to it to find time to read the newspaper: the journals and periodicals I subscribe to sit in their plain brown wrappers for weeks waiting to be read: the list of books that I want to read, and the longer list of works that I ought to read, grow inexorably from day to day. I truly believe that only the timely investment in a boat that put me out of reach of the telephone enabled me to get my reading done this past summer.

But if I go on about my troubles you will want to start telling me about yours, and I couldn't stand that. Suffice it for now that these maunderings are prompted by the fact that it has taken me until now to find the time to read the memoir, published in 1962, of his disinguisehd father by Jean Renoir. It is a long book of 400 pages, and it unfolds in a leisurely manner that surprises one, in view of the crisp cinematic technique that has gained for Jean Renoir an eminence in the field of motion pictures that comes near to being comparable to the fame earned by his father with brush and palette.

Portrait of the Man

However, for all its length and occasional prolixity, it does offer a valuable and comprehensive portrait of Renoir as a man to offset the critical biographies by art historians, which too often depict a painter as a painting machine churning out works to be pigeon-holed and classified.

Vollard the dealer, it is true, wrote a book called "Renoir: An Intimate Record," but the painter, his son tells us, used to say of this pious work: "Not bad, Vollard's book on Vollard." Renoir was not an easy subject for the biographer, since he did not commonly reveal his innermost thoughts in conversation. (Who does?) Even his son did not come to know his father well until he was 21 and convalescing from a wound in 1915. By then old Renoir was 74, a widower and crippled with the arthritis he had battled since 1899. When the light was gone at the end of the day he would sit in his wheelchair and smoke, content to pass the evening in conversation with his son. (He couldn't stand electric light. "Bottled light," he called it, "only fit for corpses.")

'Intransigents'

The book abounds in what reviewers call "insights" into Renoir's development as a painter and as a man, from his early apprenticeship as a porcelain-painter in his teens, through his early worship of the Barbizon painters Diaz and Daubigny, to his meeting with Bazille and Monet and Sisley at the studio run by the Swiss painter Gleyre, and the formation of the small band of "Intransigents" that was to lead to the school of so-called "Impressionists."

It is interesting to discover that the Rabelaisian Renoir is an invention of biographers who did not know him well. When taxed beyond endurance he would occasionally express himself with a certain pungency, but normally, Jean says, he was prudish in conversation, by French standards. That he was no puritan, however, his painting makes amply—and I use the word advisedly—clear. "Don't trust anybody who doesn't get excited at the sight of a pretty breast," is a favorite remark of his.

Manet Judgment

We know from other sources that Manet did his best to dissuade Renoir, as tactfully as he could, from devoting his life to painting, because he could see no evidence of talent. It is interesting to learn that Renoir had the same low opinion of Gauguin's artistic possibilities. Like Degas, Renoir reserved his strongest antipathies for the profession of architecture.

"The modern architect is, generally speaking, art's greatest enemy," he said. And to someone who opposed war-like toys for children he suggested that it was far more dangerous to give them building blocks, because "they might grow up to be architects." Perhaps his wisest words, as true today as ever befor, were: "The only reward one should offer an artist is to buy his work."

ALTER EGO

Once a book gets under way and begins to take shape, a curious kinship is born between the creator and the created that seems to me to have no real parallel in any other occupation, not even that of the dramatist whose work is brought to life by other professionals. If the book is any good, the people in it become more real than the people who actually inhabit the author's narrow world. When they suffer, he suffers. When they're successful in love and commerce he rejoices and counts the profits. When they die, something of him dies.

LIFE'S WORK HAS TOUCHED MILLIONS

30 Years Ahead in the Classroom

Jim Hume Talks
To DR. BROWNELL

He sits quietly on the 10th storey of the Lord Simcoe apartments puffing on a yellow Meerschaum pipe, modestly aware that his life's work has touched millions.

His step, as can be expected when a man reaches 70, is far from spry.

But his mind is quick and clear, his voice firm and his opinions flint-sharp.

Dr. William Arthur Brownell, born in Smethport, Pa., May 19, 1895, former dean of education at the University of California, Berkeley Campus, didn't come to Victoria to retire.

He came to teach because an old associate, Dr. Frederick T. Tyler, dean of education at the University of Victoria, asked him.

World Trip

"My wife and I had just got home from a world trip when Dean Tyler called and asked me to help out this year," he recalled Friday. "It seemed pretty ridiculous to even think of travelling anywhere. We were tired and just wanted to rest. But he was an old associate—so here I am."

Here he is, indeed, with a string of academic distinctions far too long to list here. A rare prize for a young university to capture and one which brings international distinction and recognition to the fledgling campus.

International Fame

Throughout his many years of teaching Dr. Brownell has held positions of trust in 16 universities; has been sought for opinions by innumerable others, has written textbooks, conducted research programs and generally carved out for himself an international fame for his work on meaningful arithmetic.

Some of his observations and recommendations made 30 years ago were so far ahead of their time that they are now being introduced into schools as "new" methods.

Little Angry

"It makes me a little angry," said the quiet man, "when I see things I suggested 30 years ago being introduced as new ideas. It is a long time since I first suggested that children should understand what they learn rather than just memorize certain things.

"They must know what it's all about before they can learn properly and effectively."

On three occasions Dr. Brownell has stepped briefly aside from the 100 per cent academic life.

"I worked as an insurance salesman—better say I represented an insurance company—in 1918 to boost my slim high school teacher's salary.

"I served in the army and once tried running a grocery store. I was utterly incompetent in all three."

First Love

But Dr. Brownell was far from incompetent when it came to his first love: educational psychology as applied to learning arithmetic.

Last September he became the second man in the world to receive the highly prized Edward L. Thorndyke Award for "distinguished psychological contributions to education."

Among his many honors, this is most treasured.

Scottish Study

Dr. Brownell did not remain idle long after he retired, in 1962, from the Berkeley staff. He was soon on his way to Scotland on behalf of the United States Department of Education to study British youngsters at work and bring back some system comparisons.

In Scotland he discovered that children studying under the Cuisinaire system had a great advantage over those studying under traditional systems.

In England the reverse was true. The Cuisinaire students trailed behind the traditionally taught students.

Why?

Crusade

"It's quite simple, really," Dr. Brownell said striking yet another match for his Meerschaum. "In Scotland the teachers on the Cuisinair system were better trained than the English teachers using that system. In Scotland, Cuisinaire had become a kind of crusade.

BROWNELL
. . . 'here I am'

"But in England the traditional teacher was much better trained than the traditionalist in Scotland.

"Hence the two opposite records of success and failure."

Dr. Brownell has applied to the United States government for a second grant to go back to Scotland to continue his work.

"If I get it, and I hope I do, I shall go on to Scotland after I am through here next spring," he said.

One Term Only

Even if he doesn't, Dr. Brownell will likely be lost to Uvic when the first blossoms appear next year. He agreed to help out for one semester only.

What does he see in the future for Uvic?

"It is hard to predict. But it will take great skill and a great deal of money to make the university a success," he answered. "The skill is there in nucleus now. I have great respect for Dr. Taylor and some of the men he has around him. But hiring top faculty men is a tough, competitive job these days and top men are needed if a reputation is to be built."

Dr. Brownell was gentle in his criticism of his present academic home.

Wasteful System

"It's a very wasteful system you have here in Victoria," he said. "I think it is ridiculous to only use a university plant nine months of the year. The quarter system is much better, for under that system the university plant is fully utilized."

But even in making the criticism Dr. Brownell was anxious that it be regarded as a suggestion for the future rather than as an intrusion by a guest.

A Democrat politically, Dr. Brownell supports United States policy in Viet Nam.

"I don't see what else we can do but stay in there," he said. "And I do deplore demonstrations by people not yet mature. I like to see young people demonstrate, but they should demonstrate for or against things they understand."

But Dr. Brownell's sharpest criticism was saved for university professors or lecturers who claim Canadian high schools are failing to graduate students ready for first year university.

Arrogant

"Any man who says that is arrogant," he said. "That's a strong word but I won't change it. He is saying that he is so superior that he cannot reach down to bring these students up. And he is forgetting that the average student in his first year is away from home for the first time, is in awe of the university, homesick and dismayed.

"It isn't easy for the student to find release under those conditions.

"I have troubles myself with freshmen. It is the first time I have taught them in all these years. I'm used to graduates and teach them better than I do freshmen. But the failure, if there is failure, lies with me, not the freshmen."

Dr. Brownell, who came to Uvic unheralded except by fellow professors, will leave a large gap in the faculty of education next spring when he packs his bags, lights up his Meerschaum and moves on to dispense his quiet wisdom elsewhere.

Sartre Subject Of Lecture By Professor

Philosopher - playwrite Jean Paul Sartre will be the subject of a lunch-time lecture at the University of Victoria Monday in Room 106 of the Clearihue building.

The lecture, entitled Sartre, Thinker or Humbug? will be given by Dr. Colin Smith, a senior member of the French department at the University of London.

Dr. Smith is spending the current academic year as a visiting professor of French at the University of Western Ontario at London.

His lecture tour is sponsored by the Canada Council.

Refugees Pour Out of Cuba

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI)—Refugees in small boats poured out of Cuba without let-up today, braving a spray-driving northeaster in the Florida Straits while U.S. and Cuban officials neared agreement on a safer and more comfortable air shuttle for exiles.

In Washington, officials said only minor details stood in the way of concluding an agreement on a mass exile transfer, and that agreement could be reached today.

Friday the Florida Straits claimed the first victims of the small boat shuttle which has been underway since Oct. 7. One woman died en route to freedom and a dazed man told of four companions who went down with a boat they were taking to Cuba to bring back refugees.

The coast guard reported that despite the Castro government's announcement it wanted no more boats to come to the port of Camarioca for refugees after Thursday midnight, a trickle of boats continued from Florida toward Cuba over the straits.

About 180 refugees arrived in Key West and Marathon Friday, bringing to nearly 2,400 the total of Cubans who have fled their island since Castro opened the doors. Scores of boats were reported waiting to leave Camarioca and the coast guard anticipated a busy weekend.

The weather picked up in the straits about nightfall Friday. Northeast winds up to 30 miles an hour were forecast through today.

Refugees arriving aboard the cutter Ariadne Friday night were drenched with sea spray. The cutter plus two boats accompanying it and another small boat which landed at Marathon brought 109 refugees to freedom.

Earlier in the day the 60-foot vessel Double Play docked with the body of Maria Carballo, 66. She died a few miles off Florida apparently of a cerebral hemorrhage. Her son, Ramon, said he had gone to Cuba to bring his mother back more than two weeks ago, and that Cuban officials had been hesitant about letting her leave because of her health.

Also aboard the Double Play was Mario Castellanos, 39. He said he was one of two survivors from among six exiles who sailed for Cuba Oct. 20 from Miami aboard a boat called the Caribou II.

The boat sank in rough seas 15 to 20 miles off the north coast of Cuba.

PEARSON

New Appeal For Majority

By JOHN MIKA
Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER—About two dozen hecklers were counter-heckled to a standoff while a full house of 2,800 supporters gave Prime Minister Pearson rousing cheers throughout a 33-minute speech Friday night in the Queen Elizabeth Theatre.

The noise volume hit its peaks in support of the Liberal leader's several appeals for return of his government with a parliamentary majority.

Police swung into action only twice—once to stop a pro-Pearsonite from pumelling a heckler beside him and the other time to chase back a man who rushed towards the platform with a sign calling for a Canadian merchant marine.

Mr. Pearson kept talking through both incidents and also ignored the hecklers to deliver his appeals, recount successes of his administration, outline current prosperity and slam the NDP and Tories.

The heckling was more like persistent but light sniper fire than the thunderous volleys of screaming and fist swinging that almost broke up Mr. Pearson's Vancouver rally in the 1963 campaign.

Isolated shouts of "Viet Nam," "conscription" and "Rivard" sometimes could be heard and other times were muffled by distances separating the widely scattered hecklers and the platform.

Counter-Hecklers Amuse Crowd

With everyone braced for a repetition of the 1963 near-riot, Friday's rally was almost anti-climactic and some even drew ironic amusement from the counter-hecklers who snapped back with "nitwits" or "why don't you go to Viet Nam?"

And the man with the merchant marine sign was booed and pelted with crumpled papers as he retreated before the police.

The heckling was loudest immediately after Mr. and Mrs. Pearson entered the theatre to the din of frenzied applause, the skirl of four bagpipers in the lead and the chanting of about 40 boys and girls bearing Liberal placards that brought up the rear.

The charged atmosphere gradually dissipated as it became evident Mr. Pearson was not fazed and the cries of the hecklers grew hoarse.

"Vancouver is always a stimulating place in an election campaign," said Mr. Pearson with a broad smile bathed by the spotlights.

"I am not likely to forget the wonderful reception I got here in 1963," he quipped to touch off a burst of general laughter.

He recalled he had felt rather low after the 1963 rally but an aide came bubbling up to his room gleefully announcing "we won three seats tonight—if only they had drawn blood from (you) we would have won two more."

Must Be Able to Plan Ahead

Mr. Pearson said the major issue of the campaign was majority government and if one was not achieved this time it likely would make another early election inevitable.

"Perhaps our motto or our slogan should be 'no more until 1970'," he said prompting a wave of cheers.

He said in the last parliament it was the opposition and not the government that held a majority "and I suggest we return to the traditional way with the government in the majority."

He said it would be impossible for the opposition parties to support a minority Liberal government after the attacks made during this campaign and in the first vote of confidence, within eight days of parliament's opening, "we would be defeated and there would be another election."

Mr. Pearson said Canada needs a majority government because an administration "should be able to plan ahead for five years and not just five weeks.—surely that makes sense."

He said only the Liberals could form a majority in the country's present mood.

He said Conservative Leader Diefenbaker himself indicated the Tories could only hope to form a minority government and recalling the Diefenbaker minority government of 1962, he asked "do we want to return to that?"

Can Afford Extravagant Promises

"No," the crowd roared back.

Mr. Pearson said the New Democratic Party has no hope of forming even a minority government because the latest poll showed the undecided voters had dropped from 36 per cent to 11 per cent and NDP had only 16 per cent of the committed, while the Liberals had 47 per cent.

"A party with no hope of forming the government, no matter how good its intentions may be, can afford to make the most extravagant promises, secure in the knowledge it will not be

U.S. Fights Cong Force In Darkness

SAIGON (CP)—U.S. marines, using pistols and fighting hand-to-hand from their tents, beat off a "human wave" assault by the Viet Cong in the early-morning darkness today 10 miles southwest of Da Nang.

A U.S. military spokesman said 56 Viet Cong, many of them teen-agers, were killed. He described casualties among the 300 marines as moderate.

One marine squad, however, was badly mauled. Two of its 14 men were killed and the rest wounded, the spokesman said.

The Viet Cong also mortared the U.S. special forces camp at Plei Me in the central highlands and launched a flurry of new assaults in the Mekong delta.

The Associated Press reported a 13-year-old boy was among the Viet Cong dead at Da Nang. It quoted marines as saying he had been selling soft drinks to Americans in the area and they found drawings of key U.S. installations on his body.

"We dropped a lot of Viet Cong with pistols," said Sgt. Harry Dowdy. "They came right up to our holes. We fired at a range of 10 yards."

A U.S. spokesman said the first wave of attackers consisted of Viet Cong carrying meat hooks.

They charged the defences, throwing grenades and dropping to the ground just before reaching them. As they fell, riflemen charged over them and began mounting the defences.

Sgt. Dowdy said "as soon as one of the riflemen fell the ones lying on the ground dragged him away with a meat hook and another one took his place."

Dief Charges Pearson 'Threatens' Canadians

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau Staffer

TRURO, N.S.—Conservative Leader Diefenbaker charged Friday night the prime minister had adopted the dictum "I am the state" to "threaten" Canadians into voting for a Liberal majority.

At a swinging, shouting Nova Scotian rally the Tory leader lashed out at Prime Minister Pearson for suggesting as had been reported an election would follow a Liberal minority win by 18 months.

"He has enunciated a principle which almost indicates 'I am the state'," Diefenbaker said.

"What you did in fact, Mr. Prime Minister, was threaten the Canadian people, that's what you did."

"You said either you fall in line or I am going to force another election—but I am going to wait until after I celebrate July 1, 1967," Diefenbaker continued.

"Well when the votes are counted every indication is this nation, wherever it may be, is that 18 months from now you won't be in a position to advise the Governor-General of anything."

Diefenbaker said that the prime minister had denied making the statement as it was quoted in the press.

He said that Pearson's "aide Mr. (Richard) O'Hagan said he said it."

RECORDED ON TAPE

The prime minister's words had been recorded on tape, the Tory leader said.

"I can't understand why tapes record so wrongly," he said. "This is not the first time the prime minister has had this difficulty. He should be more tape careful."

At Moncton airport he said the prime minister had shown a "contemptuous disregard for democracy."

In a taped interview on his private railway car he said the prime minister had a "power complex."

"He is beginning to think he controls the people, that whatever he wants he is going to have," said Diefenbaker.

"This is the first time in Canadian history that a prime minister has spoken to the people as if they were children who were to have their future determined by him, and to be

TORONTO SHUNS TORIES

Liberals to Survive Small Gains by NDP

By PETER REGENSTREIF

TORONTO—If British Columbia is booming, Toronto is positively throbbing with affluence.

Where two and a half years ago stood a two-door Chevrolet, a Pontiac Parisienne hardtop now stands; hotels are booked solid; unemployment is at a record low.

This prosperity operates rather powerfully to mobilize potential indecision in a Liberal direction.

A taxi-driver who claimed he was undecided finally made up his mind on the spot: "Things are very good now. I mean compared to 1957 and 1958. Oh, no. I'll vote Liberal again. Things are better when the Liberals are in. I looked at the want ads. I saw four or five jobs I could hold today."

'It brings converts into the fold. A 1963 Conservative, a carpenter in Broadview who now intends to vote Liberal, explained: "I like the present government. We're doing pretty well. Personally, the way I look at it, I have a good job."

This is obviously bad news for the opposition as it sets about taking the government on in the 18 Toronto and York constituencies. The Liberals now hold 16; the NDP 2.

The Conservatives drew a fat goose-egg here in 1963. They are slated to repeat in 1965.

To be sure, there is considerable public concern about scandal and the charges of corruption. But, at the same time, Diefenbaker is a repellent against voting Conservative

Negro Rule Not Rushed

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI)—Britain and Rhodesia reached agreement today on a compromise ending the threat of an immediate declaration of independence by the African colony.

The compromise called for establishment of a royal commission to work out details for advancing political power to the nation's black majority.

It also brought a statement from British Prime Minister Harold Wilson supporting the Rhodesian government's position that the colony's four million Negroes are not yet ready for majority rule over the white minority and a promise that Britain would not use its military to force an African majority government.

A number of African nationalists had demanded use of force by Britain to prevent a unilateral declaration of independence by Rhodesia.

The proposed royal commission would be headed by Rhodesian Chief Justice Sir Hugh Beadel and composed of a British and Rhodesian representative still to be named. It would analyze the existing constitution and suggest amendments guaranteeing African rights.

There were immediate rumblings from both African nationalists and some extremist white settlers impatient for urgent action on independence now on their terms.

The Rev. N. Sithole, African nationalist leader under restriction by the Rhodesian government, expressed "deep disappointment" that Wilson had been unable to provide immediate majority rule.

Douglas C. (Boss) Lilford, former chairman of premier Ian Smith's ruling Rhodesian front, said he had "some doubts" about the plan but that the party was united behind Smith.

Net effect of the compromise was to delay the unilateral Independence threat—the first by a British colony since America's in 1776—at least until the end of the year.

BY END OF YEAR

In announcing the compromise, Wilson said he expected the commission to complete its work by the end of the year.

Both Smith's cabinet and the 50-man British task force which accompanied Wilson here from London for last-minute talks appeared pleased by the compromise.

Wilson disclosed agreement shortly before flying off to other African states en route home to London for discussion of the royal commission by the British cabinet.

"I am now absolutey clear that the door is open," Wilson said. "We have found a means to settle this problem quite quickly.

"I believe that given time—a short time in my view—the proposed royal commission can hammer out a solution which can lead to an honorable and acceptable basis for independence."

Wilson said his government is irrevocably committed to eventual rule by the colony's Africans over the 220,000 whites.

50 Communist Youths Slain In Java Battle

JAKARTA (Reuters)—Indonesian government troops killed 50 Communist youths in a battle following the discovery of the bodies of murdered Moslems, the army announced here today.

It said Moslems who found the bodies Wednesday in a grave at Prambanan in central Java attempted to move them to a burial place. They found the area occupied by Pemuda Rakjat (Communist youth front) forces and called for military help.

Observers said the battle was the most serious reported between government forces and Communists.

Third Deputy Premier Chaerul Saleh today described the Indonesian situation as "civil war."

Another army announcement said troops and police raided a village in East Java and arrested 11 persons suspected of the "massacre by poisoning" of 62 anti-Communists at Karangasem.

Meanwhile, reliable army sources said today Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio has been replaced as chief of the intelligence service by a high-ranking soldier.

Second Cathedral Desecrated in U.K.

YORK (Reuters)—Vandals desecrated York Cathedral with paint today in the second incident of its kind in an English cathedral in two days.

Paint was sprayed Friday over Bible and church treasures in Canterbury Cathedral, "parish church" of Dr. Michael Ramsey, the Archbishop of Canterbury and head of the Anglican Church.

Red paint was sprayed on the lectern and archbishop's chair at York Minster, the seat of Dr. Donald Coggan, who ranks immediately after Dr. Ramsey in the Anglican Church hierarchy.

The incident at Canterbury Cathedral came after Dr. Ramsey was involved in controversy for a statement he made on Rhodesia.

Dr. Ramsey advocated support by Christians for the use of force by Britain if necessary to protect Negro African rights in Rhodesia.
